HURRY! BRITAIN ASKS STIMSON; SHIP SPEEDS ON

Reason for Urgent Radio a Secret.

ABOARD S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—[By radio].—As a result of urgent messages from Prime Minister MacDonald to Henry L. Stimson, asking the presence of the American secretary of state in London early next Friday, the George Washington, carrying the American delegation to the five power conference, is steaming under forced draught tonight.

Mr. Stimson received a wireless from the British prime minister early this afternoon. He immediately communicated the necessity for haste to Capt. Randall of the George Washington. The captain, after speeding up the boat, informed Mr. Stimson that the ship should arrive at Plymouth at midnight Thursday instead of the following morning.

Veiled in Secrecy.

A special night train is to be held in readiness to convey Mr. Stimson and possibly the other members of the delegation to London. The reason for Mr. MacDonald's request that Secretary Stimson expedite his arrival at London is a closely guarded secret and is the subject of great speculation aboard the liner.

The presumption is that the prime minister desires a full day to discuss the conference situation with the head of the American delegation before Mr. Stimson talks with Premier Tardieu of France on Saturday and with Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, on Sunday. In quarters familiar with the British habit, however, the suggestion is thrown out that Mr. MacDonald merely wishes to expedite business that otherwise would interfere with his customary week-end.

May Lay Cards on Table.

It is not doubted that the exchange of views between Secretary Stimson and Mr. MacDonald will have an important bearing on the attitude that the American envoy will assume in his talks with Premier Tardieu and Sig. Grandi.

Presumably the cards will be thrown on the table in the Franco-American and Italo-American conversations. If so, M. Tardieu will expose to Mr. Stimson the terms on which France will sign a five power naval agreement, if at all.

Although France has served notice that she will make no definite naval agreement at London pending comprehensive land, sea, and air armament limitation by the league of nations, indications are not wanting that she might reconsider if given the sort of security pact she desires.

Teeth in Kellogg Pact.

France has proposed two security understandings. She wants an agreement putting teeth in the Kellogg pact, by which America would join in punishing any nation violating the war renunciation treaty. She wants also a Mediterranean Locarno by which France, Great Britian, Italy, and Spain would be pledged to common defense against an aggressor.

From the European chancelleries there has also emanated a cunning scheme to draw America into the Mediterranean pact, indirectly. This is the proposal of an agreement by the five powers at the London conference on the lines of the four power Pacific pact, which was the price of the naval agreement at the Washington conference.

Under this plan, if any controversy should arise affecting the rights of any of the five powers in water washing their shores, the powers would meet in conference for pacific adjustment of the difficulty. Thus, although she has no interest in the Mediterranean, America would become a party to the conference on the Mediterranean controversy.

JAPANESE PARLEYS END

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Preliminary conversations between Prime Minister MacDonald and the Japanese delegates to the naval disarmament conference were concluded today. Former Premier Wakatsuki completed his exposition of the Japanese standpoint. R. L. Craigie, head of the American department of the foreign office, was present at the meeting.

The British and Japanese naval experts are meeting jointly tomorrow to work out technical details of the pub-

PRESIDENT FOR ALTERATIONS IN LAW'S METHODS

His Provisions Stir Controversy.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—President Hoover's recommendations for legislation to facilitate enforcement of prohibition laws provoked immediate controversy today.

Proposals to authorize disposition of minor violations by commissioners of federal courts, to make indictments unnecessary in certain classes of cases and otherwise to speed up prosecutions and relieve congestion in the courts were the particular targets of attack.

Possible infringement upon the right of trial by jury guaranteed by the constitution was one of the chief criticisms advanced against the program. Other objections were presented, making it a certainty that consideration of the various bills suggested will bring on sharp contests in both houses.

President's Recommendations.

The President's general recommendations for legislation to make possible administrative reforms in the enforcement and judicial machinery were as follows:

Reorganization of the federal court structure so as to give relief from congestion.

Consolidation of the various agencies engaged in prevention of smuggling of liquor, narcotics, other merchandise and aliens over our frontiers.

Provision of adequate court and prosecuting officials.

Expansion of federal prisons and reorganization of parole and other practices.

Legislation to give United States court commissioners enlarged powers in minor criminal cases.

Wagner Seeks Thorough Inquiry.

Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] introduced in the senate a resolution requesting the President to direct the Wickersham commission to inquire into and report upon "the suitability of existing prohibition laws for the promotion of temperance," the "advisability of amendment to such laws to the end that more adequate enforcement may be obtained through greater voluntary observance of law," and "the extent to which the inadequacy of the existing administrative and judicial machinery for enforcement of law is attributable to the prohibition laws."

Representative A. Piatt Andrew [Rep., Mass.] offered a bill in the house to appropriate $1,000,000 for the law enforcement commission, and to allow two years in which to make a thorough investigation of prohibition. In a speech in the house Mr. Andrew said the time and money involved would be insignificant compared with the magnitude of the benefits which might result.

Denies Law Can Be Enforced.

Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.], in a speech in the house, asserted that the commission's reports show the "impossibility of ever enforcing the law." He said that changes proposed "involve international complications with foreign countries and involve one of the wholesome guarantees of the American constitution, that of the right of trial by jury."

Representative F. A. Britten [Rep., Ill.], a leading wet, expressed regret that the commission had failed to deal with modification of prohibition laws. He said that if the various states cooperate fully under suggestions made "there will be 300,000 snoopers added to the present number of prohibition officers and confiscated liquor will drop in price, accordingly." He added that "killings will be even more numerous than under the present quick trigger policy of the coast guard."

Senator Harry B. Hawes [Dem., Mo.] asserted that if the proposal for changes in court procedure is intended "to deprive men of their right to trial by jury, it would not only be objectionable, but, in my opinion, unconstitutional."

President Hoover's recommendations were incorporated in a special message to congress which was accompanied by two voluminous reports from the Wickersham law enforcement commission and statements by Attorney General Mitchell and Secretary of the

Bandits' Blast Kills 4; Money Blown to Bits

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—Four occupants of a mine auxiliary pay car were killed, two others were injured and currency was scattered in all directions today when the car was dynamited by bandits as it was ascending Newport mountain, about seven miles southwest of here. The car, which carried $33,000 in cash, was on the way to pay off workmen at No. 20 tunnel of the Glen Alden Coal company's Truesdale colliery.

One of the injured men, John Sookil, a miner, dragged himself to his feet, and, standing guard over the pay roll, frightened away one of the robber gang. The money was in an iron-bound chest bolted to the floor. The lid had been blown off and some of the currency scattered about. Virtually all of it, however, was saved.

Paymaster Among Victims.

The dead are:

Arthur E. Webb, 32, of Scranton, paymaster for the Glen Alden Coal company; Martin Burns, 31, of Warrior Run, a section foreman; Frank Bimski, 40, of Plymouth, a miner, and James Shovlin, 32, of Sugar Notch, a section foreman, who died tonight from his injuries.

Fred W. Pfaff, 50, of Scranton, a guard, was seriously injured and John Sookil, 50, of Plymouth, a miner, was slightly hurt.

To reach the workmen at No. 20 tunnel, a recently acquired mine, a narrow road must be used. On this was a first aid car, which twice a month was converted into a pay car.

Burns and his staff were arranging the money as the auxiliary pay car moved along the narrow track and climbed Newport mountain toward the tunnel.

Car Is Dynamited.

The bandits apparently had placed the explosive under the track and connected the powerful charge with an electric detonator left some distance away. The pay car felt the full effect of the blast, but a mine motor which was drawing it became detached by the force of the dynamiting and continued to the colliery to summon aid.

For hours after the blast boys were picking bills ranging from $1 to $20 in denomination from trees, shrubbery and undergrowth for hundreds of feet around. State police rounded up these youngsters as quickly as they could and recovered a considerable amount of the pay roll.

COUPLE ROBBED IN APARTMENT OF $9,000 GEMS

Two gunmen last night captured Frank Spreyne, wealthy south side undertaker, as he was putting his automobile in his garage at the rear of his home at 8246 Ingleside avenue and, after marching him to the house at the point of a revolver, robbed him and his wife, Mrs. Amanda Spreyne, of jewelry and clothing valued at more than $9,000 and $300 in cash.

Spreyne was returning home from his office at 6328 Cottage Grove avenue and had let Mrs. Spreyne out of the car at the front door. The two men followed him into the garage and, pressing the gun against his back, ordered him to go ahead. When they reached the Spreyne apartment on the second floor Mrs. Spreyne was removing her jewelry. Assuring her that they would not harm her if she complied with their requests, one of the bandits snatched a bar pin valued at $2,500 from her dress.

They then forced her to draw her jewelry case from its hiding place and took three rings and a wrist watch from her and a stickpin and a $1,600 ring from Spreyne. From Spreyne's pocket they took $150 and from Mrs. Spreyne's purse $150. As they left the bandits took three fur coats, valued at $1,500.

Wife Sues for Mate's Gifts to 'Other Woman'

That a wife has the right to collect gifts made by her husband to another woman was indicated by Superior Judge Williams yesterday when he gave Mrs. Christina Moraw, 7914 Eberhart avenue, permission to audit accounts of her estranged husband, Charles A. Moraw, president of the Moraw Construction company. Following up this advantage Mrs. Moraw filed a bill for accounting of gifts received against the co-respondent, named in her bill for divorce, and another bill demanding a return of gifts and sums revealed through the check.

The defendant in the latter actions is Mrs. Bonny Pinkussohn, a divorcée, living at 530 Argyle avenue. Mrs. Moraw alleged that her husband, who is 65 years old, has squandered large sums on Mrs. Pinkussohn. Before Judge Williams she asked to be allowed to make the accounting because she has no estimate of the gifts.

Wife Sues for Divorce.

The Moraws were married Jan. 23, 1892, and have two grown children. They separated last Sept. 27, when Moraw is said to have ordered his wife from their home when she confronted him with proof of his relationship with the divorcée. She filed a bill for divorce Dec. 21, asking that her husband be enjoined from playing Santa Claus to Mrs. Pinkussohn by giving her a substantial Christmas present.

Moraw is said to have evaded service until after Christmas. Mrs. Moraw told Judge Williams that she believed her husband had made the rift. Mrs. Pinkussohn was enjoined from accepting the present, having been named a co-defendant in the divorce bill.

Cuts Wife's Allowance.

Attorneys Benjamin B. Davis and Nicholas A. Socrates, representing Mrs. Moraw, told the court that Moraw cut his wife's allowance from $100 a week to $25 in order to further his relations with Mrs. Pinkussohn by making more elaborate gifts. With the granting of an order to allow an accountant's examination, the other bills were filed immediately. They are the first of their kind to be brought in Cook county.

Mrs. Root Sues for a Divorce from Architect

John W. Root, noted architect of the firm of Holabird & Root, was sued for divorce yesterday. Hs wife, the former Ellen Dudley, charges cruelty. She asks for temporary alimony and for custody of their daughter, Denyse.

Attorney Harold S. Walters filed the bill for Mrs. Root, but refused to discuss its contents. It was learned, however, that the couple separated only three days ago. They had recently been living at the Lake Shore Drive hotel.

The Roots have been married 15 years. Mr. Root is the son of John W. Root, chief architect for the Columbian exposition. He was educated in Switzerland and Paris and has won numerous prizes in architectural competition. Before her marriage Mrs. Root was prominent in amateur theatricals, and she has been in the Goodman theater plays in recent years. She is the daughter of the late Peter Dudley, once a well known Chicago society man. Most of her youth was spent in Paris.

Mrs. Root's bill, filed in Superior court, describes her husband as a man of violent temper, addicted to profanity, and asserts he is an unfit custodian for their child, who is 12 years old. Once, while intoxicated, the bill recites, Mr. Root struck her, inciting her to flee their home in terror. His threats prevailed upon her to return, she avers.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Jan. 13.—Dr. Carnes, chief quarantine officer of the Virgin Islands, who arrived here yesterday by plane from St. Thomas, said today that as the plane passed the French island of Martinique at a height of 5,000 feet it entered a foglike cloud of ashes and dust mingled with sulphurous steam. Through breaks in the cloud could be glimpsed silent villages and abandoned cocoa estates in the northern area.

It is reported here that the authorities have ordered the evacuation of the island, profiting from experiences in the 1902 eruption when 40,000 perished. Refugees who arrived here in coastal sloops say all public and private entertainments have been forbidden, and the customary February fêtes are expected to be banned.

Experts, hurriedly summoned here by the government, predict a disaster similar to the cataclysm in 1902, when Mounts Pelee, St. Vincent and Soufrière vomited simultaneously. The glow of Thursday's eruption was visible here.

JUDGE ASSAILS BIBBERS WHO USE BOY TO TOTE RUM

The inadvisibility of sending a boy to do a man's work was stressed yesterday by Judge Francis B. Allegretti in the Boys court when he discharged William Kippling, 19 years old, 4229 North Paulina street, and Edgar Milen, 26 years old, 1201 Ainslie street, who were charged with possessing liquor. Kippling and Milen, waiters ta the Saddle and Cycle club, at Sheridan road and Foster avenue, testified that they were getting the whisky found in their possession for members of the club and did not know what the package contained.

"They are fine fellows up at the Saddle and Cycle club," the judge said, "but they shouldn't send a boy out to get their liquor. Anybody who uses a boy to distribute liquor had better keep out of this court."

Kippling and Milen were arrested Sunday night by the Town Hall police when they were caught loading a case of whisky into an automobile in front of 4843 Winthrop avenue.

ALDERMEN RIDE OVER APPEALS FOR MORE CASH

Stand Pat on Trims of Minor Bureaus.

Schools, Too

While the city council was blocking Mayor Thompson's attempt to pass an overloaded budget, the board of education wrangled far into the night on adopting a budget which would be, roughly, $6,000,000 over the revenues. It will resume its efforts this afternoon.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Mayor Thompson was given one blow after another in the budget fight last night in the council chamber and was soundly whipped.

His floor leader, Ald. Oscar F. Nelson, fought vigorously and at times fiercely to appropriate $4,625,000 more than the estimated revenue. In that effort he lost repeatedly and decisively.

After drubbing the mayor, the council graciously recessed the meeting until Saturday morning to give him an opportunity to submit a second veto. The mayor declined to comment orally. Apparently peeved, he added: "I'll speak in a message."

In the stirring night session of the council the opposition, led by Ald. John S. Clark, stood for a balanced budget. This opposition, embracing a clear majority of the aldermen, declined to take a further chance of offending the taxpayers. That idea has gained in popularity as the battle of the week progressed.

Leave Him, One by One.

When Mayor Thompson submitted his veto of $37,342,460 of the $55,272,265 corporate budget, in order to boost the allowance for police, fire, health, street cleaning and street lighting $4,625,000, he mustered 19 votes to sustain his veto. Two days later he dropped two votes when Ald. Landmesser and Cepak switched to the majority.

Last night the mayor lost two more councilmen, when Ald. Toman and Ringa jumped over to the opposition on the first roll call. Later Ald. Coyle slid away from the mayor and still later Ald. O'Toole turned his back on his honor. In fact, O'Toole voted with the mayor only on police appropriations.

Vote Generally Two to One.

The first test on the police appropriation showed the balanced budget advocates had 31 votes and the opposition 16. On the second police roll call the vote was 32 to 15, or within one and a third votes of enough to override the mayor's veto. On the fire department the vote was 31 to 14; on the bureau of streets it was 30 to 16, and on the departments of health and electricity the vote was 29 to 17. On the amended budget as a whole the vote was 31 to 15.

The amended budget eliminated $270,000 from the "less essential" departments and transferred it to the major services. Of this total $84,240 was obtained by cutting out various automobile maintenance, including the cars of the aldermen, $100,000 was trimmed from the law department, $14,000 from the zoning board, $23,500 from the bureau of public welfare, $30,000 from the department of public service, and $18,260 in job lots of not more than $3,000 each from eight other departments.

Give to Essential Services.

This $270,000 was distributed as follows: $84,500 added to the police allowance, $41,000 to the firemen, $43,500 to the street lighting, $37,800 to the health department, and $63,300 to the street cleaning bureau.

So when the distribution was completed the contest was between the amended budget as applied to these five departments and the appropriations proposed by Nelson, which were the appropriations of 1929, and which boosted the total budget $4,625,000. As illustrative, the police allowance by the majority is $1,418,500 lower than the one urged by Nelson and other administration followers, even after $84,500 had been added.

Hope for More Cash.

The council has heretofore ordered the police and fire departments to retain the men now in the service. The money appropriated is insufficient to do that for the entire year. The majority hope to find enough cash during the coming months to make good the deficiency. In response to that expressed hope Ald. Nelson protested that "it is uncertain." However, the

The budget as amended totals $55,272,205, which is approximately $1,790,000 more than the estimated revenue. By practice it has been found that there is always some salvage in city appropriations and Ald. Clark asserts that this budget "will pay out."

As it stands, it is based on the estimated revenues and does not take into account the present $13,500,000 deficit. No provision is made in this budget for paying any part of that sum and only a trifling amount of the $6,000,000 standing in judgments against the city.

Nelson Brings Up Deficit.

Ald. Nelson at the height of his oratorical outburst last night said "the economy" budget put through "forgets all about the $13,500,000 deficit."

"It reminds me of the Cook county bunk budget," he went on. "That budget, which claims to be within the county's revenue, estimated the county treasurer's 1930 income at $5,000,000, while Mr. Harding says his office cannot possibly earn more than $2,500,000. It estimates the county clerk's revenue at $900,000, while it has never been over $400,000.

"The county board has appropriated $600,000 for jurors' fees, while the county for this service last year spent $1,100,000. On top of all that phoney budget making, the county reduced salaries one-sixth, appropriating for only 10 months, instead of 12.

"There are political reasons for the refusal here to appropriate for the needs of the highly essential departments. It kids the people on appropriations for public safety."

McDonough Twits Nelson.

"You and the mayor are anxious about certain departments," said Ald. McDonough. "Where are you going to get the money?"

"The same place we will get the money to pay the $13,500,000 deficit," said Nelson. "We will sell some land, get some revenue from the Illinois Tunnel company and the telephone company."

"Show me where you are going to get $20,000,000 from those sources," demanded McDonough.

"Are you for the police and firemen?" asked Nelson.

"I am for them more than you are," retorted McDonough. "I was for the police and firemen in the committee and I did not hear you speaking for them there."

"I did, I did!" yelled Nelson.

The council unanimously adopted a resolution of Ald. Moran requesting the assessing bodies to increase the valuations on loop properties $300,000,000, which it was claimed the revaluation has reduced those properties.

Talk of Another Veto.

When the opposition to the mayor had clearly demonstrated its power by readopting the amended budget, the question of another veto was put up to the mayor.

Some of his loud-talking friends proclaimed from the house tops that the mayor will again express his disapproval "because a principle is involved." Others were inclined to believe that a second veto would menace the validity of a tax levy and perhaps make the tax anticipation warrants unsaleable. Therefore they predicted that the mayor would swallow his medicine "after making a vigorous protest," as one phrased it.

It is said that the mayor exerted every ounce of pressure possible to gain a following. Corporation Counsel Ettelson gave an opinion that it is illegal for the council to amend the appropriation ordinance under the conditions which prevailed. However, at a conference yesterday morning William H. Sexton, former corporation counsel, and Silas H. Strawn gave it as their opinion that the council has the power to amend the budget, as they did.

Mr. Strawn at this conference warned Ald. Clark, who was present, that an overloaded budget would make the tax anticipation warrants "unmarketable."

Mayor Predicts Calamities.

To the city council at the afternoon session Mayor Thompson submitted written statements from several departments predicting dire results for the city if the added $4,625,000 were denied him. Following are summaries of these departmental appeals:

Boiler inspection—Chief Inspector Nye protested against curtailment of auto maintenance. This he said "will mean that many high pressure boilers, tanks and refrigerating plants cannot be inspected, resulting in menace to lives and property."

Public works—Commissioner Wolfe wrote that the appropriation allowance will permit garbage collection every four weeks in the winter and every two weeks in the summer, and the removal of ashes and rubbish every four weeks in the winter and every eight weeks in the summer. He asserts that no funds have been set aside for snow removal, street sweeping and flushing. Five playgrounds must be closed and two others ready for service cannot be opened. Also a new public bath and community center cannot be opened, four or five baths must be closed and no bathing beaches can be opened. All tree trimming work must be suspended.

Street lighting—Commissioner Kennedy said that the appropriation for electric current will be exhausted by July 1 and "the council cannot expect me to voucher any bills thereafter without incurring a criminal liability." Mr. Kennedy shows that his street lighting force has been trimmed "to a point where efficient service cannot be given." He adds that essential employés of fire alarm and police signal have been laid off, "causing a further hazard to life and property."

Health—Commissioner Kegel said that the "program to save 5,000 children from diphtheria and to prevent 600 deaths from this disease cannot be carried on. The equivalent of two infant welfare stations will be closed, and the 100,000 visits to mothers to teach them how to care for infants will be discontinued. The commissioner says that "it looks as if Chicago is in for an unusual prevalance of diphtheria." He says that "the department has a difficult task to prevent cerebrospinal meningitis becoming epidemic"; and asserts that "a constant fight must be waged to keep smallpox from becoming prevalent." He quotes certain authorities as predicting an epidemic of influenza in 1930. Calling any curtailment a "serious and fatal mistake," the commissioner warns of perils from epidemics of smallpox, typhoid fever, epidemic meningitis, and infantile paralysis. Chicago would cease to be a safe place where visitors might come, and consumers of products of the industries of Chicago would rightfully hesitate to accept these products from a city where a serious epidemic condition existed.

Municipal court—Clerk James Kearns asked that the council obey the order of the judges and appropriate $125,740 for court clerks which had been eliminated. Mr. Kearns says he cannot get along without them, and will bring suit to obtain them, unless the council acts favorably.

School Board Toils Far Into Night Trying to Pass Budget; take it up again today

After many hours of night work behind closed doors the school board disbanded at 2 o'clock this morning, to meet again this afternoon for passage of the budget.

When the board members first met for the night session they announced their intention of staying until the budget had been passed, but when the late hour arrived and the auditing department was still wrestling with the figures it was decided to postpone action until afternoon.

It appeared from statements of members leaving the closed session that the only results of the burning of the midnight oil had been to add some $3,400,000 of expenses to a budget already overloaded to the extent of $6,500,000 in excess of anticipated revenues.

At the same time, President Caldwell was repeating his statements that the banks would refuse to buy the board's tax anticipation warrants and that the schools soon would be closed.

Budget Far Above Revenue.

Although accurate figures on the budget were not available, it was estimated that its items will aggregate $97,000,000, which is the largest budget in the schools' history and includes an $8,000,000 deficit left over from last year. Of this amount roughly $60,500,000 will be appropriated from the educational fund, and this sum is $6,500,000 in excess of the $54,000,000 estimated receipts for this fund for the coming year.

The trustees, including appointees from the Dever régime, made no attempt to make a budget within the revenue, adopting the theory that the money to gap the deficit will be forthcoming from somewhere, probably through special legislative relief.

Night's Increases $3,400,000.

On top of this action the board decided to appropriate all revenue available from the building fund and added $2,000,000 to this item, bringing a neat night's work up to increases in the total budget of $3,400,000.

Mrs. William S. Hefferan, trustee appointed by the late Mayor Dever, was claiming credit for winning the fight to put back in the educational fund appropriation the $600,000 which had previously been lopped off. She said Trustee James Mullenbach, her Dever colleague, and Trustee John E. English had aided her in the battle to see that the $600,000 more was spent, and naïvely added that "it hadn't been much of a battle to make the other members see the light."

Of this $600,000 item $250,000 was put back in the repairs fund, and the rest was for retaining 250 jobholders, including 200 janitors and engineers, 23 truant officers, 16 advisers to the vocational guidance bureau, and 8 visiting teachers. These jobs had been declared nonessential.

Fears Bankers Won't Buy.

President Caldwell stated that the school system probably would be shut down within a fortnight, even though the budget is passed on time. Bankers and investment houses will refuse to buy the school board's tax anticipation warrants, he said, because of widespread publicity which has injured the board's credit.

Other trustees, including Lewis E. Myers, a new member, declared they were confident that with the passage of the budget, even though it exceeds the anticipated revenue, the banks will buy the warrants.

"When we lay out the warrants," Mr. Myers said, "the banks will have to provide the funds. It is unthinkable that our schools will be forced to close because of a strained financial situation."

Caldwell Blames Strawn.

Mr. Caldwell's declaration that the school system was bankrupt, and that it would be shut down in a matter of weeks unless extraordinary relief was obtained, directed criticism at Attorney Silas H. Strawn, chairman of the citizens' "rescue" committee which has been considering the financial plight of all the county's taxing bodies.

Publicity put out by Mr. Strawn and the committee has given the school system a black eye the country over, and bankers now refuse to give credit, Caldwell said. His last hopes, for credit from the Central Trust company or from Halsey, Stuart & Co., have crashed with refusals from those institutions, he declared.

Strawn Replies to Critics.

To this Mr. Strawn replied that the board members could not escape responsibility for their desperate condition by trying to blame outsiders. If the condition had been properly foreseen, as it should have been many months ago, steps could have been taken to abridge school activities and effect drastic economies so as to prevent the present crisis, Mr. Strawn said.

Even now, Mr. Strawn added, if the board would present a budget within its available revenue, even at the cost of halting certain activities of the schools, there would be no doubt of the banks granting loans on the tax warrants. Better, said Mr. Strawn, to operate the schools on a reduced efficiency basis than to close them altogether.

"If the school board has got into such a financial condition that its tax anticipation warrants are not acceptable to bankers and investors, it is most unfortunate," Mr. Strawn said. "It is unthinkable that the schools should be closed, and while I have no independent knowledge of the budget before the board, I am sure that with wise management such a step will never be necessary. If they are closed, however, the public surely would come to understand the desperate straits to which the governmental bodies of Cook county have come.

Holds Board to Blame.

"I do not propose to enter a public dispute with President Caldwell, who is quoted as blaming me and the committee of which I am a member for the board's financial difficulties. But the board created this condition itself. It seems to me that it should have seen this situation coming many months ago, and in time to effect drastic reductions in the expenses of the schools.

"Instead of plunging blindly along, constantly increasing its expenses, the school board might have adopted a policy of economy and retrenchment, and saved itself this calamity for which it cannot escape the blame.

Not Too Late Yet.

"Even at this late day, while Mr. Caldwell is talking of closing the schools, it would seem that the better business method would be to bring their budget within the available revenue. I am informed that the board's budget is some $6,000,000 in excess of estimated revenues. Would it not be better to slash the budget to that extent, even it meant giving up temporarily some of the activities of the schools, or reducing the number of teachers per pupil, than to close the schools entirely?

"I have never advertised to any one the financial condition of the school board, and I have never advised any banks or bankers not to buy their tax warrants. I have not been asked for such advice. If the tax warrants are unsalable it is because of the mismanagement of the school board.

"I am of the opinion, however, that if the current budget of the school board was brought strictly within the available revenue, the board would have no difficulty whatever in disposing of its warrants."

Crowd Awaits Action.

While the board members were sitting in closed session discussing the situation and occasionally receiving reports from the auditing department, a crowd of 75 interested citizens sat in the board rooms.

These, including representatives of the teachers' organizations, of the principals' club, and labor union agents, stood ready to protest against a $500,000 cut in plaint maintenance which will result in the lopping off of many jobs.

Board Pares Total Value to $299,422,437.

The final assessment figures for 1928 for the Lake View township were released yesterday by the board of review as property owners from country town districts stormed the offices of the board of assessors, demanding reduction of their valuations as fixed under the reassessment. The board of review cut the assessors' figures for Lake View by $4,666,586.

The assessors set the total value of Lake View property at $304,089,023. This figure was reduced by the board of review to $299,422,437. In 1927 the reviewers slashed the assessors' figure by $36,158,338. In that year assessors gave a valuation of $412,603,508.

Lake View is the second township to be completed by the board of review. The first was Rogers Park. In that district the reviewers cut the assessors' valuation of $84,718,933 to $83,502,983, after hearing taxpayers' complaints. The reviewers are now hearing complaints on property in the Hyde Park township.

Threaten Financial Trouble.

The reductions threaten to make the financial difficulties of the local governments more acute because collections will be proportionately smaller.

Taxpayers of Barrington, Elk Grove, Niles, Orland, Northfield, and Palatine visited the assessor's office to compare old and new tax bills. Many filed complaints against increases in valuations.

A demonstration against increased valuations in Cicero was staged by 100 property owners, headed by Franz Houcek, local assessor; Joseph Lustfield, town attorney; and Frank Klimes, town trustee. They claimed to represent 2,000 taxpayers of the suburb. The objectors carried flags and hooted at the county assessors.

The 1927 valuation of Cicero property was $17,469,474. Under the reassessment it has been boosted to approximately $46,000,062. The assessors agreed to extend for one week the period for filing complaints. Critics of the assessors' figures predicted that 15,000 complaints would be filed.

Discuss Tax Problems.

Acting State's Attorney John E. Northup spent several hours yesterday with William H. Malone, chairman of the state tax commission, which ordered the reassessment, and George O. Fairweather, chairman of the joint committee on real estate valuation. The tax problem was the subject of the meeting.

"The tax situation is in a terrible condition," said Mr. Northup. "Why Malone and Fairweather visited me I am not at liberty to discuss at this time. I think they will issue a statement soon."

The prosecutor said he referred to Malone and Fairweather several complaints of alleged inequalities of taxes which had been cited in complaints made to his office. These will be investigated.

Child Welfare Criticisms Stir Cermak to Hot Retort

Judge Mary E. Bartelme's assertions concerning the critical condition of Cook county's child welfare activities, due to the county board's financial distress, brought an indignant reply yesterday from President Cermak of the county board. He intimated that the Juvenile court judge was unjust to him.

"That work has been my baby," Mr. Cermak declared heatedly. "I was the first to sponsor it. It started back in 1924, when I got them an appropriation of $18,000, and I've pulled for it ever since. Each year the appropriations have been getting larger and larger, until last year they amounted to $350,000.

"These people [child welfare agencies] came down to see me some time ago about this year's appropriation, and I promised them $250,000, even before the budget was made out. And this is what I get for it—they give out stories like this, taking the position that the county board is refusing funds and sending crippled and dependent children back into misery and broken homes."

Judge Bartelme considered the failure of the child placing agencies to secure the $350,000 asked for in the 1930 budget so serious a matter that she called it the gravest crisis she had experienced in her career on the bench. Yesterday she appealed to interested citizens to form a committee to find a solution.

"Crippled children will be forced back into the tenements whence they came," she said. "Highly nervous boys and girls whom science is slowly and painstakingly building into healthy, useful citizens must return to unhappy households. Children deserted by their parents are heading for the wreckage from which they were rescued. Overcrowded institutions must increase their congestion, taking in boys and girls whose only hope in their afflicted condition is the care of a foster mother in a private home.

"Let me make it clear that the Juvenile court deals with more than just delinquent children. Dependent children form one of the most important branches of the work. We have at present more than 1,000 in foster homes, under the auspices of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, the Catholic Home Finding bureau, Evangelical Lutheran Home Finding society, Jewish Home Finding society, and the joint service bureau."

NEW ZEALAND SENDS CRUISER TO CURB SAMOA

APIA, Western Samoa, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The New Zealand government took measures today to end by force of arms the long resistance of Samoan natives to its authority. Col. S. S. Allen, the administrator, in accordance with the order in council adopted at Wellington Saturday, issued a proclamation today declaring the Mau (League of Samoan Natives) a seditious organization, and took steps to suppress it.

Summoned from New Zealand in consequence of a fight Dec. 28 in which eight natives and one white constable were killed, the cruiser Dunedin arrived yesterday. She brought police reinforcements to sustain the administrator's authority.

Parties landed from the warship today under orders to proceed westward to Saleimoa, eleven miles from Apia, where the majority of the Mau supporters were believed to be located. Police posts at Apia, Leulumoega, and Mulipanua have been reinforced by marines and a military radio post established at Mulipanua.

COUNTY IS SEEKING BUYER FOR $750,000 IN TAX WARRANTS

County Treasurer Harding, after holding a conference with President Cermak of the county board and other county officials, announced yesterday that he would seek a purchaser for $750,000 worth of county tax anticipation warrants with which to meet overdue pay rolls, mothers' pensions, and jurors' warrants.

At the same time the county board, having received an opinion from the law firm of Chapman & Cutler that the county warrants were legally salable, passed a resolution directing the controller to advertise for bids on the sale of $7,000,000 worth of warrants for the general expenses of the county.

The warrants will yield 6 per cent interest and are payable after July 1, 1931. The controller was instructed to notify all banks of the proposed sale, as well as to advertise it in the newspapers. Bids will be opened at a special meeting next Friday.

O'BRIEN WIDOW KEEPS OFF STAND IN MURDER TRIAL

CRIMINAL COURT.

Charles W. Fell, obtaining money by false pretenses, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell and fined $100 and costs by Judge William N. Gemmill.

Aaron Rich, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Otto Kerner.

Thomas Rowan, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell by Judge Peter Schoemaker.

Whether the Dorr murder trial will ever get a theory voiced by Shakespeare, that no matter how strongly love and ambition be shared by two persons who plot a crime, love cannot survive the crime, will be seen today when Samuel Howard Dorr takes the stand in his own defense.

Like Lady Macbeth and her husband fell out with each other after they murdered to gain the throne. She despised him for a weakling who left the burden of it to her, and he hated her for getting him into the plot. Just so, there seems to be little love lost between Genevieve O'Brien and Dorr, who is on trial for murder of her husband, William O'Brien.

Refuses to Testify.

Genevieve had her chance yesterday to say a word in defense of Dorr, to do what she could to save him from the death penalty. She refused the chance, though, declining to testify when called as a court's witness in the court of Judge Harry B. Miller, where Dorr is on trial. Her trial will follow his.

Whether Dorr will put the blame for the shooting of O'Brien on her will be seen when he takes the witness stand today.

"Dorr probably will be the first witness, and probably will be on the stand throughout the day," said Barrett O'Hara, who with Arthur Carlin is conducting the defense. "All I can say now is that any shots he fired were accidental, as his story will show. Perhaps self-defense will figure in his story, perhaps accident—and perhaps he didn't do the shooting."

"He is perfectly calm and was most confident when the state closed its case."

Call for Mrs. O'Brien.

As a dramatic climax to six days of testimony which had been followed closely by the crowds in the courtroom—women who preferred a murder trial to an afternoon bridge party and men who left their business to stand in line for hours before they were admitted—Assistant State's Attorneys Harry Ditchburne and Walker Butler late yesterday moved that Mrs. O'Brien be brought into the courtroom as the court's witness. The matter had been thrashed out among attorneys and the court in the judge's chambers.

"Mr. Sheriff, bring in Genevieve O'Brien," Judge Miller said loudly. A murmur swept over the courtroom, necks craned, and bailiffs rapped for order. The door nearest the jury box opened and Genevieve O'Brien, leaning on the arm of a bailiff, came in.

She was dressed for the occasion in a new dress of navy blue georgette crêpe, a new hat, new shoes and new stockings, selected and purchased for her by the wife of her attorney, Samuel Hoffman. Her red hair was dressed becomingly.

Her black sealskin coat, completing her costume, accentuated her pallid appearance. Her fingers twisted a handkerchief nervously. Dorr glared at her, unmoved. Mrs. Dorr, in her customary place in the front row of spectators, bowed her head. Miss Margaret Dorr, 21 year old sister of the defendant, sitting beside Mrs. Dorr, averted her head.

"You are Genevieve O'Brien?" Judge Miller asked gently, peering down at her.

Advised Not to Testify.

Charles S. Dougherty, who with Mr. Hoffman, is dfending her, then addressed the court, saying he had told her of her constitutional rights and had advised her not to testify for state or defense, and asked the court to warn her of her rights.

"Genevieve O'Brien," Judge Miller said, "you have been indicted for murder. Under the constitution you do not need to take the witness stand and become a witness unless you so desire. Do you desire to become a witness?"

"No, your honor," she said in a small voice.

"You decline to testify in this case, do you?" the court asked.

"I do," she said, her voice a little louder.

"What is your reason for not wishing to become a witness?" Judge Miller asked.

"I am indicted for murder and I am standing on my constitutional rights," she said, much as if she were reciting a piece learned by heart.

Mrs. O'Brien was taken out. Before closing its case the state introduced as exhibits the bullet found in a pool of blood on the landing of the O'Brien flat at 7328 South Maplewood avenue, said by prosecutors to have been the fatal bullet, and photos of blood stains on the wall of the landing.

Charge Extortion

New York, Jan. 13.—[Special.]—The grand jury today heard evidence in the $170,000 extortion case which involves Nathan Amster, financier, as complainant, and Mrs. Olga Edwards, dancer, who alleges Amster is the father of her 6 year old son, as defendant. Amster charges that Mrs. Edwards relieved him of almost $100,000 by various threats over a period of seven years.

Mrs. Edwards was accompanied by her son and arrived at the Criminal courts building shortly after Amster and the four witnesses he brought along. While there the child saw Amster and shouted "Hello, daddy!" Both complainant and defendant are expected to take the stand in the course of the trial. The hearing before the grand jury was not concluded today and more evidence will be presented tomorrow.

MASSACRE CLEW NEARLY CAUSES NEW MASSACRE

But It Gives Chief Egan a Nice, Long Trip.

It took Assistant Chief of Detectives John Egan just two hours yesterday to find out that the solution of the Moran gang massacre does not lie in Charleston, W. Va. He telephoned his chief, John Stege, from Charleston at 5 p. m.

Stege—"Bringing the prisoner back with you?"

What Egan Found.

Egan—"He ought to be brought back and charged with perjury and contempt of the Chicago police department. But I guess I'll let him stay in Charleston. He's facing a ten year stretch here for robbery."

Egan again—"I got here at 3 o'clock. The prosecutor's chief investigator, Dale G. Casto, met me at the train and hustled me over to the courthouse to meet his boss, C. Blackburn Watts."

Stege—"I know. They're the fellows that wired me last week. Said they had the case cinched and told me to send a man down with a certified check for $20,000 for reward. What have they got?"

Egan—"Well, they weren't pressing me about the reward. They said they thought Chicago's credit was good for $20,000. So we went over to the county jail. There was a bald headed fellow about 40 years old in the cell. Said his name was Robert Ray and that he used to live at 319 North Clark street, Chicago."

Ha! Here's a Clew.

Egan—"The fellow tells me he and two other fellows did the massacre with a machine gun they found out in Cicero while they were hoisting beer."

Stege—"Could he describe the garage?"

Egan—"It wasn't a garage, he said, but a stable. At least, he claimed they kept horses there. He described the place as about three blocks north of the river."

Stege—"But the massacre was at 2122 North Clark street. That's at least twenty blocks north of the river." And there are no horses kept there; it's a garage for motor trucks.

Egan—"Don't I know it? He claimed that after they put twenty holes in each of the seven Moran men he and his pals skipped to Mexico. His pals were killed down there fighting with the revolutionists."

Stege—"Better stick around there a few days and check up all angles."

Egan—"Listen, chief, I'm catching the first train for Chicago. If I stay here another day I'll lose my temper and there's liable to be a massacre right here in Charleston."

With the West Virginia item out of the way, Stege turned his attention last night to reports from Centralia, Wash., that Fred Burke, bank robber, slayer of a policeman at St. Joseph, Mich., and a suspect in the massacre, has been seen there Sunday.

HIGH COURT REFUSES TO CONSIDER PAIR OF PROHIBITION CASES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—(AP)—While prohibition sprang to the fore on both sides of the capitol today, the Supreme court kept its hands off the subject and refused to consider two prohibition cases.

The court issued orders in a number of cases, but handed down no decisions.

It refused to permit Ralph B. Bradford of Gary, Ind., to bring a $100,000 libel suit against Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican floor leader, and others, in his connection with the investigation of alleged crime conditions in Lake county, Indiana.

Federal District Judge Bourquin of Montana was ordered to revoke action he had taken in the protest of the Northern Pacific and other railroads against rates in Montana on petroleum and its products.

The suit brought by Kentucky to compel Indiana to carry out its part of a contract for the construction of a bridge across the Ohio river at Evansville, Ind., was set for hearing on March 3.

OSLO, Norway, Jan. 13.—King Haakon VII. opened the storthing today. Among the bills to be presented at the new session will be women's right to hold official positions.

OUST HOPKINS AS CLEVELAND CITY MANAGER

Cleveland, O., Jan. 13.—(AP)—William R. Hopkins, city manager of Cleveland for the last six years, was removed from office tonight by a 14 to 11 vote of city council on an ouster motion presented by a Democratic member. The vote followed nearly three hours of debate before a crowd of 1,000 citizens in the galleries. Nearly 4,000 more persons packed the corridors of city hall.

A detail of 40 police struggled to keep the crowd in order.

Hopkins at the meeting tonight announced he will demand a public hearing and ask that written charges be filed against him.

LOSES $90 TO ROBBERS.

Harold Gran, 22 years old, 3321 Jackson boulevard, was robbed of $90 by two armed men riding in a sedan in front of 805 South Lombard avenue, Oak Park, last night.

HOOVER GIVES CONGRESS TASK OF ENFORCEMENT

Treasury Mellon. The President, his cabinet members, and the law enforcement commission, all joined in support of an extensive program for legislation.

The first of the Wickersham commission reports was described as a preliminary report and was dated Nov. 21. It was submitted to the President while he was drafting his annual message to congress and furnished the basis of his general recommendation in that message early in December for transfer of prohibition enforcement except as to issuance of permits for industrial alcohol and legalized beverages from the treasury to the department of justice, relief of congestion in the federal courts by modifying and simplifying procedure for dealing with petty prosecutions, codification of laws relating to prohibition, and a unification of various services engaged in the prevention of smuggling into one border patrol under the coast guard.

Draft of Proposed Bills.

While this preliminary report has been in the hands of the President for nearly two months, it was made public for the first time today. A supplemental report of the commission, also made public for the first time today, amplifies the recommendations of the preliminary report, includes drafts of proposed bills and discusses constitutional questions which have arisen in connection with the proposals.

Attorney General Mitchell's statement, forwarded by the President to congress with the Wickersham commission's reports, supports its recommendations, particularly as to the enlargement of powers and duties of United States commissioners and the transfer of prohibition enforcement to the department of justice.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's statement consisted of a recommendation for creation of a unified border patrol under the coast guard.

Both Houses Read Hoover Letter.

The President's letter of transmittal was read in both houses of congress. The accompanying documents were not read, but were referred to the committees which will handle the proposed legislation. In the senate the recommendations were referred to the judiciary committee. In the house they were referred to six different committees, each of which has jurisdiction over some government agency or subject affected. These six committees were those on judiciary, expenditures in executive departments, ways and means, interstate commerce, immigration, and District of Columbia.

The bills will be handled chiefly, it is expected, by the judiciary committee, which will deal with the amendments to prohibition laws and provisions affecting judicial procedure, and the committee on expenditures in executive departments, which will deal with transfers of bureaus from one department to another.

Introduce Bill Today.

Representative William Williamson [Rep., S. D.], chairman of the committee on expenditures in the executive departments, made public the draft of the administration bill for the transfer of prohibition enforcement from the treasury to the department of justice which he will introduce tomorrow in the house.

The bill was worked out jointly by officials of the department of justice and the treasury department and has the approval of the Wickersham commission. Mr. Williamson said that hearings would be arranged within a week or two.

James M. Doran, present commissioner of prohibition, would remain in the treasury as commissioner of narcotics and industrial alcohol under the terms of the bill, as it provides that "the commissioner of prohibition in the treasury department shall hereafter" have that title. The new bureau of prohibition in the department of justice will be headed by a director of prohibition, to be appointed by the attorney general at a salary of probably $9,000. Attorneys in the bureau are removed from the operation of civil service laws.

Duties imposed upon the attorney general under the bill include investigation of violations of the national prohibition act, apprehension and prosecution of offenders, making of seizures and enforcement of forfeitures.

The attorney general and the secretary of the treasury are given joint control over regulations for the issuance of permits for industrial alcohol. While issuance of permits will be directly under the narcotics and industrial alcohol bureau of the treasury, the attorney general may pass upon applications when he desires to do so. This feature probably will be opposed by trade organizations which were largely responsible for keeping the industrial alcohol end of prohibition enforcement in the treasury.

Program Not Prepared.

Neither Representative George S. Graham [Rep., Pa.], chairman of the house judiciary committee, nor Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.], chairman of the senate judiciary committee, was ready to announce a program for consideration of the other bills.

It was emphasized, both in President Hoover's message and in the reports of the Wickersham commission, that the present recommendations are merely preliminary to a more extensive program to be presented by the commission later. Today's recommendations were designed to facilitate enforcement of present laws, the President asserting in his message that "while some sections of the American people may disagree upon the merits of some of the questions involved, every responsible citizen supports the fundamental principle that the law of the land must be enforced."

Other problems yet to be dealt with by the commission as outlined by the President include the causes of crime, the character of criminal laws, the benefits and liabilities that flow from them, the abuses which arise under them, the method by which enforcement and judicial personnel is secured, the judicial procedure, the respective responsibility of the federal and state governments to these problems.

The President called particular attention to the plan of the Wickershaw commission for giving court commissioners enlarged powers in minor criminal cases.

The President said that, after exhaustive examination of the subject, the law enforcement commission and officials of the department of justice and the treasury department united in the conclusion "that 'ncreasing enactment of federal criminal laws over the last twenty years, as to which violation of the prohibition laws comprises rather more than one-half of the total arrests, has finally culminated in a burden upon the federal courts of a character for which they are ill designed, and in many cases entirely beyond their capacity."

The result is, he said, "to delay civil changes mentioned above will contribcauses and, even more important, the defeat of both justice and law enforcement." Moreover, he added, "experience shows division of authority, responsibility and lack of fundamental organization in federal enforcement agencies ofttimes results in ineffective action."

Sees Abuses Corrected.

The President's statement, in commenting on the proposal for giving court examiners power to try minor cases, says the plan has been concurred in, as to its constitutionality, by the eminent jurists upon the commission and others whose advice they have sought. The President then says:

"I believe the administrative ute to cure many abuses. Beyond these immediate questions are others which reach deeply into the whole question of the growth of crime and the enforcement of the laws. The causes of crime, the character of criminal laws, the benefits and liabilities that flow from them, the abuses which arise under them, the method by which enforcement and judicial personnel is secured, the judicial procedure, the respective responsibility of the federal and state governments to these problems, all require furthermost exhaustive consideration and investigation, which will require time and earnest research as to the facts and forces in action before sound opinions can be arrived at upon them."

CONGRESS GETS PRESIDENT HOOVER'S LAW ENFORCEMENT REPORT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Reserving judgment on its ultimate prohibition conclusions, the law enforcement commission, of which George W. Wickersham is chairman—in a preliminary report sent to congress today—recommended that the national prohibition law be immediately strengthened in the interest of promoting observance of and respect for all law.

G. W. WICKERSHAM [P. & A. Photo.]

Its four major recommendations are:

Unification of enforcement under the department of justice.

Machinery for speeding up prohibition cases in the federal court.

Codification of all statutes relating to prohibition.

"Ever since the organization of this commission on May 28, 1929, it has been giving careful consideration, among other things, to the question of the observance and enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and the national prohibition act. The problems presented have been numerous and difficult.

"It was urged upon us from certain sources that we proceed at once to hold public hearings on this subject. But we conceived it to be more useful to make a careful study of the whole question, securing information from the responsible officers of government and from printed reports, as well as from hearings before committees of congress, before embarking upon public hearings.

SCOPE OF PROBLEM

"While we are not ready to make a final report on the subject, we have reached certain conclusions which we are transmitting to you with this communication. The extent and complexity of the problem perhaps may be strikingly presented by reference to a few outstanding facts.

As to observance: It is impossible wholly to set off observance of the prohibition act from the large question of the views and habits of the American people with respect to private judgment as to statutes and regulations affecting their conduct.

"To reach conclusions of any value, we must go into deep questions of public opinion and the criminal law. We must look into the several factors in the attitude of the people, both generally and in particular localities, toward laws in general and toward specific regulations. We must note the attitude of the pioneer toward such things.

"We must bear in mind the Puritan's objection to administration, the Wrig tradition of a 'right of revolution,' the conception of natural rights, classical in our policy; the democratic tradition of individual participation in sovereignty, the attitude of the business world toward local regulation of enterprise, the clash of organized interests and opinions in a diversified community, and the divergences of attitude in different sections of the country and as between different groups in the same locality.

"We must not forget the many historical examples of large scale public disregard of laws in our past. To give proper weight to these things, in connection with the social and economic effort of the prohibition law, is not a matter of a few months.

ENFORCEMENT

"As to enforcement, there are no reliable figures to show the size of the problem. But the reported arrest in the last fiscal year of upwards of 80,000 persons from every part of continental United States indicates a staggering number of what might be called focal points of infection. To these must be added the points of possible contact from without along 3,700 miles of land boundaries, substantially 3,000 miles of frontage on the great lakes and connecting rivers [excluding Lake Michigan], and almost 12,000 miles of Atlantic, gulf, and Pacific shore line. Thus there are about 18,700 miles of mainland of the continental United States at every point of which infection is possible.

"There are no satisfactory estimates of the number of roads into the United States from Mexico and Canada. The number of smuggling roads from Canada is reported as at least 1,000 and on the Mexican border there are entrances into the United States at most points along a boundary of 1,744 miles.

"To deal with an enforcement problem of this size and spread the federal government can draw only on a portion of the personnel of three federal services, whose staffs aggregate about 23,000. Approximately one-tenth of this number is in the investigative section of the prohibition unit. Of the remaining 20,000 only a small proportion of the personnel is available for actual preventive and investigative work. The remainder is engaged in work far different from prohibition. These figures speak for themselves."

SOME DIFFICULTIES

A frequent complaint is that the federal government is prosecuting small cases and not getting at those responsible for the large supplies of illegal liquor. To get at the smugglers, the wholesale distributors, and those who manufacture and divert on a large scale, it is necessary to have either an integration of the forces working at the supply and distribution ends, or a close working relation between the two forces.

With respect to both liquor and narcotics, it is frequently stated by enforcement officials and those who study phases of the problem that the federal officials who deal with local or retail distribution upset many an investigation which might lead to the sources of supply; and on the other hand, investigators who are dealing with sources are frequently ineffectual in getting at persons who control the sources.

"To adjust the machinery of federal administration, as it had grown up for other purposes, to this huge problem of enforcement of prohibition is not easy, and will require much further study. Unification, centralization of responsibility, and means of insuring coöperation between federal and state agencies are things to which we must come, quite apart from the exigencies of enforcement of prohibition, but which cannot be achieved overnight."

The chief difficulties were declared by the commission to be:

Disordered condition of federal legislation involved in enforcement.

Possibilities of defeating padlock injunctions by means of concealing ownership of property used for manufacture and sale of illicit liquor.

Congestion of petty prosecutions in the federal courts, leading to wholesale disposition of accumulated cases under circumstances impairing the dignity of and injuring respect for those tribunals.

"Without prejudice to any ultimate conclusions," the report said, "we think that in the interest of promoting observance of and respect for law, the national prohibition law may well be strengthened and its effectiveness increased in these important particulars."

Summing up its four recommendations for legislative enactments, the commission said:

"We think they could not in any wise interfere with any ultimate program which we may have to recommend, and would in the meantime advance observance of the law."

The commission dealt with each of its recommendations separately and with some of them at considerable length. In urging transfer of the prohibition unit from the treasury to the justice department, the report said it was an anomaly that the cases are investigated and prepared by agencies entirely disconnected with and not answerable to those who are to prosecute them.

"If prosecution, the legal side of enforcement, is partitioned between two district agencies," the report said, "the diffused, ill defined, nonlocated responsibility is sure in the long run to be an obstacle to efficiency."

25 DRY LAW STATUTES

The commission reported that there must be a careful study of how to separate the work which belongs in the treasury, of granting permits and administration of regulations as to the legitimate use of alcohol or liquors.

Pointing out that there are 25 statutes, many enacted before the eighteenth amendment, to which there is recourse in prohibition enforcement, the commission asserted they were in form disconnected, unwieldy, and in much need of coördination and adjustment to each other. Consequently it recommended that these statutes be "revised and digested," with a view to making them a unified whole in the form of a simple, better ordered and hence more workable code.

On the question of padlock injunctions it was stated that the use of injunction proceedings as a means of enforcing prohibition was so important that the section of the Volstead act dealing with this subject should be so amended as to enable the courts to reach unknown claimants to property, nonresidents, and residents who conceal themselves to evade service of process.

"It contains nothing which is not already done in the states generally when private claims to property are concerned," the commission added.

Congestion in the federal courts, causing long delays in prosecutions and "bargain days" for accused, was declared by the report to have done much to create a feeling in some localities that the law cannot be enforced.

"If it is possible to deal with this matter adequately with the existing machinery of the federal system it should be done," the report went on. "We think such a solution entirely possible and in the right line of progress."

TAKES UP JONES LAW

Pointing out that the Jones law has expressly recognized a class of "casual or slight violations," the commission said a statute authorizing the district attorneys in such cases to prosecute by complaint or information would obviate the long delay, unnecessary expense, and needless keeping in session of grand juries which are demanded by the present state of law.

In such cases, when so prosecuted, the penalty suggested would be a fine of not more than $500 and imprisonment in jail, without hard labor, not to exceed six months, or both.

"We think also that it would be expedient for congress to define the term 'casual or slight violations,'" the commission said. "Speedy convictions and certain impositions of penalties are important considerations and are more likely to be efficacious than threats of severe punishment rendered nugatory by congested dockets overpassing any possibilities of trial in the manner constitutionally appointed for crimes of such magnitude."

Suggestion also was made that petty cases be heard before a United States commissioner and a report made to the courts, which would pass judgment on the case. There would be a safeguard that the accused, if found guilty by a commissioner, could demand trial by jury within three days.

IF HOOVER'S PLAN WORKS ARRESTS MAY MOUNT 50%

Doran's Opinion Revealed During Dry Law Uproar.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—Should the Hoover plan to relieve federal court congestion—one of the chief features of the Wickersham commission report—be carried out successfully, the number of persons now being arrested for prohibition law violations could be increased 50 per cent, is the opinion of Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran.

Dr. Doran so expressed himself when he appeared before the house appropriations subcommittee, whose hearings and report on the treasury department appropriation bill were made public today. The bill, as reported, allots to the prohibition bureau $11,900,000, the same amount appropriated last year. It provides for the coast guard, however, a $2,452,869 increase, largely to tighten up anti-rum running activities.

No Increase Asked.

The prohibition bureau chief not only failed to ask for more than $15,000,000, but insisted that any increase for his activities would be "an unwise expenditure for the reason that it would inevitably tend to further congest the federal courts," the committee has revealed.

"We could make a 50 per cent increase in the number of persons arrested," Dr. Doran told the subcommittee, "but under the present conditions it would merely congest the courts still further and further complicate the situation."

The disclosure of Commissioner Doran's opinion served to focus further attention today upon the court problem which stood out as a high point in the commission program. It was seen as an indication that if court procedure is speeded up, the prohibition bureau will ask for big new appropriations to apprehend the thousands of dry law violators now admittedly escaping arrest.

Prompt Trial Important.

"I would say the biggest problem right now that confronts the federal government in the enforcement of this law is the congested condition of the federal courts," Doran continued. "If you cannot secure a prompt trial in important cases, your case gets cold."

He added that "there is no class of cases that gets colder than a prohibition case. The witnesses leave and it seems to be harder to keep tab in a liquor case than almost any other type of federal case."

The court congestion, Dr. Doran said, is worst in New York, New Jersey, northern Illinois, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

Dr. Doran complained vigorously about the failure of the states to cooperate with the federal dry forces, admitting that there has been no improvement in this regard.

In the southern states, especially, the county sheriffs dodge the job of catching moonshiners, he said. Wisconsin, which repealed its state prohibition law, he cited as a particularly bad example.

"We have had an increasing number of complaints from Wisconsin," the dry chief reported. "Our administrators, both in Chicago and St. Paul, report that there has been a movement of moonshiners from Illinois and Minnesota over to Wisconsin counties, where they feel they can operate with greater safety."

Asked if he believed that enforcement conditions on the whole are better than they were a year ago, Doran said he believed they were.

Smuggling Reports Contradictory.

"I think the Jones act has brought about an improvement," he said. "Sentences are increasing and take it over all, with the known drop in smuggling, I say the situation is improving. There are certain localities where I cannot say there is any improvement, but taking it over all and from a broad viewpoint, I say there is improvement."

The "known drop in smuggling" referred to by Commissioner Doran, however, was directly contradicted so far as coast guard experience is concerned, by Commandant Frederick C. Billard, who appeared before the subcommittee in behalf of the $2,452,869 increase in the coast guard appropriation, primarily to check liquor smuggling. This sum was approved by the committee and, in addition, $300,000 has been asked in a supplemental bill for 30 more boats on the great lakes. This supplemental appropriation probably will be added to the bill before its final passage.

Asked by Representative W. R. Wood [Rep., Ind.] if smuggling is increasing or decreasing, Admiral Billard replied that for the country as a whole it is about the same.

"However," he added, "I must frankly state that in the last few months there has been manifested an apparent increase in smuggling activities in the north Atlantic area."

What Press of the Nation Has to Say on Dry Report

Comment of newspapers upon President Hoover's message to congress and the reports of the Wickersham law enforcement commission and Secretary Mellon is varied in tone. Excerpts from some of the editorials follow:

New York Times—President Hoover accepts and adopts the recommendations of the report and urges congress to enact the corresponding legislation. Most of it will, no doubt, be promptly passed, as it should be. But we fear that many impatient members of congress, along with the Methodist board of temperance, will be greatly disappointed when they read that the commission's report is only preliminary. Clearly then we are only in the ehrly stages of an inquiry and an effort which may continue for years.

Philadelphia Public Ledger—There is little or no prospect that the commission's recommendations will be dealt with in a calm, judicial, and common sense manner. The drys in congress will find reason for criticism in the fact that the commission does not give specific and blanket approval of prohibition as a great economic and social experiment. The wets will be furious that the report, if agreed upon, will mean a tightening of the enforcement machinery all along the line. The report will feed the fires of controversy on both sides.

Called Apologetic Report.

New York World—The preliminary report of the Wickersham commission which the President submitted yesterday to congress is a modest, one might almost say, an apologetic document. In tone it is exactly what one might expect from a group of able and high-minded men, confronted with an almost impossible task and pushed by political pressure into announcing conclusions before they were ready to reach conclusions.

Boston Herald—In effect Chairman Wickersham and his associates say: "Whether the 18th amendment and the Volstead act are wise legislation or not, we do not choose to say. The law is here. Conditions in the courts and elsewhere are such that enforcement under ideal conditions has not been responsible. Set up some new machinery for enforcement, try it a while and ultimately we may have something to say on prohibition as prohibition. We defer judgment meanwhile."

Cleveland Plain Dealer—The Wickersham commission reports its discovery that the problem of the prohibition law is not one for snap judgment. Its remarks will probably lend comfort to those who contend that prohibition cannot be enforced. They should give pause to those who shout for "more law" as the panacea for all evils, liquor law violations included. A congressional battle over the 18th amendment, unequaled in ferocity, is promised over this report. If it helps to clear away some of the hypocrisy that has gathered on this part of the constitution it will not have been fought in vain.

"No Hope" for Wets.

Kansas City Star—The important feature of the report of the President's law enforcement commission is that it holds out no hope to the wets of modification of the fundamental policy of prohibition. Its recommendations are not for relaxing the laws but for stiffening up enforcement. There is no question that on the main issue, that of effective enforcement, the whole power of the administration will be centered. President Hoover is determined that the supreme law of the land shall not be flouted.

Opinion Must Crystallize.

St. Paul Pioneer Press—Prohibition cannot be permanently settled until public opinion has sufficiently crystallized as to the facts about it to permit an intelligent decision on the policy. The wets must reconcile themselves to seeing a thoroughgoing attempt to enforce prohibition. . . . The drys, for their part, must be content to let the result speak for itself.

Denver Post—President Hoover and his commission are convinced that prohibition is working, and will work better under a more scientific and sensible arrangement of the legal machinery. Mr. Hoover and his commission know that prohibition can be enforced and they are out to enforce it. Prohibition is here to stay.

Contains Nothing New.

San Francisco Chronicle—The Wickersham report brings out not one new thing. . . . It is a partial report obviously put out at this time to meet the clamor raised by certain senators.

Portland Oregonian—There is no defeatism in the preliminary report of the President's commission . . . and there is no indication that the expediency of prohibition in the abstract will be gone into at any stage. A fact that does stand out, however, is that both the President and his commission are assuming that laws which have been regularly put on the statute books are meant to be enforced.

YOUTHS ATTACK COAST GUARD; 3 ARRESTED, FINED

4 Set Upon Chief Petty Officer Near Home.

New London, Conn., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—Another outbreak in the series of disorders between coast guardsmen and civilians that has followed the recent killing by the coast guards of three rum runners aboard the Black Duck occurred here last night.

William Lugenbwel, chief petty officer, stationed at coast guard section base 4, was set upon by four youths in the rear of his house at 116 Howard street. Three of his alleged assailants were arrested and the fourth escaped. Those arrested gave their names as Thaddeus Devine, James Delmore, and Francis Sullivan. They were all charged with breach of the peace.

Scene of Recent Stoning.

The houseboat of Boatswain Alexander Cornell, commander of the patrol boat 290, which fired the shots that killed the three rum runners, was formerly located in the rear of 116 Howard street, and it was there the vessel was stoned by a crowd several nights ago.

After hearing the testimony, Deputy Judge McGarry fined the three defendants $10 apiece.

Three more of the general court martial cases of the coast guard, resulting from the drinking of liquor seized on the rum ship Flor Del Mar, were disposed of here today. All three sailors pleaded guilty.

Man on Liquor Truck Slain.

Brownsville, Tex., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Juan Gomez of Harlingen, Tex., who was riding on a motor truck loaded with liquor, was shot and killed today in a gun fight with federal officers near Los Indos, close to the Mexican border, when the truck was not stopped at the command of customs inspectors. The driver of the truck escaped into the dense brush.

Four officers were guarding the River road when they heard the truck approaching. A stop sign was stretched across the road.

Before reaching the sign the truck swerved and ran through a fence to the left of the road. Shots were exchanged and Gomez fell from the seat with bullet wounds in the neck and chest. Leaping from the truck, the driver raced for cover, firing his rifle as he ran.

In Gomez's pistol two empty shells were found.

Two Carrying Still on Street Bump Into Cops

Toting a 20 gallon moonshine still down Cambridge avenue at noon yesterday, George Greenfield and Harry Talbert, both of 1161 Cambridge avenue, bumped into Detectives Thomas McNulty and W. H. Schroll of the Chicago avenue police district. The detectives brought the pair before Judge Alfred O. Erickson. "We didn't know it was a still," the prisoners said. The case was continued to Thursday.

DRY SHOOTINGS APPLAUDED BY 300 PREACHERS

Cheer Doran's Defense of Coast Guard.

New York, Jan. 13.— [Special.] — Three hundred ministers cheered and applauded today when James A. Doran, federal commissioner in charge of prohibition, addressing a meeting under the auspices of the Anti-Saloon league, declared that the coast guard "must use their weapons if necessary."

While not mentioning the recent slaying of three men by the coast guard his justification of shooting was believed to have reference to that episode.

The occasion was the annual meeting of ministers of various denominations and was held in the Union Methodist Episcopal church.

Defines Coast Guard Duty.

In his defense of the coast guard, Dr. Doran said:

"The coast guard's duty is to enforce the laws and it must be armed to enforce them. Furthermore, they must use those arms to enforce the law."

At this juncture there was a thunder of applause, many of the ministers springing to their feet and waving their arms in approval of the statement.

"The coast guard," continued Dr Doran, "must protect the country from smuggling and if it takes the time to differentiate between types of smuggling there might as well be no coast guard. And we can't do that.

Warns Preachers Out of Politics.

"There will never be any legislation recognizing the sale of liquor because with liquor restored this country will lose its industrial efficiency.

"I believe that the task of the minister is not to get into politics," Dr. Doran continued, "but to instill in his congregation the love for law and order that would make the congregation bring pressure to bear upon officials to stamp out violation of liquor laws and upon the New York state legislature to enact a state prohibition law.

Maj. Maurice Campbell, local dry administrator, told the clergymen that everybody knows the present city administration is "wet" and denounced the police for permitting speakeasies to flourish. He declared that "90 per cent of the crimes committed in this city have their inception" in the speakeasy.

BOTH WETS AND DRYS REACT FAVORABLY TO COMMISSION REPORT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—(AP)—The preliminary report on prohibition by President Hoover's law enforcement commission today found favorable reaction among leaders of wet and dry organizations alike.

Henry H. Curran, president of the association against the prohibition amendment, said in a statement:

"It is clear that the commission has now concluded, after eight months of study, that the problem of prohibition is not to be solved by tinkering with enforcement procedure, but has its root deep down in fundamentals of human relations to what can and cannot be done through the agency of criminal law.

"It is clear also that the commission believes the law as it stands is unenforceable. I hope they will go right ahead now, after these preliminary observations, and decide how they think the law must be changed."

The Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals' research secretary, Deets Pickett, said "we favor the recommendations of President Hoover as they come to us."

He considered the report of the commission a "start," he said, that might serve as an introduction for further statements.

W. C. T. U. APPROVES.

A statement congratulating President Hoover's commission on law observance and enforcement for "its stand for vigorous and complete enforcement of the law" was issued yesterday at the national headquarters of the Women's Christian Temperance union at Evanston. The National W. C. T. U., the statement said, "trusts that congress will enact the proper legislation," to replace inadequate legal procedures, crowded courts and technicalities with codes and practices "whereby criminals will speedily take their proper place behind the bars."

EVERY BAKING POWDER HAS TWO ACTIONS. IN RUMFORD THESE ACTIONS ARE BALANCED IN THE PERFECT LEAVENING PROPORTION OF

Two to One!

THE superior result achieved with Rumford is due to its action in releasing two-thirds of its leavening power in the mixing and one-third in the oven heat—the perfect leavening proportion.

In some baking powders almost their entire leavening power is released in the dough, and much leavening gas is lost through handling and cutting.

In other baking powders leavening action is delayed until exposed to oven heat, and leavening power is lost through cracks in the crust.

But with the use of Rumford just the right amount of leavening takes place both in the mixing and in the actual baking in the oven. For this reason Rumford dough is READY when it is placed in the oven, and is thoroughly DONE, perfectly textured, and of finest natural flavor when the baking is completed.

To all kinds of breads and cakes Rumford makes an important contribution. It restores the valuable phosphates lost when flour is milled and so makes food more healthful and more digestible.

ALL WAR DEBTS PRINCIPAL OWED U. S. CANCELED

America Sacrifices Much to Help Europe.

The chief of The Tribune's Washington bureau, Arthur S. Henning, has gone to London with the American commission to the naval conference. Before leaving Washington, Mr. Henning wrote the following article—the third and last of a series covering the results of previous efforts of this nation to obtain international peace and reduce the burden of naval armament.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The United States having refused to share in the spoils of war at the Paris peace conference and having scrapped at the Washington conference the most powerful navy in the world in course of construction, has rounded out its record for self-sacrifice up to date by canceling the entire principal and part of the interest of the war debts owed by Europe.

The chief beneficiaries of all these demonstrations of altruistic American generosity and self-abnegation are now gathering in London awaiting the advent of their benefactor for another of those conferences in which Uncle Sam usually ends up by giving away his shirt.

Uncle Sam, later dubbed by his European debtors Uncle Shylock, loaned to Great Britain, France, Italy and other war time allies a total of $9,811,094,094.03. As funded with accrued interest the principal of the debts now totals $11,522,354,000.

Pay Over 62 Years.

Under the settlements reached with the debtors they are to pay in the course of 62 years a total of $22,143,539,993.10 in full satisfaction of their obligations. This represents the principal and interest at the average rate of 2.17 per cent.

By the time the debts are discharged American taxpayers, paying 4¼ per cent interest on Liberty bonds, will have advanced for these loans to war time allies a total of $32,849,158,000. Thus if the loans should be paid in full and American taxpayers should get back the entire $22,143,539,993.10 they have agreed to accept they still will be out of pocket $10,705,618,006.90.

Uncle Shylock, therefore, is canceling close to eleven billion dollars of the debt Europe owes him. He is forgiving his debtors an amount that is a billion dollars in excess of the original principal.

Italy	2,413,874,500
Great Britain	2,008,397,000
Belgium	463,221,500
Jugo-Slavia	84,001,365
Poland	73,370,450
Czecho-Slovakia	15,042,566
Estonia	6,096,860
Rumania	4,615,739
Finland	3,962,945
Lithuania	2,659,060
Latvia	2,505,365
Hungary	834,760

America canceled these billions of debts without ever asking anything for herself in return. Never did she suggest that in consideration of the reduction of their obligations Great Britain and France cede to the United States their possessions in the West Indies which from the viewpoint of American national security and of the spirit of the Monroe Doctrine ought long ago to have been brought within the American system.

How Would Others Act?

One can imagine how long any other nation than unselfish, self-sacrificing America would have hesitated to take advantage of an opportunity to acquire these islands with their naval bases lying athwart American trade routes and commanding the approaches to our shores and to the Panama canal. One can imagine how impressively those adroit British statesmen, had they been in our shoes, would have represented their duty to their own and future generations to take steps to remove a potential menace, however negligible it might appeal today. The world would have been duly impressed by another example of far sighted British statesmanship.

Our statesmen, however, manifesting the usual inferiority complex in dealing with the British, were shocked by unofficial suggestion that the debt settlement offered an excellent opportunity to acquire the British West Indies. The British government had said it would never sell British subjects to another allegiance and American officialdom immediately adopted an attitude of apology for the authors of so gross a suggestion.

Matter to Be Discussed.

The Hoover administration has now, however, made so bold as to suggest to Great Britain the demilitarization of the British naval bases in the western Atlantic. Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain has declined to go that far but has intimated a willingness to consider an agreement not to strengthen the British fortifications and naval base facilities off American shores. This matter is to be considered at the London conference.

It was because Uncle Sam refused to cancel all the interest as well as the principal of the war debts that he became Uncle Shylock to Europe. The war was scarcely over before the British and French statesmen began maneuvering to obtain a complete cancellation of the borrowings from the United States. And notwithstanding the European efforts being made to get the debts cancelled America went on making government loans to Europe for two years after the armistice.

The first intelligence of the cancellation scheme was given on Dec. 4, 1918, less than a month after the armistice, in a report to Secretary of State Lansing by Erwin Laughlin, counselor of the American embassy in London. Mr. Laughlin said the suggestion of the cancellation of all loans of the allies to each other had emanated from the British chancellor of the exchequer. Of course, as it turns out, to have cancelled the war debts at that time, provided no more money were loaned, would have cost the American taxpayers less than the cancellation involved in the eventual settlements. For at that time only a little more than eight billion dollars had been loaned.

What it means to American taxpayers to cancel eleven billion dollars of the debts owed the United States by Europe was graphically set forth by Representative Ralph F. Lozier [Dem., Mo.] when the ratification of the settlement of the French debt for 50 cents on the dollar was before congress a few weeks ago.

Promised to Pay.

"When these loans were made these nations gave the American government and people an unequivocal assurance and promise that the loans would be repaid, dollar for dollar," said Mr. Lozier. "On the strength of these promises the American people bought Liberty bonds, and in that manner supplied the United States government with funds with which to make these loans.

"We are paying 4¼ per cent interest on the money the United States government borrowed to lend these European nations. The Liberty bonds issued by Uncle Sam are being paid and will all be paid 100 cents on the dollar. The people who hold these Liberty bonds will not be expected to cancel half of what is due on them. Uncle Sam will have to pay principal and interest. In order to get the money to pay these Liberty bonds the United States government must collect it in the form of taxes from the American people. So when we cancel one-half of what these nations owe us, we are, in effect, doubling the burden of taxation on the American people."

IDAHO CONGRESSMAN WANTS PARLEY TO CUT NAVAL COSTS IN HALF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—Representative Burton L. French [Rep., Idaho], chairman of the naval subcommittee on appropriations, in the house today advocated conclusion of a drastic naval reduction agreement at the approaching London five power conference which would permit present naval budgets to be slashed in half. Such a step would cut the American navy supply bill expenditures by more than 175 million dollars.

To effect such a radical cut in the major navies of the world, Mr. French would abolish battleships, extend the useful life of all types of ships by one-third, eliminate naval competition by effecting definite agreements in all categories and reduce tonnages in all classes of warships. Mr. French advocates battleship abolition only in case all major powers agree to this step.

The program advanced by Representative French attracted unusual attention because, as chairman of the naval subcommittee of the house appropriations committee, he is in a position to exercise more power over naval appropriations than probably any other man in congress.

cies expressed by the two governments. When the expert's examination of the subject is ended, it is probable that Mr. Wakatsuki and Prime Minister MacDonald will meet once more for a final survey of the situation before the opening of the conference.

Attempts by the Tory press to influence public opinion against any British concessions are continuing. The Daily Telegraph today reiterated that inviolability of the English channel should be guaranteed in return for any Mediterranean pact, such as suggested by France.

The Telegraph also seeks to undermine the prestige of the British reply to the recent French memorandum by stating it was inspired by Prime Minister MacDonald rather than by the admiralty or the foreign office.

Another attack is made in an article by the Telegraph's naval correspondent, describing the unemployment of the Clyde ship building yards, which are equipped to build great warships and heavy guns.

"Naval disarmament is responsible for at least half the unemployment in this district," the article says.

Parity Question May Wreck Meet.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 13.—"To give up the principle of naval parity with France is impossible in the most absolute way."

These words, spoken through the newspaper Foglio d'Ordini, official technical mouthpiece of the Fascist party, leave no doubt as to the attitude of Italy at the five power naval conference, which opens in London on Jan. 21.

Should the French-Italian parity question prove unsolvable, the super-Fascist organ says, the conference stands many chances of going on the rocks, but even if that is the case it should not be cause for Italy to worry one moment.

McGowan lost 75 cents. Farley was killed when he and another policeman battled a paroled convict, who also was slain.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 13.—[Special]—The capitol hears that Grover Whalen will resign as police commissioner of New York City about Feb. 1. Reports that he soon would retire to take a position in a bank or brokerage house have been prevalent for some time and have been denied by Commissioner Whalen.

But with the return of the legislators today they were brought to Albany from sources high in Tammany hall and in the confidence of the Walker administration.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to comb or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it; then you destroy it entirely.

To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid Arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid Arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you may have. This simple remedy never fails.

MRS. McCORMICK FLAYS LEAGUE AND ITS COURT

Opens Her Campaign for Seat in Senate.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mattoon, Ill., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—Opposition to the world court as a back porch of the league of nations was given emphatic voice by Ruth Hanna McCormick, congresman at large, today in opening her campaign for United States senator. The effect of the first day's journey into the corn belt seems to have developed the court as a leading issue.

Mrs. McCormick did not mention the name of her opponent, Senator Charles S. Deneen. But through the back door at three meetings today at Shelbyville, Mattoon, and Charleston was the ghost of the vote cast by Senator Deneen in 1926 for the world court. The same issue raised against the late Senator William B. McKinley, who also voted for the court, was held most largely responsible for his defeat that year by Frank L. Smith.

Oppose League and Its Paris.

Now the indications are that the league and the court are to be pressed as a predominant issue in all the 102 counties of the state.

The substance of Mrs. McCormick's position on the question of adherence, which will be submitted to the senate by President Hoover, follows:

"I am opposed to the league of nations and all its parts. The world court is not a peace court. It is not a world court. It is the league's court. If we are to join the court of the league, why not join the league itself? Don't let us go in the back door if we want to enter the league. Let's go in the front door."

Among other questions taken up by Mrs. McCormick before the three audiences, who came through the fog over the coated roads and sidewalks, was that of sex discrimination in politics.

Incidentally, Mrs. McCormick has mapped out a speaking program which might indicate that women are not the weaker sex. In the next three weeks she plans to make 52 downstate counties, with some 65 speeches.

Recalls Suffrage Fight.

In her speeches at Shelbyville, Mattoon, and Charleston, Mrs. McCormick said, in part:

"When I decided to submit my candidacy for the United States senatorship to the people of Illinois I was not unmindful of the responsibilities of that high office and I was fully aware that perhaps the chief opposition to my nomination and election was in the fact that I am a woman. I realize that, being one of the very few women who have sought a place in the senate, I shall be regarded as something of a pioneer; just as I was in the days when we were making the campaign for woman's suffrage.

"Today there are eight women participating in the work of the lower house of congress.

"This much having been gained, the women who have been pioneering in public service feel the responsibility of carrying on, of moving forward to new frontiers. I hope nobody will vote for me simply because I am a woman, or vote against me solely because I am a woman.

"I have been told that one of the objections raised to my candidacy was based on the fact that I had not had sufficient experience in the house to warrant my moving to the senate. It has been said also that I am resigning from the house in order to make this race, which, of course, is ridiculous.

"As a congressman at large, representing more than seven millions of people in Illinois, my constituency is now identical with that of a United States senator from Illinois.

"Furthermore, the theory that experience in the house of representatives is essential to good service in the senate is being advanced for the first time. As a matter of fact 67 of the present members of the United States senate including both our Illinois senators never served at all in the house of representatives.

"My candidacy is not due to any arrangement between party bosses. It has no machine back of it. I submit to you that nominations procured on any other basis defeat the very purpose of the primary law. We have witnessed alliances between leaders of political groups in this state which have chosen the nominees in primary elections with the same regard for the opinion of the voters that formerly marked the selections made in boss ruled conventions. We have observed with bewilderment between elections the violent breaking up of such groups and have found that leaders who quite recently had delivered broadsides of righteous indignation against bosses of other groups have eagerly rushed into alliance with the very bosses denounced."

Naval Parley Discussed.

"Next week we go into a conference with four other great powers, Britain, France, Italy, and Japan, to attempt a limitation of naval construction. Most of us are convinced that under present circumstances and possibly for some time to come it will be necessary for us to maintain adequate national defense, particularly upon the sea, where our navy has been our first line of defense for one hundred years. And yet I say that all of us are heartily in accord with President Hoover in this renewed effort to eliminate competitive naval armament and that our hope joins sincerely with his hope that out of this London conference shall be born a new international spirit looking forward to reduction of armament as contrasted with a striving for supremacy in the agencies of force.

"We are also confronted once more with the proposal that the United States shall adhere to the permanent court of international justice of the league of nations. I assume that most of you know how I stand on that question. I stand where I always have stood—in opposition to the league of nations, or any of its essential parts."

League Covenant Unchanged.

"I have not changed my mind on this issue because there is no change in the covenant of the league, which was written as a part of the treaty of Versailles and adopted with the provision and power of enforcing its territorial sanction. As I am opposed to foreign entanglements I would be reluctant to see our country take any step toward joining the league of nations or any part of the league. It seems to me that in adjusting a foreign policy we should also look at the reverse side of the question. What advantage could America gain by becoming part of the league of nations? What service could America render the rest of the world by being a member of the league, which she is unable to accomplish as an independent power? It is not a policy of isolation we are considering; it is a policy of preserving our independence of action.

After reviewing the events which led to the signing of the protocol of the world court at Geneva, Dec. 9, 1929, Mrs. McCormick took up the agricultural problem.

"The farm bill, promised in the 1928 campaign, is now a law and has been functioning for approximately eight months," she said.

"But it was not by the establishing of a farm board alone that we were to revive the lagging agricultural industry. President Hoover called a special session of congress on April 15 of last year, the declared purpose of which was to pass a farm marketing act and readjust tariff schedules in the interest of agriculture. We have carried out one-half of the program but the special session adjourned with no tariff legislation having been completed.

"The house bill, passed early in the special session last spring, was understood to be one that would inevitably be revised and in large portions rewritten by the senate. The house bill came out of committee with many increases in protective tariff rates for agricultural products but on some important items the increases were distinctly disappointing to the farmer."

"It is the contention of the farmers, supported by some of the leading members of the senate, that in making extensive increases in industrial items we have given the farmer something with one hand and taken it away from him with the other.

"I have voted, upon those items which were open to individual vote, for an increase in tariffs on agricultural products. I shall continue in this session to do what I can to meet fully the pledges made to the farmer by the party and by myself as a candidate when I ran for congress."

ACQUITTED BOOK DEALER NAMES YARROW IN SUIT

Walter Shaver, book dealer at 4703 Sheridan road, who was acquitted by a jury in Judge Freeman L. Fairbank's court last week of selling obscene literature yesterday filed the praecipe of a suit for $25,000 in the Superior court against the Rev. Philip Yarrow, president of the Illinois Vigilance association, charging malicious prosecution. The Rev. Mr. Yarrow signed the complaint against Shaver.

"Yarrow has considerable property," Attorney Cameron Latter, who filed the bill for Shaver, said. "The original disciples were ordered not to possess any worldly goods; we're going to reduce Yarrow to the same common ground."

Yarrow accompanied Assistant State's Attorney Joseph Nagel to the office of acting State's Attorney Northup yesterday to confer on the proper method to obtain evidence against book dealers.

When you take your first bite of Mickelberry's Old Farm Sausage, you will get the taste thrill of your life, for nowhere in the world—at home or abroad—can you find a sausage with such tempting goodness—such distinctive flavor.

PURE PORK

Wholesomeness is to be expected because the extreme conditions of sanitation under which Mickelberry's Old Farm Sausage is prepared and packed, naturally make for wholesomeness—but that individual flavor which is Mickelberry's alone, comes from the exclusive use of an old secret recipe of the South that has been Mickelberry's for years

And, so it is, people with taste discrimination have learned to depend on Mickelberry's Old Farm Sausage for the individual pure-pork taste that is not obtainable elsewhere.

FIRST 1930 CALL ON U. S. FOR HELP AGAINST FLOOD

Lowlands Residents Flee in Half Dozen States.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 13. — (AP) — United States engineers corps headquarters here answered its first call for aid today as tributaries of the Mississippi river continued the rise which has inundated lowlands in half a dozen states and driven hundreds of families to higher ground.

Meanwhile rains over the upper watershed backed up predictions that the end is not yet in sight.

River levees throughout the valley were holding, but in the bottom lands the water was spreading steadily over widening areas.

In the Memphis district—which includes the Mississippi river from New Madrid, Mo., to Helena, Ark., and adjacent tributaries—all the river dikes were reported in good shape with the exception of a stretch of embankment along Big lake, west of Blytheville, Ark. A request for sand bags to bolster up the Big lake levee was made to engineer headquarters here. The needed supplies were sent and a construction supervisor ordered to the scene.

Southern Indiana Flooded.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—Southwestern Indiana, along the Wabash and White rivers and tributaries and along the lower course of the Ohio river, tonight fought further encroachment of flood waters, but thousands of dollars' damage has already resulted, and river men predict more loss.

The serious flood situation was acknowledged tonight by J. H. Armington, meteorologist of the United States weather bureau here. He issued a warning to Wabash and White river valleys.

Near Vincennes this afternoon water was washing over tracks of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad, between Emison and Fort Knox. Trains are detoured from Vincennes to Terre Haute by way of the Baltimore and Ohio to Washington, Ind., and from there over the E. and I. to Terre Haute. The Wabash river at Vincennes, eleven feet above flood stage, is still rising and near the level of the bridge. A break in the levee is feared. It would put half of Vincennes under four feet of water.

Gov. Harry G. Leslie has placed available National Guard units on police duty. All ferries south of Vincennes were closed today.

Evansville reports the lower Ohio river has flooded thousands of acres in both Indiana and Kentucky lowlands. The river has reached a stage of 38 feet and is still rising.

Ohio Rising Steadily.

Paducah, Ky., Jan. 13.—(AP)—The Ohio river was steadily rising today from here to its mouth and the Mississippi was reported at Hickman to be rising at the most rapid rate ever recorded there.

In the western Tennessee lowlands, below Reelfoot lake levee, 200 families were reported to have moved.

Heavy Rains in Ohio.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Heavy rains of the last 24 hours early today had brought about serious flood conditions throughout the central and north sections of Ohio. Residents of several towns were removed from lowlands in boats. Many state highways were under water, halting traffic. At Steubenville, Clarence Wistman, 48, was killed when his automobile overturned after striking a landslide on the state highway.

Route 143 in Trouble.

Harrisburg, Ill., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—With one exception, state roads out of Harrisburg were open to traffic today, although rains continued. Route 143 was impassable in sections between Harrisburg and Galatia.

WESTERN HEMISPHERE IMMIGRATION BILLS READY FOR COMMITTEE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Drastic restriction of immigration from countries in the western hemisphere is proposed in bills sponsored by Chairman Johnson of the house immigration committee and Representative Box of Texas, the ranking minority member of that committee.

The measures, both planning to limit the total quota to 50,000 immigrants a year from Canada, Mexico and Central and South American countries, will be before the committee tomorrow, with arrangements for early hearings.

The Johnson bill proposes that for every American who goes to reside in another country in the western hemisphere, three immigrants be admitted. He estimated that this would limit the quota to about 50,000 and asserted that this country's neighbors would be in no position to complain.

Representative Box's bill, as he explained it, would place all western hemisphere countries, including Haiti and Santo Domingo, under a 50,000 annual immigation quota.

MASSEY IS STILL IN JAIL FOR TRIP TO DYING COUSIN

Then There's a $250 Fee for His Attorney.

El Paso, Ill., was in a state of indignation and wonderment last night over the workings of the courts of Chicago.

The inhabitants of El Paso had heard much of the technicalities which protect the individual who runs afoul of the law in Cook county. They had read of habeas corpus writs, continuances and nolle pros. Wherefore, they were much puzzled over the case of Harry Massey, one of their neighbors, who came to Chicago nine days ago and has been in the county jail just nine days.

On Way to Visit Cousin.

Massey's motive in coming to Chicago was to visit his cousin, George Hunt, a high school athlete who received a spinal injury in a football game last October and who had been brought to Chicago for surgical attention.

El Paso residents had raised a $1,000 fund to give Hunt medical attention. They were prepared last night to raise another fund to get Massey out of jail, they having been informed that Attorney Henry Balaban, representing the innocent Massey, had charged $250 for his services thus far.

"But who'll take the money up to Chicago to get Massey out?" queried a townsman. "They'll probably put him, too, in jail. Then we'll have to raise another fund and before we get through, the courthouse will be mortgaged."

Then There's the Fee.

So Massey was in jail last night with no immediate prospect of release. His case comes up tomorrow before Judge William E. Helander in the Felony court, but Massey wasn't optimistic. The prisoner pointed out that even if he is released he will probably be jailed again for failure to pay Attorney Balaban's fees. Massey is penniless.

Massey's crime, for which he is in prison, consisted in being a passenger on a truck as he entered Chicago. The truck was proceeding in Ogden avenue, keeping in the street car tracks because of the snow blocked streets, when William Vobrula, a surface lines supervisor, jumped on the running board and ordered the truck driver to pull over to the side of the street.

The driver opened the truck door and Vobrula either fell or jumped off the running board, then slipped and fell beneath the rear wheels of the truck and was killed instantly.

Three Placed in Jail.

Massey and his two companions, who had driven on unaware of Vobrula's fate, were arrested and immediately charged with manslaughter. Bail of $10,000 each was set and they were placed in the county jail when they could not furnish the bonds.

An inquest was started but continued for a week. Several days later, Massey was arraigned but the case was continued because the inquest had been continued. Last Saturday, the coroner's jury met for the second time and after a full inquiry declared that Massey and the two others were innocent.

Massey then thought his troubles were over. But jail officials explained to him that matters weren't rushed in any such heedless manner in Chicago. He is held in the county jail until his case comes up again tomorrow.

Meanwhile, Hunt, the injured cousin, was taken back to a Pontiac, Ill., hospital to die, surgeons having said he could not live. And Massey's greatest fear, he explained from his cell, is that the boy he had come to regard as a son will die before be can see him.

By limiting our service to loans of $100 to $300, "Household" is able to reduce the interest rate to 2½% per month—a saving of nearly one-third. Thus the total cost of a $200 loan for 30 days is only $5.00. Other amounts for longer periods, at proportionate cost.

A Statement About Small Loans by Household Finance Corporation

We Make Loans of $100 to $300 at 2½% per Month

There are classes of loans which require the rate of 3½% per month

The Household Finance Corporation wishes to impress upon the public that any licensee who makes loans of less than $100, and a certain class of loans of larger amounts is, in our opinion, entitled to and is justified in charging the maximum rate of 3½% per month. We could not afford to make loans of less than $100 at less than 3½%. The 3½% rate is not the fixed rate that licensees must charge, but is simply the maximum rate permitted by the State Small Loan Law on loans up to $300.

If you need $100 to $300 you owe it to yourself to see us first.

2,000,000 DYING, 2,000,000 DEAD IN CHINA FAMINE

People Using Sawdust as Food, Probe Reveals.

PEIPING, China, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The China International Famine relief is confronting the most hopeless situation it has ever faced in famine ridden China in the northern province of Shensi, where thousands of persons are dying daily from famine and exposure.

Grover Clark, former Peiping newspaper editor, returning from a six weeks' inspection trip in the Wei river district, said today that 2,000,000 persons were doomed to die within a few months. He asserted that he had absolutely no hope of saving them, after investigating whether famine relief could be of aid.

2,000,000 Dead in 8 Months.

He estimates that 2,000,000 persons out of 6,000,000 in the area died during the last eight months. Thousands were frozen to death during the recent cold wave, when with the thermometer at 23 below, Shensi province suffered the coldest weather recorded in its history. The people, accustomed to a minimum temperature of fifteen above for more than 40 years, were caught unprepared.

Clark reported "the most disheartening scenes I have ever witnessed in all my years in the orient and in all my travels in the interior.

"Thousands begged for a piece of bread, for coppers, for anything I could give them," he said.

Eat Sawdust and Tree Bark.

"I consulted the various local authorities, but no remedy was suggested because of transportation difficulties and dangers from bandits, the bandits being the stronger peasants who have taken to robbery for food.

"Even if the China famine relief had plenty of grain to pour into the area, we could not reach it for months. The local authorities are helpless and in many instances are themselves on the verge of starvation."

The famine sufferers, who were gradually weakening though fighting hard for existence, were eating sawdust, tree bark and leather. Clark said most of them had scarcely mental strength enough left to realize the terrors of their fate.

FURIOUS STORM SWOOPS DOWN ON EUROPE; 42 DEAD

Ships Scurry to Shelter; Tug Sinks in Channel.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—A great gale raging over England last night and early today and then sweeping on to northern Europe caused the death of 42 persons in England, on the continent, and at sea. The list of known dead is supplemented by a longer one of those suffering from injuries.

Twenty-three sailors went down with the naval tug St Genny, which foundered last night while hove to in mountainous channel seas, 32 miles off Ushant. Only five survivers from the crew were picked up.

Fourteen deaths occurred inland in England. Most of them were caused by falling trees and masonry and similar accidents. One youth was blown into the water and drowned, while standing on Ramsgate pier.

Wire Service Disrupted.

Telegraph and telephone service was disrupted in many districts, cutting off wire communications between London and some of the big provincial centers.

The liner Antonia, arriving at Liverpool today, reported that she had been unable to call at Queenstown owing to the violence of the gale. Her wireless aerial had been blown down.

Reports reaching London from the continent indicate that the storm was violent there also, though the only deaths reported so far are those of a father, his son and his daughter, and two companions, who were drowned by the foundering of their motorboat at Vestfjord, Norway.

15 Ships Seek Refuge.

Fifteen steamers have taken refuge in the Elbe estuary, near Hamburg, from the force of a hurricane raging in the Heligoland bight. Stormy weather was reported prevailing all over the North sea.

The inhabitants of Hamburg feared that a flood tide pushed up by high winds and seas would flood the lowlands at the mouth of the Elbe.

Unknown Ship Sinks.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The pilot station at Hoganas, Sweden, near the entrance to the cattegat, last night observed a distress signal from a unknown steamer, which sank soon thereafter. Search for survivors was fruitless.

Frigid Wave Grips Portugal.

LISBON, Portugal, Jan. 13.—(AP)—A wave of intensely cold weather has been sweeping over Portugal since the week-end. In the provinces of Beira and Fraz people awakened to view the unusual sight of fields covered with snow and ponds with ice. Many rivers have been forzen over, and the mountains of the Serra de Estrella are capped with snow.

Slight earth tremors were felt at Aviz in northern Portgual, frightening the inhabitants but doing little damage. Many people fled to the fields in their night clothes.

COL. NICHOLSON WEDS DIVORCEE, IS RENO REPORT

Mrs. Thora T. Nichols yesterday won a divorce in Reno, Nev., from Clarence E. Nichols, vice president of the Federal Light and Traction company of New York, according to an Associated Press dispatch. It was also reported that ahortly after the decree was granted she became the bride of Lieut. Col. W. C. Fenlon Nicholson, a former regular army cavalry officer. He is the former husband of Mrs. Ermina Carry Nicholson, daughter of the late Edward F. Carry, president of the Pullman company.

Mr. and Mrs. Nichols were married in Chicago May 10, 1920. In her Reno bill Mrs. Nichols charged mental cruelty, alleging that her husband was cold and indifferent, and accompanied her to no social functions. She won the custody of a minor child. A property settlement has been effected out of court.

Lieut. Col. Nicholson was divorced last September. He had married in a wartime romance at Fort Sheridan in 1917. Mrs. Nicholson charged her husband visited Atlantic City with a woman unknown to her. She was awarded custody of two children, Edward C., 10 years old, and Margaret C., 6 years.

FLOURISHES KNIFE; STEALS $293.

Harry Solomon, owner of a delicatessen store at 1009 East 53d street, was robbed of $293 yesterday by a Negro who, after buying a glass of milk and drinking it, vaulted over the counter and threatened Solomon with a knife.

REALTY DEALER WINS $5,000 SUIT AGAINST VOLIVA

It took a jury in the Lake county Circuit court only five minutes yesterday to refute the alleged claim of Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion, that he is "bigger than any of the courts in the state of Illinois." In a suit brought against Voliva by T. J. Stahl, real estate dealer, the jury returned a verdict for $5,000, which Stahl claimed was due him as a real estate commission under a contract with the overseer.

Stahl, according to the testimony, had contracted to sell 300 acres of property in Zion for Voliva and had arranged for its purchase by Mrs. Julia M. Barker of Chicago for $100,000. When the sale was about to be consummated Voliva refused to sell, claiming that the contract, made by his agent, Clifford Leach, was void. Stahl said Voliva dared him to sue, voicing the opinion that Stahl couldn't collect, because he (Voliva) was bigger than the courts.

Voliva's counsel filed a motion to set aside the verdict and Stahl countered with a request for an execution to attach the equipment of the Zion police and fire departments to assure payment of the judgment.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs and colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

THE SPIRIT OF YOUTH
carry on—Avoid that future shadow

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Avoid the snags along the common-sense path to fitness and fashion. Don't let over-indulgence deprive you of the tantalizing contour of the modern figure. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately—when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain the graceful, modern figure with its captivating curves.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

WIFE'S SUIT SAYS HUSBAND PEEPS WITH BINOCULARS

Seeks Divorce, Alimony from M. L. Strauss.

Mrs. Helen P. Strauss, 2440 Lakeview avenue, yesterday filed a cross-bill for divorce in the Superior court against her husband, Maurice L. Strauss, president of Rena Hartman, Inc., women's clothiers at 317 North Michigan avenue. The bill, drawn by Attorney Leonard C. Reid, charges that Strauss spent his evenings at home pepping through binoculars to watch the disrobing of women in the neighborhood.

The Strausses were married March 2, 1926, and separated last Dec. 14. They have an adopted daughter, Joan Patricia, 2 years old. Mrs. Strauss was formerly employed in her husband's shop and married him a year after he had been divorced by his first wife, Mrs. Celeste Barman Strauss, a former model at the shop.

Says Wife Burned Him.

Strauss filed a bill for divorce against his second wife, on Dec. 27. He averred that his wife had deliberately burned him on the nose and then laughed at his discomfiture. He cited other instances of cruelty.

In her cross-bill Mrs. Strauss declares that he spent his evenings at home looking through high powered binoculars. From a vantage point at one of the outside windows in their twelfth floor apartment he gazed into the apartments of other apartment dwellers, always female, who had been so careless as to neglect to pull down their shades, the bill states.

When Mrs. Strauss protested he is said to have beaten her. In desperation she threw away the binoculars, according to the bill, and was severely beaten. Strauss is said to have spent hours at this pastime of prying on the neighbors.

Humiliated at Office.

On the occasions that she visited him at his office, Mrs. Strauss states, her husband exposed her to embarrassment and humiliation by making vulgar and embarrassing comparisons between her limbs and figure and those of his models whom he called in for that purpose. When she became provoked he would laugh and call her a prude, the bill alleges.

Strauss is said to have kept and used liquor in his home and at his office. He is said to have urged his wife to use the liquor and demanded that she accompany him to speakeasies. When she refused, the bill states, he berated and beat her.

Mrs. Strauss sets her husband's income from the business at $15,000 a year and states that he receives $35,000 from other sources. She estimates his holdings at $500,000 in making a demand for alimony. In asking for the custody of the daughter, Mrs. Strauss declares that her husband has mental and sex complexes which make it dangerous and unsafe for herself and the daughter to live with him.

If the authorities are lax the elder's will provides his money shall go to the foreign missionary board of the same church, with headquarters in Tacoma, Wash.

SIX DEFENDANTS IN EAST CHICAGO RUM TRIAL FREED

The ranks of defendants in the East Chicago liquor conspiracy trial, now entering its second week before Federal Judge Slick at Hammond, were reduced by six yesterday at the conclusion of the government's case, leaving 20 on trial. Three men were released because witnesses had failed to identify them and the others were dismissed by order of the court.

Those released were Capt. Edward Knight of the East Chicago police force, Fred Brenman, now serving a prison sentence for murder, and Bill Buduris, who had been indicted as a bootlegger. Judge Slick then sustained motions dismissing Joe Kowalski, Julius Kovach and George Matovino, who had been put on trial as bootleggers. A wordy appeal for a similar ruling in behalf of Lester Ottenheimer, prominent East Chicago lawyer, was made by Attorney Benjamin P. Epstein of Chicago, but the court reserved decision until this morning. Ottenheimer was accused of "fixing" a liquor case.

Hale Due to Testify.

Mayor Raleigh P. Hale and Chief of Police James W. Regan of East Chicago are expected to take the stand shortly after court convenes today. The two are the principal remaining defendants. Government witnesses have given testimony accusing them of running a wide open community.

A fair sample of conditions in the town, as depicted by the prosecution, was contained in the testimony given yesterday by Agent D. N. Ladd of the department of justice.

Ladd recited a conversation he said he had had with an alleged bootlegger, Sanford Overall, a Negro, who is one of the defendants. He said Overall told him that he and two other defendants, Grice Chandler and Eldridge, also Negroes, met with Mayor Hale in April, 1925, and that Hale said he needed their support.

"But can we run our places?" the Negroes asked, according to Ladd.

"Yes, we'll take care of you," the mayor responded, according to the witness, and proceeded to divide East Chicago into three districts, allotting each a section in which he could operate. Later, Ladd quoted Overall as saying, a white man approached him and asked if he didn't want police protection. "Don't need it," said Overall and the next week he was raided by the police.

Doctor Is Witness.

Dr. John Komorowski testified that for four months in 1927 he had been medical examiner at a vice den run by John Antonion, one of the defendants. He was discharged from that service, he said, when Antonion told him "the police are taking care of that now." Leon Sourrou, another department of justice agent, quoted Soledad Moreno, a Mexican woman, who is on trial, as saying she purchased her alcohol for $5 per gallon, paying $1 per gallon for "protection."

POLAND SOUND, SAYS C. S. DEWEY ON VISIT TO CITY

Poland is standing soundly upon its economic feet, its currency is stabilized and it is making excellent progress in every way, Charles S. Dewey, financial adviser to the Polish government, said yesterday. Mr. Dewey, with Mrs. Dewey, is in Chicago for a week's visit, following two years and three months in Warsaw.

"Poland is a country of 150,000 square miles and 30,000,000 population," Mr. Dewey said. "It is now establishing itself as a transit country. Poland and Roumania are in the path of the shortest practical route across Europe and they are developing their railways and transportation lines accordingly."

Prior to service in Poland Mr. Dewey was assistant secretary of the treasury.

FATHER PRESSES DAUGHTER'S HEAD TO RESHAPE IT

The efforts of Alexander Blackman, 808 Cass stret, to change the shape of his daughter's head caused his arrest yesterday and his detention at the psychopathic hospital for observation. Policeman Albert Casey of the Chicago avenue station found Blackman's daughter, Helen, 14 years old, wearing a heavy leather helmet, with adjustable chin straps, and arrested Blackman after a struggle.

Blackman's wife, Camilla, told Judge Alfred O. Erickson in the Chicago avenue court that Helen had been ill for a long time and that she permitted her husband to treat the child by changing the shape of her head. Since the girl's condition showed no improvement, however, she said she suggested that Blackman abandon the helmet but he refused. Yesterday she told Casey of the case.

Helen, who is in the sixth grade of the Holy Name school, is being cared for by juvenile authorities.

OF 1930 CREATION:

A Distinguished Array of PIERCE-ARROWS IN FOUR NEW DIMENSIONS

Introducing a New Model, slightly smaller, and priced as low as $2595

More important, there are engineering developments of vital consideration . . all present in every car of the 1930 line.

• • •

MECHANICALLY, as well as modishly, Pierce-Arrow keeps abreast of the hour. Its improvements are never saved for an occasion, never sensationalized . . although it has pioneered some of the greatest.

So it is that today's Straight Eight line by Pierce-Arrow is possessed of every feature worthy of adoption by America's finest motor car. For example:

Silent gear-shifts . . non-shatterable glass . . super-safety brakes . . low-swung gravity centers . . hydraulic shock absorbers, etc., etc. All Pierce-Arrow features . . each having been added as it proved itself . . and without particular mention or especial acclaim.

TALK OF TIPSY DRY RAIDER SEEN CAUSE OF BOMB

Melrose Park Victim Aiding U. S. Cleanup.

State officials were critical yesterday of government prohibition enforcement methods which they said caused the bombing of the home of Guy C. Guerine, village attorney of Melrose Park, who was honest but not open in his efforts to rid his home town of an alky ring. A drunken prohibition agent was accused of having informed a roadhouse keeper of Guerine's activities—and two bombs followed early yesterday morning.

Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney, Lieut. George Barker of the bomb squad, and Melrose park officials coöperated with Assistant United State's Attorney Daniel Anderson in making an investigation and the report they made to Prohibition Administrator E. C. Yellowley listed the following:

When the government indicted 150 residents and officials of Melrose Park for alky cooking a year ago Guerine gave the government considerable assistance. Then he became the Republican committeeman of the district and was appointed village attorney by President E. G. Brust, who was elected on a law enforcement platform.

New Stills Spring Up.

The Melrose Park alky ring was broken up when a number of its members were fined, but recently many new stills were put in operation in the suburb, which has a large Italian population. Prosecutor Anderson heard about the stills. He sent for Guerine.

"Yes, it's true, there are many stills running again," Guerine said, "and the chief of police is letting them run." He gave several addresses.

Anderson sent for the village president and the chief of police and they went to his office accompanied by Trustee Imburgio. Anderson gave them a list of stills and told them he wanted those places raided and wanted the prisoners turned over to the government.

Fears Some Shooting.

Imburgio demurred, saying he didn't want to see any one shot.

"Who will be shot?" Anderson demanded.

"Guerine," Imburgio replied.

That was last Friday. It was just yesterday that officials learned how Guerine's name came to be used. Here's what they told Yellowley:

"Last Friday Prohibition Agent William Knejan became drunk in the roadhouse of Nick De Grasse. He became talkative and gave away government information. He told what he was going to do. He told De Grasse that Guerine told the location of the stills.

"De Grasse promptly called Guerine and warned him against giving any more information. He told Guerine he'd be killed if he didn't keep his mouth shut and let the stills alone. Guerine called Anderson but in the meanwhile Anderson had ordered the raids and several stills were seized. Then, early yesterday morning, two bombs were set off at Guerine's home with the evident intent of killing him."

Mr. Yellowley said he would investigate and take the proper action.

Two black powder bombs were exploded at the Guerine home, the first one at a side entrance four feet from the Guerines' bedroom and a few seconds later the second one exploded under the front porch. Guerine and his wife were thrown out of bed and Guerine armed himself with his army pistol and went out, but the bombers had fled.

Guerine, who is 34 years old, was wounded and gassed in France, had been planning a trip to Florida for his health. After the bombing he was in a state of nervous excitement and when he went later to the home of his brother he was suffering from the ordeal.

Calls County Rotten.

"It's almost impossible for a public official to be honest in this county," Guerine said. "They threatened me and I laughed at them. Let them bomb or shoot. I'm going to see if a man can stay honest in a Cook county office and live."

Chief Investigator Roche sent men to Broadview to investigate the bombing of President William Evans' home early yesterday morning—about the same time as the bombing of Guerine's home. This bomb inflicted but little damage.

"I have been village president for eight years," Evans said, "and I received no threats and I do not know any one who might consider me an enemy. I have asked Chief of Police Andrew Borg to coöperate with the state's attorney's office in hunting the bomber."

"The only solution I can offer is that the bomber dropped his package at the wrong door," said Chief Borg. "It must have been a case of mistaken identity."

9 OF ARMY'S ARCTIC PLANES DROP BEHIND IN SPOKANE FLIGHT

Three of the pursuit ships that left Minot this morning landed at Havre to spend the night, being delayed along the route until too late to complete the 125 miles from Havre here.

With the 18 pursuit ships that left Selfridge field thus accounted for, an official effort was being made to check on two of the four heavier transport ships that were believed to be somewhere along the route to Glasgow.

Anna Nilsson Has New Hip, Made from Shin Bone

PLANE HOPS TO NOME TO BEGIN EIELSON HUNT

NOME, Alaska, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Pilot Matt Niemenen, Maj. H. C. Deckard and Mechanic Sam Macauley, after a hop of nearly 250 miles from Nulato yesterday, waited here today for the plane bearing Capt. Pat Reed and his two companions from Unalakleet, across Norton sound. The two planes will be used to search for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, missing since Nov. 9 in Siberia. Capt. Reed's party, thought lost, was located on Saturday after having been missing a week.

Suffragan Bishop Critically Injured in an Auto Crash

Boston, Mass., Jan. 13.—(AP)—The Rt. Rev. Samuel G. Babcock, 79, suffragan bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts, was critically injured here tonight when he was struck by an automobile while on his way to attend the Clerical club dinner at the University club. Little hope is held for his recovery.

5 PCT. PAY RAISE TO BE FORCED ON DETROIT FIREMEN

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 13.—(AP)—The Detroit board of fire commissioners at a meeting today took an unfriendly attitude toward Capt. Charles A. Creed, secretary of the firemen's fund, who had announced that firemen do not want an unsolicited 5 per cent wage increase recently voted by the commissioners.

The board will go ahead with its plans to put the raise into effect. At the same time instructions were given to Chief Stephen J. Demay to take such disciplinary action against Creed as he sees fit. Creed's making a public announcement was asserted to be in violation of a department regulation and to "put the board in a bad light."

Charles F. Clippert, president of the board, said he had been informed that Creed and his associates wanted to hold off the 5 per cent increase in the hope of getting a larger raise through a referendum, as was done recently in New York.

FORMER CONVICT SLAIN; BODY IS FOUND IN ALLEY

Slain, the police believe, in a beer flat brawl, the body of James Glashine, 31 year old ex-convict of 2845 Oak street, River Grove, was found face down in the slush in an alley in the rear of 843 West Harrison street last evening by a telegraph messenger. His skull was fractured, his neck broken, his shirt was ripped to shreds, and his torn coat had been jerked off his back.

The soles of his shoes were dry, establishing the scene of his death as being elsewhere than where the body lay, according to Lieut. William McCarthy of the homicide squad. Workers in a nearby candy factory, who started home through the alley half an hour before the telegraph messenger, said the body was not there at that time.

In Glashine's pocket was a letter from Sheriff William I. Traeger of Los Angeles advising him to stay in Chicago and not seek employment in California because jobs were scarce out there. Another letter, from the state board of pardons and paroles,

END PALESTINE ROW NOW! LEAGUE TOLD BY BRITAIN

Demands Action to Settle Wailing Wall Rights.

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA., Jan. 13.—Determined efforts to break through the Geneva red tape and stir the league of nations into action against the possibility of a recurrence of the recent Palestine outbreaks was made today by England, who reminded the league that it had brought the matter before the council eight years ago and has been awaiting a reply ever since.

England's decisive demand that immediate steps be taken to establish the rights of the Jews and Moslems as regards the wailing wall in Jerusalem was contained in a lengthy declaration by Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary, who requested that a special commission be appointed to settle the wailing wall dispute.

Former Demand Shelved.

Mr. Henderson's declaration followed a similar statement last fall, which was shelved by the league mandates commission because it claimed England had not presented its request properly. Declaring this excuse merely technical and demanding "an early final determination on the question, which is essential to the interests, peace, and good government of Palestine," Mr. Henderson asked the council to authorize the British government to set up a temporary commission to devote itself entirely to the wailing wall wrangle.

This morning's session, which marked the tenth anniversary of the league's existence, was opened with a warm eulogy to the late Dr. Gustav Stresemann, German foreign minister, by August Zaleski, Polish foreign minister.

Youth Seized as "Bomber."

The combined efforts of hundreds of gendarmes and plain clothes men, who inspected everybody entering the league secretariat today, fearing that somebody was going to toss a bomb at Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, had an anti-climax in the arrest of a demented youth carrying a cap pistol, with which he intended to frighten the council members.

The "criminal," whose name is Paul Straub, declared he had planned to enter the council room and fire blanks into the air, then tell the delegates he wanted protection against the high price of radio sets.

RUBIO TO APPOINT TELLEZ, FRIEND OF U.S., AS FOREIGN MINISTER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 13.—According to a prominent political leader, the incoming president, Pascual Ortiz Rubio, will appoint Manuel C. Tellez, Mexican ambassador to Washington, as minister of foreign relations. While other Mexican representatives in the United States were busy with propaganda night and day, often in a way unpleasant to the United States, Ambassador Tellez has kept in the good graces of the American government.

"Mexico's incoming president has been trained in foreign diplomatic circles and knows Europe and Latin America and the broad questions affecting both," this leader said. "He will not go to the presidency with a chip on his shoulder, for he knows that in diplomacy one must give as well as take.

"He is anxious to direct the reconstruction of Mexico, and he knows that success depends largely upon friendly relations with foreign nations, especially the United States. Señor Tellez, therefore, is the natural candidate for minister of foreign relations."

Theater Ticket Thief Is Held to Grand Jury

Helander in Felony court. Mrs. Lucille Chalcoplos, landlady of a rooming house at 8 East Grand avenue, who admitted accepting loot from LeFever, was bound over on two charges of receiving stolen property.

SCHACHT BOMBS WORLD BANK, BUT FUSE BURNS OUT

Allies Hear Protest and Go Back to Work.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Jan. 13.—Hjalmar Horace Greeley Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, came to The Hague today and, entering the cloister-like chambers of the Dutch parliament where Jackson E. Reynolds, the New York financier, was presiding over the international bank organization committee, poised carefully and hurled a great big bomb.

The bombshell was in the form of a letter, which said that the Reichsbank would not participate in the subscription of Germany's share in the capital of the superbank unless Great Britain gave up sequestered German property and France waived all rights to military and political sanctions if Germany defaults on reparations under the Young plan.

Bomb Sputters, Goes Out.

But the bomb turned out to be a dud, and after smoking and sputtering for a while, turned stone cold and harmless. Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer, said:

"Dr. Schacht has no right to veto decisions taken by the governments, and the governments must proceed to their work."

Most of the German delegation believe that Dr. Schacht hasn't the support of the majority of the Reichsbank directorate and that he merely tried to bluff the bankers' committee into a stampede to wreck the conference.

The big six powers sent instructions to Mr. Reynolds for the bankers' committee to resume examining the eleven amendments that the allied governments demand to the trust deed drafted at Baden-Baden, under which the superbank takes over the collection and distribution of reparations.

Scores Great Progress.

Agreement was reached on the date of German payments, the fifteenth of the month, as demanded; on the moratorium question, with the provision that at the end of any period of suspended payments the amount postponed becomes payable immediately, and a special advisory committee is to determine whether Germany's economic life is endangered when moratorium is asked.

An agreement was reached on the sanctions clause, which the German delegation telegraphed to Berlin for the cabinet's approval, and which Premier Tardieu of France is carrying to Paris tonight to submit to a special French cabinet meeting tomorrow.

SUBSIDY FOR SUGAR IN FORM OF BOUNTY PROPOSED BY HOWELL

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—(AP)—A federal bounty to domestic sugar growers and refiners, which would be similar in operation to the export debenture plan now a part of the tariff bill, was proposed today by Senator Howell of Nebraska, while the senate plodded along with its fourth day of debate on the proposed higher sugar levy without reaching a vote.

The Republican independent senator offered his proposal in the form of an amendment to the Hawley-Smoot measure. It had been discussed at a meeting of western Republicans, but no agreement to support it as a group was reached. Senator Borah of Idaho, a leader of the group, who has said he would favor a bounty in the absence of proof that a higher duty would be beneficial, will address the senate tomorrow on the sugar question.

Howell said off the floor that his amendment would provide for retention of present tariffs and a bounty or an "allowance" of three-quarters of a cent a pound on sugar produced in continental United States. He estimated its cost at $18,000,000 a year.

A HOME that is protected against depreciation is a prime investment for its owner. One that depreciates rapidly is more like a losing speculation. Bankers appreciate this vital truth. That is why such men as Arthur Lehman advise you to build for permanency, with Copper, Brass and Bronze.

Brass or Copper pipe, Copper flashings, gutters and downspouts and solid Brass or Bronze hardware and lighting fixtures do not depreciate in value or service. These metals cannot rust. They serve without repair or replacement for generations. When you build or buy, be sure to specify them.

Their presence adds appreciably to the value and permanence of any structure, whether it be skyscraper or modest home.

TRUE STORY MAGAZINE

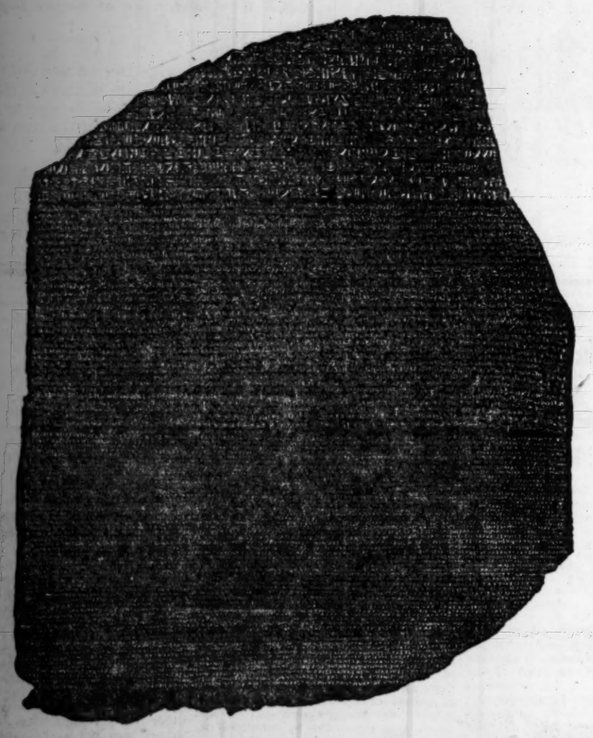
VOLUME II. TUESDAY, JANUARY 14, 1930 No. 1

The True Story of the Masses In the Long Roll of History



This is the Rosetta Stone that supplied the key to the mysterious hieroglyphics of ancient Egypt. This stone was inscribed in the ancient Egyptian hieroglyphics, then under that in the ordinary Egyptian characters, and finally in the Greek. And thus, by taking the Greek parallels, the first hieroglyphic dictionary was worked out and the story of the vast civilization of Egypt became an open book.

JAMES HARVEY ROBINSON has written one of the most conclusive sentences in the English language. Indeed, it comes as a conclusion of the two tremendous books which Professor Breasted and he have written on the Conquest and Ordeal of Civilization.

And this is the sentence whose enormous significance would be missed nine times out of ten by a casual reading. Robinson says,

"To become historical-minded is to attain intellectual and moral majority."

Indeed, it is only after reading these two great contributions to historical literature that one arrives at the deep significance of this simply stated fact—that to have become historical minded is to have become grown-up intellectually and morally.

* * * *

These True Story pages, which will follow in this form, will be devoted only to those who have attained that intellectual and moral majority. Their function will be to deal with some of the great underlying forces that are striving to hold this rapidly changing civilization together WHILE THOSE CHANGES ARE BEING MADE. And that function will have little to do with the superficial evidence of these changes nor the trigger-minded conclusions for their adjustment.

* * * *

For example, to say that every big city in America ought to be "scrapped"—that they are all horse-and-buggy cities in an automobile age—is true in point of fact but superficial in point of conclusion.

All of our big cities are horse-and-buggy cities in an automobile age.

They ought to be "scrapped". Yet to "scrap" them would make chaos of the greater part of America's economic set-up.

Or again, to say that in this modern age of sex equality the convention of marriage has become archaic and ought to be "scrapped" is equally superficial.

Again and again we hear the abolition of marriage advocated by the intellectuals and free-minded people. Yet those who are historical-minded know that any such drastic change in so deep-seated a convention would destroy the social set-up of a nation almost overnight.

* * * *

In this age especially of so many and such rapid social and economic changes and with such powerful advocates back of such changes, it is almost a marvel that our entire civilization hasn't already been destroyed.

Cities are readjusted and re-shaped to new conditions, buildings are torn down and put up with the rapidity of a stage setting; sex breaks its long inhibition of silence and bursts through to the light of print in books and magazines; labor in the millions suddenly becomes powerful with a new aggregate of wealth; whole sections of Europe become swallowed up in our melting pots—enough social and economic changes to unsettle a dozen civilizations if they had come with such rapidity in the past.

* * * *

And yet we go peacefully on.

What is it then that acts as our balance wheel? What is it that holds us together while all these tremendous changes are being made?

In this series of pages to follow we shall go rather deeply into a subject which has been fairly well recognized but which somehow has found scant place in the historical literature of the past.

That subject will be the part that the masses have played in all of the periods of transition and change throughout the civilizations of history.

And we think we shall be able to show that the very "slowness of the masses in accepting these drastic changes," about which the intellectuals have complained so bitterly in all periods, has been the very balance-wheel that has carried each civilization along while those intellectuals were making those very changes.

Here at True Story Magazine we have the actual evidence in great cross-sections of hundreds of thousands of wage earning families and the testimony of tens of thousands of letters and manuscripts to draw from. And in the light of this testimony there can be no question even to a layman that here, amongst our wage earners, is your balance-wheel, that here is your stabilizing force, while all these new and drastic changes are finding adjustment. And if this hypothesis will hold up, then you may credit to your masses one of the greatest of contributions to civilization.

TO BECOME historical-minded—to understand not merely the sweep and flow of civilizations with their origins and declines, but to know the forces that have built them up and held them together and stabilized them in their transitional periods while they were unconsciously preparing to pass on their slowly garnered findings to the next civilization that was to be their overthrow; to know and to classify and to come to an understanding of the significance of all these physical and social forces that were at work during the comings and goings of all these peoples of the past—this means that you have grown up, intellectually and morally; that you have attained your majority.

MR. HOOVER ON CRITICISM.

A letter of President Hoover to Dr. W. O. Thompson, president emeritus of Ohio State university, was released for publication in Monday's papers, so timed as to be in a fashion a preface to the preliminary report of the law enforcement commission. Dr. Thompson had written in New Year's greeting to the President a sympathetic appreciation of the responsibilities and experiences in the White House and Mr. Hoover replied at length.

The President said he was aware of the effects of malice and of the efforts of partisans who would gain their points even at the expense of the country, but that he had confidence in the reliability of the democratic masses. There were, he said, individuals, newspapers, associations and institutions which would be pleased to see that the President always had a supply of hair shirts for use and "there will always be partisans desirous that the President should fail even if their stratagems injure the country or those whose daily toil is to mix mud pies. But if these blots were other than exceptions this nation would not have swept to a mightier and mightier destiny every year since the independence."

Political action in a representative democracy has an expectancy of criticism and opposition. In the organization of the United States it is required and encouraged. In the American two party system it is desirable that the opposition party shall be strong rather than weak. It is fair that the mistakes of government should be seized upon by party opposition and made the most of. It is to be expected and it is desirable that outside of the parties there shall be criticism.

The form of criticism and opposition has improved steadily from the first days of the republic. It was indefensible in its violence in earlier days. Washington's experience with public comment was cruel and unjust. The abuse which was used as criticism was a reflection upon national life. Improvement in manners came slowly, although the fatal remedy of the sedition law was tried and ruined its authors. Even in the eighties, and later, epithet was used as criticism, as the "stuffed prophet of Buzzard's Bay" had reason to know.

Now it is policy rather than personality which is made the subject of public discussion in important national affairs. Presidents in recent times have not found occasion to resent indignities of criticism. The larger part of Mr. Hoover's activities was cast where his decisions were not greatly if at all affected by political action and its modifications. The change to political action may find him less prepared to adjust himself to opposition than would be the case with a man long accustomed to the processes of government and public policies.

Mr. Hoover believes that the people will act dependably when the truth is given them. These ideas are the necessary conventions of American public office and they have some workable value, but there is difficulty in getting a general agreement as to what truth may be revealed even by ascertainable facts.

The processes of government are hardly the processes of engineering, and an administration does not get a law in the same way that a constructor would build a dam.

Government, not the government but government in theory and act, has seldom needed criticism in the United States more than it needs it now. It is trifling with old principles and experimenting with new ones. It is changing forms and doctrines and it is confusing what may be law with what should be conscience. Some citizens think these changes are good. Others think they are destructive. The United States needs an extension rather than a restriction of criticism and opposition.

BALTIC STATES AND RUSSIA.

China's recent experience with the soviet in Manchuria, to say nothing of the persistent and ubiquitous Russian and communist intrigue in China's internal affairs, will hardly be ignored by the governments of the new Baltic nations. We do not know how far they have moved toward federation or alliance for defense against their huge and ruthless neighbor, although there have been reports from time to time that coöperation for that purpose was under discussion. The possibilities of defensive alliance among the smaller states formed from former Russian territory—Finland, Latvia, Esthonia, and Lithuania—suggest also understandings, if not alliances, with the more powerful states, Poland and Sweden. Rumania might be drawn into such a league, but its value would be doubtful. The natural league would be that of the Baltic countries, which are related and contiguous, and should be bound by a common recognition that they must hang together if they are not to be hanged separately, as one of our revolutionary fathers reminded the American colonial rebels.

The new Baltic states have a good many citizens who have lived in the United States and, returning to their native land, are prominent in affairs. These men have doubtless learned something of the American system of federated commonwealths and the practice of compromise and coöperation for common defense and progress. They should be able to help substantially in the development of a system of federation which would strengthen the new states for defense against Russian penetration or invasion and produce the benefits of coöperation in other important respects. Nationalist particularism is a rather costly indulgence in this and other parts of Europe. The Baltic peoples are intelligent and progressive and should be wise enough to avoid its excesses and contrive a profitable union compatible with local autonomy and individuality.

CHICAGO AND THE RAILROADS.

The Railway Age protests that the railroads are abused by THE TRIBUNE and the other newspapers of Chicago. What we have asked of those railroads which have not already responded is the construction of modern terminals and the electrification of their Chicago properties. Because the railroads have helped to make Chicago a great city the Railway Age is offended by these requests.

The installation of safety equipment here, the Chicago and North Western and the Union stations, the Illinois Central electrification, and the recent adoption of faster train schedules are evidence of the railroads' beneficence which, it is charged, we ignore. We are also accused of ignoring the decline in passenger revenue since 1920. Moreover, we are accused of championing a competitor to the railroads, the waterway. The Railway Age adds that the railroads fear extortionate taxation should they invest in new terminals. Because the railroads employ 80,000 men in the Chicago district they deserve greater consideration.

The Railway Age does not meet the issue. It does not answer the charge that the preservation of obsolete, inconvenient, and unsightly terminals within sight of Chicago's loop is a scandal and disgrace. The Grand Central station was opened to the public in 1890, the Illinois Central in 1893, the Dearborn in 1885, and the La Salle street in 1903. Built for a city of one million, they are now, deteriorated, serving a city of more than three millions. Because Chicago's growth may be credited in large part to the railroads is no reason for us to be satisfied with antiquated service. The railroads didn't come here for charitable reasons. We had business for them, and when they came we produced more business for them and for ourselves. There will be still more business for them when they catch up with the twentieth century.

Chicago is not indifferent to the improvements which the railroads have made. We are pleased with the new Union station, but we did not get it until years after the old station was a conspicuous survival of a primitive civilization. We are justified in demanding that all the railroads provide the same service that a few have provided.

The railroads themselves are to blame for the decline in passenger income. They have lost this revenue to buses, electric lines, and other enterprising transportation systems. Nineteenth century traffic methods could not compete with the genius of the twentieth century in transportation.

True, a number of the railroads have adopted faster schedules in the last year. But this was the first increase in speed in years. It was a belated experiment in progress.

The lakes-gulf waterway is not a threat to the railroads. It is a threat to the east. That is why the railroads are opposed to it. Ownership and control of the railroads are in the hands of easterners. Eastern capital is jealous or at least indifferent to the physical growth of Chicago. Accordingly electrification and the construction of new terminals are reserved for the east. Likewise the east and the eastern controlled railways don't want the waterway, which would stop emigration of Chicago industries and the attraction to Chicago of other industries which would naturally locate here if the transportation factor were equal.

If the railroads are restrained from improving their property for fear of taxation, their moribundity is exposed. What progress would ever be made if men were deterred by this consequence? The Railway Age has ignored the fact that, however much the assessment of the railroads might be increased, this expense would be handsomely counterbalanced by the sale of air rights.

In answer to the statement that the railroads employ 80,000 men in the Chicago district, we would say, "Yes?"

Editorials of the Day

NORMALCY AT CHICAGO.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

All quiet along the banks of the drainage canal is Chicago's New Year's message of good cheer to an interested world. The last day of the old year brought nothing more startling than the murder of another policeman and the accidental but fortunate killing of the killer by his own enthusiastic but too wildly shooting companions.

The present city government has so little money in the municipal treasury that it proposes a necessary reduction of the size of the police force early in 1930. Police Commissioner Russell announces that the reduction will scarcely be necessary if the killing of policemen keeps on at its normal rate.

The final police murder of 1929 is typical and interesting. The killer would undoubtedly have escaped had he not been plugged by his careless pals. He is posthumously identified as a young man of 26 who has been a professional criminal since his 17th year. At the time of the murder he was at liberty under parole from the Illinois state penitentiary. Most police killers in Chicago—and many police killers elsewhere—are paroled professionals. Why should a state pay salaries to parole boards if they are not going to be busy at their jobs?

This final killing of 1929 rather casts a wet blanket on Chicago's premature boast that her 392 murders of 1929 compare favorably with the 510 of 1928 and with similarly impressive figures of other recent years. It shows that the large city is running true to form. The only unusual and pleasing consideration is that the murderer happened to get killed. He is not held for execution after due process of law; Chicago professional thugs never are. He was not even killed by his police victim, which is the only serious danger incidental to the banditry business of Cook county. He was happily bumped off by his own pluguly associates and thus prevented from starting the new year with ambitious resolutions and plans for better and bigger robberies and murders.

Whatever you may say about the laxness, inefficiency or clownishness of certain Chicago officials you cannot deny that the state parole board at Springfield is earning its salary.

EATING HIGH SEASONED FOODS.

S. asks for a discussion of the effects of high seasonings or condiments, such as strong peppers, mustards, etc., on the digestive organs or health of the human race.

Physicians generally are of the opinion that eating foods heavily doused with condiments is responsible for most of the cirrhosis of the liver not caused by drinking alcoholic beverages. The opinion has been offered that to get rid of this trouble it will be necessary to prohibit the use of red hot condiments, as well as that of alcoholic beverages and, in each case, to make prohibition work.

Whatever the nature of the liver or gall bladder trouble, the liver substance suffers. We speak of gallstones and gall bladder infections as though the disease were limited to the gall bladder. Many an operation on this structure has failed to give the complete relief expected because the liver itself was crippled and there was no way by which that crippled organ could be surgically treated.

In all gall bladder and gallstone cases the wise physician puts his patient on a diet that is free from mustard, horseradish, pepper sauce, chili, red or black pepper and all other related condiments. Since many pickles are heavily flavored with essential oils and condiments they, too, are barred. Pickles that contain little or none of such flavors are harmless enough.

If it be true that men who are trying to get on with crippled livers must avoid the use of hot seasonings, why use them in the first place? If they make a bad liver worse why give them an opportunity to make a good liver bad? Some people add them to their foods, and especially their meats, because they think them necessary for the digestion of heavy foods. Why eat a food that cannot be digested unless it is doused with sauce?

However, some research work by Dr. Per Fend indicates that dousing with chills does not make digestion easy. He found that men thought it did so and thinking so does make a thing so, to a limited extent. However, aside from making them think so, it was not especially so. Eating three ounces of fresh chili a day did not increase digestion in well checked experiments.

A CASE FOR ANTITOXIN.

Mrs. D. E. M. writes: About six months ago I was down on my knees chopping shrubbery when I was suddenly seized in one knee with something like rheumatism. I suffered about 36 hours, and had to call my physician the second time before I got relief. The knee joint was swollen and had fever in it for several days. Now it doesn't pain me except when I put weight on it, but I am unable to walk without crutches and my limb swells from the knee down.

REPLY:

You give a good description of old fashioned rheumatism or rheumatic fever. This is the kind of rheumatism that is best suited to the antitoxin treatment.

You should have your heart watched, since this type of rheumatism is reasonably certain to involve the heart to some degree.

GALLSTONES AND CURE.

C. W. W. writes:

1. Can gallstones be cured without an operation?
2. In the case of gallstones does the gall bladder ever break?
3. Can gallstones cause excessive heartburn?

REPLY:

1. In some instances the symptoms may be made to disappear. Otherwise, the answer is—No.
2. Yes.
3. Yes. In fact, that is the most frequent symptom.

SHORTS VERSUS HEAVIES.

H. C. writes: Is it preferable to wear heavy or summer underwear in the winter time?

REPLY:

Young and vigorous people can wear light underwear in winter with advantage. They can wear heavy wraps when they go out. Old and enfeebled people need heavy underwear.

HOLDS DEBTOR'S BAGGAGE.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Last month a roomer moved out of my rooming house owing me thirty dollars. I know nothing of his present whereabouts. I still have some of his baggage. Have I the right to sell it? P. K.

A creditor does not, merely by virtue of being in possession of goods belonging to his debtor, have any technical right to sell without legal proceedings, although the right of set off would give him a qualified immunity if he sold without right. Hence, unless the value of the goods is small compared with the debt, so that they are not likely to be reclaimed, a safer course is to proceed under the 1921 statute which gives any person who has expended labor or material on a chattel or furnished storage at the request of its owner a lien analogous to the familiar mechanic's lien on real estate. Such lien ceases at the expiration of 60 days from delivery of the goods to the owner, unless claimant files in the recorder's office a lien notice. Such lien may be foreclosed by ordinary chancery proceedings or by advertisement and sale, the first step of which is to deliver to the sheriff a certified copy of the claim for lien, indorsed with request for foreclosure. Adverse parties may within ten days deny the lien, in which case foreclosure in chancery must be begun within an additional ten days. If no denial, the sheriff advertises and sells.

If your principal object is simply to get the goods off your hands it is simpler to ask a storage warehouse to call for them for the owner's account. The warehouse can easily sell for its charges.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

GRAVEL REMOVED.

Chicago, Dec. 25.—[Friend of the People.]—About a month ago some repair work was done on the street car line at 73d and Phillips. Some gravel was left there and now it is all over the sidewalk on the southwest side of 73d street. Would appreciate it very much if you would see that this is removed, as it is very unsightly as well as hard to walk over. R. S.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

WELL, WHADDA YA THINK OF IT?

Of course most of you are going to say, "I thought it was great! What did he say?" That hair shirt part in his letter is what most people will talk about after they get around to reading it. Mr. Hoover says a President of this here great commonwealth wears a hair shirt. You know, in the old days people who didn't want to be too comfortable here on earth for fear they would lose out in heaven put on a hair shirt that kept scratching 'em and worrying 'em so there was no danger of them getting too gay.

People don't wear hair shirts any more, but today they break out with the winter itch, and that's about as bad. Anyhow, Mr. Hoover says he has to wear a hair shirt. Even the Democrats are going to feel sorry about that. Every time after this when we see Mr. Hoover in his long tailed coat and gray striped trousers and all the rest of it and spats and a silk hat, looking so well fed and happy as he shakes hands with the visitors from Oshkosh and Rising Sun who get out of the Seeing Washington rubberneck wagon and drop in at the White House for a few minutes to shake hands with the President, we're going to remember that under that long tailed coat he's got on a hair shirt, and it's mighty hard to look pleasant when you've got on a hair shirt.

We're sorry about Mr. Hoover having to wear that hair shirt. Too bad it didn't get burned up in the White House fire. Maybe that's what caused the fire. Mr. Hoover might have laid off the hair shirt for a few hours while he went to the White House party and one of his secretaries might have blundered into the room and seen the hair shirt on the back of a chair and said to himself, "Now's the time; I'll burn tha damn thing," and taken it down to the office part of the White House and touched a match to it. Then the fool fire department had to come along and put it out and the next morning Mr. Hoover had to put it back on again.

Tough luck! But if we were he we wouldn't worry about that any more. Before that disarmament conference is over in London, Mr. Hoover will be mighty lucky if some of those diplomatic bandits don't steal his shirt.

SONG.

Player, lift your violin,
Melody is near;
Lean and let the wide world
Hum against your ear;
Will you strive to pick your notes
Out of dead and crumbling throats,
While the song of heaven floats
Even here?

Lo, in ever forest breath
New songs awaken;
From the wings of Life and Death
Rhapsodies are shaken;
High and low can lure you yet,
Skyscraper, moonset,
Fallow field and violet,
Symphonies untaken.

Holiness is in the night
Worship throbs above the white
Newly fallen snow;
God is in the growing field,
God is in the rain,
God has walked across the waves
Of the ripening grain;
Blind eyes are made to see,
Broken are the bars;
We have heard all His word
In the silent stars.

Player, lift your violin,
Melody is near.
Lean and let the wide world
Hum against your ear.
Will you strive to pick your notes
Out of dead and rumbling throats,
While the song of heaven floats

DOROTHY R. KISSLING.

AND MR. HOOVER in his letter telling about his troubles referred gently and sadly to "those whose daily toil is to mix mud pies." Now, who was he hitting at—the Democratic campaign committee, the enemies of the Volstead act, or column conductors? If he meant column conductors, all we've got to say is, Mr. Hoover, do you think that was nice?

"THE REPORTED ARREST in the last fiscal year of 80,000 persons," says the report of the law enforcement commission, "indicates a staggering number of what might be called focal points of infection." We don't know about the "focal points of infection" business, but we'll bet the "staggering part" is correct for most of the 80,000.

Boom! Listen to the Report!

Well, the prohibition enforcement commission has reported and Mr. Hoover has sent in a message to congress. "Gosh!" said we as we read that Mr. Hoover had asked for a tightening up of the laws, bigger and better jails, and more courts and prosecuting attorneys, "what's going to happen anyhow?" And just then the telephone rang and we answered and a voice said: "Say, do you want to buy some fine Canadian stuff? I just got in a big load an' I'm a sellin' it fer a hundred and twenty smackers a case an'—" We cut the scofflaw off with a few harsh words. But the point is that that bootlegger didn't seem to be a bit scared. And he must have read the commission's report and Hoover's message 'n' everything. And right on top of that the low life had the crust to call us up. And he sounded about as scared as a bulldog is of meeting a canary bird.

LAGNIAPPE.

"WE MUST bear in mind," said the commission's report, "the Whig tradition of the 'right of revolution.'" Is that a threat or a suggestion? Roll your own.

SONS OF WILD JACKASSES! That was the first, and now Senator Nye of North Dakota likens the belligerent Republicans in the senate to Balaam's ass that spoke. Senator Nye says the administration group in the upper house of congress is as blind and stubborn as Balaam was, but that the poor dumb ass saw the Angel of the Lord standing in the road and refused in spite of Balaam's cruel beating to go on. Well, the sons of the wild jackasses will hardly thank Senator Nye, although he is one of their number, for his simile. It will remind them of the fable of the man and the bear who were great friends. The man went to sleep and instructed the bear to keep the flies from bothering him. A fly lit on the man's forehead, and the bear—he must have been quite a large bear—picked up a rock as big as a bushel basket and dropped it down on the fly. Of course the rock must have utterly ruined the fly, but what it did to the sleeping gentleman. Tck! Tck!

ANYHOW, we love that "focal point of infection" in the commission's report. Neither do we.

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 14, 1865.

WASHINGTON. — The following confirmations of military promotions were made: Brig. Gen. William T. Sherman to be major general as of Aug. 12, 1864; Capt. Philip H. Sheridan to be brigadier general as of Sept. 20, 1864; Brig. Gen. P. H. Sheridan to be major general as of Nov. 8, 1864; Brig. Gen. George H. Thomas to be major general as of Dec. 15, 1864, and Maj. W. S. Hancock, quartermaster in the army, to be brigadier general.

WASHINGTON.—It is represented that Gen. Singleton's mission to Richmond, where he went under a pass from President Lincoln, embraces a statement to the rebel leaders of the necessity of submission—as it appears even to the copperhead mind of the north in the light of late elections. He will declare there is no prospect of the recall of the Emancipation Proclamation, that the north is fully determined to prosecute the war, and that, slavery being already gone, the only hope of the rebels lies in submission in time to prevent confiscation of their property.

NEW YORK.—The Richmond Enquirer of Jan. 10 favors the enlarging of Gen. Lee's powers and giving him entire control of military affairs. The Whig favors the consolidation of the rebel armies and the removal of Seddon from the war office. The Examiner says it is not afraid of being conquered by the northern enemy so much as of being defeated by Jeff Davis. The boldness of the rebel papers in denouncing Davis is attracting much attention here.

NEW YORK.—The Herald's Shenandoah valley correspondent mentions the rumor that Gen. Sheridan is to have a new and very important command.

JANUARY 14, 1900.

LONDON.—It is reported that intelligence has been received at headquarters of the Scots guards that Gen. Buller has again sustained a serious defeat. The war office declares that no news has come from the South African fronts.

LADYSMITH. — [By heliograph.]—The river is flooded, therefore communication by native runners is precarious. Large bodies of Boers were seen yesterday west and south. There was slight artillery fire today.

CHICAGO.—The Greater Chicago commission, through its executive committee, at a meeting at Kinsley's, decided to call a massmeeting for next Sunday. It was the unanimous opinion of those present that the project for a greater Chicago should be pushed with vigor from this time on.

NEW YORK.—Felix Morris, one of the best known character actors on the stage, died of pneumonia at the age of 50. He was with Rosina Vokes' company for seven seasons. He appeared twice as a star in Chicago, once at the Schiller, now the Dearborn, and once at Hooley's theater.

JANUARY 14, 1920.

BERLIN.—[By Parke Brown.]—One of those "gentle and harmless" mobs which the defenders of bolshevism say should not be met with armed opposition was given an opportunity to demonstrate freely before the reichstag. Twenty of the mob are dead and more than 100 wounded. The fight was over the workers' council bill. Die Freiheit published an appeal for all workers to quit work and march to the reichstag. Thousands gathered and radicals attempted to rush the building. The soldiers' rifles were torn from them, and a free for all fight started. The reserves used machine guns to quell the rioters.

WASHINGTON.—Forty well known men and women, speaking for 26 organizations comprising 20,000,000 members, descended upon the senate and made a determined effort to break the deadlock on the peace treaty. So far as could be ascertained they didn't budge a bolt.

CHICAGO.—Within the last twenty-four hours more than eighty cases of the flu, the scourge of 1918, have developed at the Great Lakes Training station. The station is under strict quarantine. In Chicago fourteen deaths from flu have occurred in the last seven days, with 158 new cases reported.

THE MINERS' RESPONSIBILITY.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—I took occasion recently to write you concerning your recent editorial which had for its text a bulletin dealing with the explosion at North McAlester, Okla., on Dec. 17. Both your editorial and that bulletin dealt, among other things, with mine safety devices and appliances, and the alleged hostile attitude thereto of mine owners in Oklahoma.

The inclosed clipping from the Daily Oklahoman of Jan. 4 should interest you. The chief state mine inspector and the district inspector state they have definitely reached the conclusion that the explosion was caused from a lighted match struck by one of the miners. I suggest that this report to the state officials would make a good text for an editorial dealing with the lack of care of miners to take elementary precautions for their own safety with respect to causes of accidents which are peculiarly within their own control and which cannot possibly be controlled by any expenditure of money or supervisory action by the mine owner.

Such editorial might well point out that despite the expenditure of large sums of money by a mine owner for protection equipment and inspection, accidents will continue to happen if the miners themselves are unwilling to exercise the most common and elementary precautions for their own safety. You might point a moral likewise with respect to other matters, such as the inevitable hue and cry raised by partisan organizations, etc., but doubtless these will readily occur to you.

W. F. PETER.

MRS. OR MISS.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Why do so many women engaged in business, professional work, or holding public office fail to indicate whether they are Miss or Mrs. in connection with the printing of their names on stationery? I am sure this is a question that comes every day to the lips of hundreds of secretaries and stenographers who must address letters to women—and address them accurately.

What is a secretary going to do when required to write an answer to a letter from, say, Ruth Anna Jones, chairman of some kind of a committee? A problem immediately arises. Will she say: "Dear Miss Jones" or "Dear Mrs. Jones"? Naturally anxious to be accurate, the secretary is forced to look the name up in the telephone directory or perhaps make a phone call, thus causing considerable inconvenience and delay. If she failed to take such pains and made a mistake in the designation of the woman addressed, she would in nine times out of ten hear about it later. Consideration of this matter by women in public life would be greatly appreciated, I am sure, by hard working stenographers and secretaries.

A SECRETARY.

SUPPRESSING DRY VIEWS.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Senator Upjohn from Kalamazoo, who represents the life for a pint state that is the source of the booze of the middle west, scolds THE TRIBUNE for condemning and exposing the evils of prohibition. Senator Upjohn thinks that the exercise of freedom of speech along such lines is treasonable; that if one thinks that the eighteenth amendment was a colossal blunder one should keep one's mouth shut. If some coast guard or prohibition agent thinks that the proper way to enforce this un-Christian-like law is to terrorize, maim, drown, shoot, and kill anybody and everybody who looks suspicious, then the patriotic attitude would be to keep quiet about it, hush it up, approve it, and glorify these unlawful and un-American actions of the law enforcement officials. To criticize would be treasonable, according to the code of Upjohn.

C. A. TOOLEN.

THE OPINION OF KALAMAZOO.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Jan. 10.—I am not alone in wishing you to know that the readers of THE TRIBUNE in the sixth district of Michigan thoroughly approve of your policies and editorials. This is in answer to the rebuke of THE TRIBUNE by State Senator J. T. Upjohn of Kalamazoo.

Your fearlessness and honesty of purpose is refreshing in these days of our noble experiment. Yours is so different from the editorials and editors of other papers I am acquainted with, whose editorials are contrary to their acts, and in some cases their actions are scurrilous.

Most all who know THE TRIBUNE and its editorials commend you and urge you on in your crusade.

THE MILLENNIUM.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—We were assured by the Anti-Saloon league that the loss of $5,000,000 license fees would be more than made up by a decreased police force if prohibition were adopted and, by golly, we are doing it. Who says prohibition is not a success? R. HILTON.

PROBE CONDITION OF McELROY BANK IN BLUE ISLAND

State Auditor Extends Hope to Depositors.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson gave hope yesterday to the depositors of the Blue Island Trust and Savings bank, which he closed "at the request of the directors for an examination and on account of the death of Gavin Blair McElroy, chairman of the board of directors." But others familiar with conditions at the bank were skeptical.

McElroy committed suicide last Friday, leaving a note to his partner, Kenneth S. Fitzpatrick, which read: "Take insurance and pay Blue Island and Tebbs. They have both been too good for us to pass them by."

Two Figure in Notes.

It was understood the "Blue Island" referred to the bank he started in the suburb two years ago and that "Tebbs" referred to Frederick W. Tebbs, president of the Union Banking company of St. Joseph, Mich., who had written him asking payment of $11,400.

Auditor Nelson said there was no outward evidence of any irregularity in the affairs of the Blue Island bank and, had it not been for the death of McElroy he would not have closed the bank. He said he doubted if McElroy would have had the opportunity to speculate with funds belonging to the bank.

Called the Whole Bank.

At Blue Island, however, it was said that McElroy "was the whole bank." The president, Fred C. Brincken, was put in that office by McElroy who took him from the picture theater business. The cashier, Arthur Fordman, had conducted a studio before McElroy put him in the bank. Blue Island residents recalled.

Auditor Nelson said that up to last night there were no negotiations to have the affairs of the closed bank taken over by a sound bank, and the work of the examiners had not proceeded far enough to permit of any estimate on whether depositors would be paid in full or would receive only a percentage of their money.

DEATH OF GIRL ON PAVEMENT IS POLICE MYSTERY

The inquest into the death of Miss Marie Cummings, 18 years old, 7621 Chappel avenue, who was found fatally injured early yesterday at North and Kenton avenues, presumably the victim of a hit and run motorist, was continued until Jan. 29 to allow police more time to investigate mysterious circumstances surrounding her death.

Van Meter then went to a restaurant across the street. A few minutes later Miss Cummings came from the house, peered into the restaurant, and walked east rapidly. She was found at North and Kenton avenues ten minutes later by the two policemen. Her purse, containing $20 in cash and a $9 check, was missing, indicating that she may have been a victim of foodpads. However, police said that a passerby could have taken the purse.

At the inquest Van Meter said that they had not quarreled. Her mother, Mrs. Margaret Cummings, said that her daughter, who was a typist, had left home because she had been scolded for staying out late.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 13.—Six paintings of vast importance in the world of art will go under the hammer at the Paris customs house tomorrow, among them the very fine Rembrandt, "Portrait of a Young Man," and a Madonna of the school of Raphael. Dealers from New York, London and Berlin will attend. The proceeds will go to the French government.

For years they have lain in a packing case in the musty store room of the customs house where unclaimed articles are thrown out of the way. A month ago this case was opened, and great was the astonishment of the crew of hard boiled customs sleuths when they discovered its contents.

Behind all of this there is some obscure tragedy which probably will never be known, for the case came from Russia addressed to a person whose identity has never been discovered. The supposition is that some Russian aristocrat, who had survived the worst of the Red terror, planned to make his getaway from the land of the soviet, and sent his most precious possessions on ahead in hope of cashing in on them among the Paris art merchants. Apparently he never left Russia.

CERMAK WON'T SEEK NEW TERM ON COUNTY BOARD

Makes Decision After a Careful Study.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Cook county organization Democrats were thrown into a small panic yesterday by news that A. J. Cermak had announced a determination not to seek another term as president of the county board.

The first impulse of his associates was to scoff at the report. They said Cermak had been talking that way intermittently for several months, largely because of his health, and that his utterances to visitors during the day might have been due to the reactions of a blue Monday made more disagreeable by an accumulation of troublesome problems.

Weighs Situation Carefully.

But close newspaper inquiry disclosed that his statement that he will not run again was not a spontaneous outburst due to irritation, but the result of long thought which covered many angles of his own and his party's future. That was the impression of reporters who spent a couple of hours with him going over some of the many phases of the situation.

By advance agreement the details of that conversation were not for publication, President Cermak insisting that the full reasons for his decision will be given in a formal statement later; but he left no doubt in the minds of those who talked with him that extraordinary pressure indeed will be required to alter his decision.

Efforts in that direction were the first inclination of other Democratic leaders. The fears they expressed were two fold: first, that Cermak's withdrawal from the campaign would weaken the ticket materially; and, second, that it might mean his retirement from the position of leadership he has won since the death of George E. Brennan.

Will Still Rule Party.

Cermak's response to these fears was that he felt sure of having as a candidate for the county board presidency a man who is even a better vote getter than he, and that he has no thought of relinquishing his attempt to reorganize the party management, a continuation of which he believes possible because he will be in office until next November.

In his talk with the newspaper men, Cermak insisted that his reasons for deciding to quit the county board presidency at this time are much more personal than political.

"I had not intended to announce my decision for some time," he said, "but now that it is out just say that I have decided not to run again."

Accept Sanitary Candidates.

Over in the Republican territory, the big news of the day was an announcement by Roy O. West, Republicans national committeeman, as spokesman for his group in the absence of Senator Deneen, that it had accepted the recommendations of the Seabury-Butler committee concerning candidates for the sanitary district.

That committee, it was disclosed, was the result of a revival of the wartime council of presidents of more than a score of organizations, this revival producing a committee of nine headed by Attorney Rush C. Butler and including as its other members Harry A. Wheeler, C. M. Moderwell, John A. Carroll, Elmer T. Stevens, and Thurlow G. Essington, Republicans, and Francis X. Busch, Col. Albert A. Sprague, and Edward N. Hurley, Democrats.

Last week this committee, at their invitation, presented to Mr. West and to Chairman Snow of the Republican county committee the names of five men it considered capable of meeting the crisis in the affairs of the sanitary district and willing to be drafted for that service. Each group was urged to include them on its slate. Mr. West's announcement was that his group had determined to do so, but the indications were that the regular organization would not act on the suggestion for several days and then might decline the proposal.

Five Candidates Listed.

The five names submitted are:

Joshua d'Esposito, civil engineer in charge of the erection of the Union station and other important projects; born in Italy July 30, 1878, and naturalized as an American citizen in 1907; residence, 6963 Sheridan road.

Fletcher M. Durbin, manufacturer of corrugated boxes and cartons; 48 years old; Spanish war veteran; residence, 1449 Astor street.

George B. McKibbin, member of law firm of Essington & McKibbin and formerly of firm headed by late Secretary of War Good; 40 years old; residence, 4853 Kimbark avenue.

Charles M. Moderwell, coal operator, president of Chicago school board for three years under Mayor Dever; 60 years old; residence, Evanston.

The Deneen group's acceptance of this slate is considered substantiation to some extent that all is not harmonious between that faction and President Elmore of the drainage board, who has brought out some other candidates for memberships.

TO TAKE CENSUS

Mrs. Martin Kent Northam.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—Mrs. Martin Kent Northam, 1643 Forest street, Evanston, today was appointed as one of six supervisors who will direct the 1930 census enumeration in the Chicago area. Her selection was announced by Senator Charles S. Deneen [Rep., Ill.], who is nominating the supervisors in Cook county. Names of the other five Chicago supervisors are expected to be made public tomorrow.

Mrs. Northam, Senator Deneen said, will be the only woman among the Cook county supervisors and one of two in Illinois. The other is Harriet M. Hallam of Bloomington.

W. M. Steuart, director of the census bureau, announced that he would visit Chicago on Feb. 27 in the course of a six weeks tour of the country on plans for the census enumeration, which begins April 1. He will spend two days in Chicago.

JUDGE SETTLES FIGHT FOR RIGHT TO BURY WOMAN

Under order of Circuit Judge Friend, the burial of Mrs. Veronica Zveradinas, 50 years old, 11014 South Sawyer avenue, who died on Friday, leaving a $20,000 estate, will be conducted today under the direction of her nephew, Anton Balvocius, 2019 South Halsted street. The decision yesterday ended a battle of undertakers for the right of burial.

Peter Kalnis, who claims relationship with the dead woman, had hired Stanley Majeikas, an undertaker at 3319 South Auburn avenue, to arrange for burial. Balvocius gave the same order to John F. Eudiekis, undertaker, at 4605 South Hermitage avenue. When a representative of the latter undertaker called at the home to secure a burial permit he became involved in a quarrel with Majeikas. Police arrested Majeikas and Eudiekis' representative, Edwin Waitek.

"MIRACLE" CAST PROMISED PAY BY MORRIS GEST

New York, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Morris Gest, the closing of whose play "The Miracle" in Dallas, Tex., was followed by a demonstration by some 300 actors and extras who demanded their pay, said today that he will pay off everybody as soon as he gets some money.

The demonstration came after the closing performance of the production in Dallas Saturday night. Two squads of police were called out to disperse the crowd. After the performance a deputy sheriff served attachment papers on all properties of the production for indebtedness.

"I feel pretty punk," the producer said. "You know this has been a tough season and I lost about $200,000 on the road. I'll pay off everybody as soon as I get some money together."

Meanwhile 150 actors and New York extras who accompanied "The Miracle" on its tour to Detroit and points in the west and south were en route home today on funds furnished by Mr. Gest.

ROUTS 3 BANDITS IN BATTLE, BUT IS SHOT AND KNIFED

John Jasinski, 45 years old, 1621 Union avenue, an insurance collector, was shot and stabbed last night in a battle with three Negroes who held him up at 15th street and Union avenue. When the three demanded his collections Jasinski started to fight and one Negro shot him once in the left leg. Jasinski knocked the pistol from the gunman's hand and another of the trio stabbed him twice in the body. Then the three fled.

SALOONKEEPER, BARTENDER FACE MURDER CHARGES

The owner and the bartender of a saloon at 3102 Harrison street where Leo Lorenzo, 40 years old, 1237 Madison street, an ex-convict, was believed to have been slain on Saturday, were arrested last night and, according to the police, will be charged with Lorenzo's murder. The proprietor, George Donovan, 26 years old, 3831 Flournoy street, was arrested at his home, while the bartender, Garrett Kelly, 32, who gave his address as 4811 Jackson boulevard, was taken into custody when he returned to the saloon last night. They are being held at the Warren avenue station.

According to Lieut. Stewart P. Moss and Detectives John Fogarty and William Knowles, who arrested the pair, Kelly was drunk and his clothing was blood stained when he was arrested. He said he could recall nothing of what had happened in the place on Saturday night. Donovan had said two men came into the saloon and called Lorenzo into a rear room, where they shot him, but later he denied that he was present or knew anything about the case.

Lorenzo's body was found in an alley in the rear of 703 South Kedzie avenue. Bullet marks and bloodstains in the saloon led the police to believe he had been killed there and dragged into the alley.

Advertise in The Tribune

The great HOME CENTER OF AMERICA

where one newspaper has created a market opportunity

—the tremendous needs of 572,600 individual homes are here to be filled, totalling more than $840,000,000* yearly in retail sales.

—the means to influence their buying lies in the columns of the newspaper which has their confidence. The Evening Bulletin expresses Philadelphia. For more than a third of a century this newspaper has had the whole-hearted approval of Philadelphia homes.

Its growth has been the sure, steady climb of a carefully made newspaper. Without premium or prize; without glaring headline or circulation contest. Building permanent circulation for itself; building productive circulation for its advertisers.

Until, today, among 572,600 homes, the circulation of The Bulletin is 555,711 copies. More than double the circulation of any Philadelphia evening newspaper; almost equalling the combined circulation of all Philadelphia morning newspapers.

In every exclusive suburb and in every city section—The Bulletin is the daily bearer of the world's news.

Probably nowhere in the world is there a newspaper that reaches so large a proportion of its city's homes.

Probably nowhere in America is there a market situation so favorable now to economical advertising effort.

CHARGE DEPUTY WITH MURDER AT WAUKEGAN

State Claims He Fired While Drunk.

William Klarkowski, 42 years old, of Waukegan, deputy sheriff and a cousin of Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski of Chicago, was held to the Lake county grand jury without bond yesterday charged with the murder of Douglas E. Steuber, 35 year old Waukegan plumber. Steuber, married and the father of a 10 months old daughter, was shot to death early yesterday in a fight in front of a restaurant at Washington and Jefferson streets in Waukegan.

Claim Deputy Was Drunk.

Klarkowski, who authorities say was drunk when the shooting occurred, waived examination when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Henry F. Wallenwein, on a complaint signed by State's Attorney A. V. Smith. He denied that he had shot Steuber, claiming that he fired his pistol into the air to frighten the plumber and Walter Ludlow of Highland Park, who he said were attacking him. A few minutes after the shooting, however, officials say he told his wife he had killed a man.

Steuber, who lives at 714 Massena avenue, Waukegan, was in the restaurant with Ludlow when Klarkowski entered. The deputy sheriff who lives at 1531 Monroe street, Waukegan, had returned from a visit to Racine, where he was formerly a policeman. Klarkowski, it is said, made a slighting remark which provoked a quarrel. Steuber and Ludlow followed him into the street, but, according to Ludlow, they were returning to the restaurant when Klarkowski whipped out his revolver and began firing.

During the last two months Klarkowski has been suspended twice for periods of ten days each on charges of drunkenness.

DYER IS "CORN KING" IN ILLINOIS; GIRL DEFEATS BOY JUNIORS

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—A new "corn king" of Illinois ascended to the throne here today when George Dyer of Atlanta, Logan county, was awarded the grand championship over 326 other ten ear exhibitors competing for the prize money in the tenth annual utility corn show held in connection with the annual farm and home week at the University of Illinois.

Coming through an eight day test, Dyer's ten ear sample of yellow utility type corn scored 88.5 points on germination, conformation and physical appearance, on the basis of 100 for perfect, to give him the coveted crown.

Farm boys lost the title in the junior 4-H club classes to the girls again this year when Mildred Riley of Maroa captured the grand sweepstakes with her ten ear sample in the boys' and girls' club classes and thereby became the "corn princess" of Illinois. This is the second time in four years a girl has won the title.

Sixty-six prize winners divided the $800 in cash prizes posted by the Illinois Bankers' association. Of this amount $500 was distributed in the adult classes and $300 in the junior 4-H club classes. Entries for all classes this year totaled 662, with the quality of the corn, superior to that of any previous exhibit, according to J. C. Hackelman, crops extension specialist of the college of agriculture and superintendent of the show.

ARTICLES LOST IN CABS SENT BACK TO 11,000

More than 11,000 persons left articles in Yellow Cabs during 1929, according to the annual report of the lost and found department of the cab company made public yesterday. Approximately 2,000 articles have not yet been claimed.

The article left in cabs were valued at $220,000. They ranged from rubbers and gloves to a jewel case containing $15,000 in gems and a packet of 1,500 $1 bills. More than 1,000 umbrellas were abandoned and an almost equal number of women's purses.

The report indicated that women were more careless than men. One woman was recorded as having left the the same umbrella in three cabs.

Seven sets of false teeth, 104 liquor flasks, 6 violins, 10 saxophones, and 20 music stands were among the other articles found in cabs.

BAR BULL MARKET PRICES AS GUIDE FOR ESTATE TAX

False stock values set up during the peak of the bull market will not be used for the purpose of fixing inheritance taxes, according to a decision by Attorney General Carlstrom, announced last night by Harry A. Ash, inheritance tax attorney for Cook county. Mr. Ash, speaking at a banquet given by the South Side Bankers Fiduciary club, said that normally the inheritance tax is computed on the basis of market values of stocks.

"However," he continued, "the extreme prices of 1929 do not represent in all instances the fair cash market value of securities. The attorney general feels it would be unfair to tax for inheritance tax purposes at the high prices reached at the peak of the bull market."

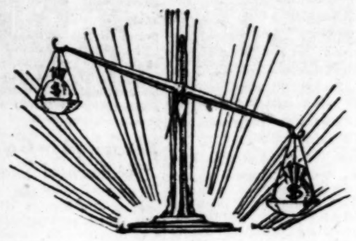
CONCENTRATE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE IN 1930



1930 PROFITS DEPEND ON KEY MARKET SELLING

THE new year makes precious the lessons of adversity. Each period of business recession has produced knowledge of new principles of successful management. 1930 again will test resourcefulness and courage. But business need not face disaster to formulate the new routine.

Out of the grim penalties of 1921 came active observance of the value of turnover and of hand-to-mouth buying. 1921 revealed the tragic error in inventories. It dramatized in one catastrophic act the insidious waste that for years had been eating into profits.

Important now, yet widely unregarded, is the increased need to eliminate waste in selling and advertising.

BARNACLES in inventories find counterparts in parasitic sales territories. Some manufacturers build profit in a few markets and dissipate it in others. Certain pale blue or purple or flaming orange areas on the sales map need investigation.

Because executives are willing or can afford to have a salesman travel 500 miles to pick up a $25 order. Yet advertising seeks consumer good-will in markets where dealers do not carry the merchandise.

When a non-profit salesman is replaced, the basic cause of his failure too often remains overlooked. Some territories at best barely support sales cost. Any reduction in volume starves the salesman out. Too many advertising campaigns likewise are on too slim a diet.

NINETEEN-THIRTY will raise the penalty on indiscriminate selling and advertising effort. Increasing competition and consequent risk of individual overproduction again menace profit. Tactics must change. Selling and advertising must concentrate on markets where sales abound and profit is obtainable.

Tribune Town—Chicago and the Chicago territory—offers special inducement to advertisers faced with the stringent demands of 1930 conditions. Concentrating selling and advertising in this compact area taps tremendous buying power. 12,000,000 people offer a rich market hardly disturbed by general business recession.

The importance of Tribune Town is founded in industrial and agricultural production. The market is fortified by diversified interests. Value added annually to manufactured products is $3,000,000,000; value of crops is $867,000,000. Activity remains continuously at a high level. Good times persist. Here are owners of 2,200,000 automobiles. Bank deposits total $5,500,000,000.

NOW more than ever the astute executive will focus on this market. The sound prosperity of Tribune Town invites redoubled effort when sales elsewhere fall off. Tribune Town steadily demonstrates that its buying power richly rewards adequate, judicious advertising and selling. And now, when general volume tends to diminish and selective selling becomes imperative, this market offers new success to those who concentrate in it.

WHOLESALERS and retailers throughout Tribune Town turn first to the Tribune for news of business. Because of its sales-making ability it is first in their enthusiasms. With a Tribune campaign behind him, the sales manager can face 1930 confidently. He can route his salesmen through Tribune Town with assurance of securing adequate distribution and profitable volume.

Among consumers the Tribune is an institution of familiar but commanding importance. Its vigorous editorial policies and reliable news reporting have won a tremendous following. The allied interests of the people of this great market find focus in the Tribune. It fosters and expresses their aims. It represents their interests. It has their adherence. Throughout the market, throughout the 125 trading areas that form Tribune Town, residents turn to the Chicago Tribune for news and advertising.

REACHING 1,140,000 families in this great market, the Sunday Tribune sells merchandise with sureness and dispatch. 44% of all the families in Tribune Town read the Tribune on Sunday. In the city of Chicago coverage is 76%. In the other 124 trading centers which are key points of population and trade coverage is 50%. In 426 tributary towns of 1,000 or more population coverage is 58%.

Profits in 1930 will depend on concentration of advertising and selling in America's key markets. Most attractive in its potentials is Tribune Town, blanketed forcefully and economically by the Chicago Tribune. Ask a Tribune man to help you work out plans to develop this rich market in 1930.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Surgeon General Cumming of the public health service tonight telegraphed health officials in nine states asking for coöperation in a nation-wide investigation of serious illnesses attributed to "parrot fever," or psittacosis.

Federal authorities said unofficial reports today showed a total of 34 cases of the malady in addition to three deaths already recorded.

Dr. Cumming placed Dr. Charles Armstrong, veteran epidemiologist, in charge of a field investigation of cases and suspected cases of the fever, ordering him to follow the trail of infected parrots and human sickness from state to state to make first hand observations.

Health officials said cases so far had been reported in Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, New York, Maryland, Minnesota, Massachusetts, Florida, California, and Ohio.

Six New Cases Reported.

New York, Jan. 13.—[Special.]—Six new cases diagnosed as parrot fever in New York and Yonkers, were reported today as the health department continued its investigation of the sources of the mysterious disease.

The victims in this vicinity include a man and a boy in a Brooklyn family, a man who lives in Queens and another whose home is in the Bronx. A man and his wife were taken to a hospital in Yonkers today after state and local health authorities had diagnosed their illness as parrot fever.

The Yonkers case, it was said, was traced directly to a parrot given to the family as a Christmas gift. The bird sickened and died three days after the holiday.

The Associated Press reports said that the death of Mrs. William Shields, 51, of Freeport, Pa., was ascribed to parrot fever after an autopsy.

The two deaths reported previously were those of Mrs. Percy Q. Williams of Toledo, O., and Mrs. Louise Schaffle of Baltimore, Md.

Two New Cases in Ohio.

Toledo, O., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—Two more new cases of the parrot disease were under observation by the city authorities this afternoon. Both were connected with a Toledo bird store in which a parrot died recently with the disease.

Girl's Condition Serious.

Warren, O., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Miss Clody McEntire, one of three persons ill here with a disease diagnosed as "parrot fever," was in a serious condition today, having developed bronchial pneumonia, the attending physician said.

The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McEntire, also suffering from parrot fever were said to be considerably improved today.

HER BIRTHDAY JUST ONE THING AFTER ANOTHER

Mrs. Maye Hoffman, 921 Pine street, Winnetka, decided yesterday that the 13th of the month is not the happiest day for a birthday. She started the day off by caring for her two children, who, she found, had chickenpox. Then she had to rush downtown with a suitcase for her husband, Richard Y. Hoffman, a Chicago attorney, who was leaving on a business trip.

As she drove through Evanston with the suitcase, she was arrested by Policeman Elmer Higley on a charge of speeding. Mrs. Hoffman explained her trials to Justice James E. Barber, pleading preoccupation as her excuse for neglecting to watch her speedometer. But Judge Barber felt he could not take judicial notice of her birthday misfortunes, so she paid a fine of $2 and $3 costs out of the $5.33 which she had in her purse.

Baby Secures Continuance in Court for John Saltis

A baby secured a court continuance yesterday for John Saltis, brother of Joe, whose expensive automobile the government wants to confiscate because a cargo of liquor was once found in it. Saltis' attorney, George Crane, entered Federal Judge Wilkerson's court yesterday with one eye red and puffy, and asked that the case be continued. The sore eye, he explained, had resulted when his baby stuck a finger in it.

Theater Man Gets Delay in Accidental Shooting Case

Theodore Neumann, assistant manager of the Lincoln Hippodrome theater, 3164 Lincoln avenue, was granted a continuance by Judge Alfred Erickson in the Town Hall court yesterday when arraigned for failing to report the accidental shooting of Mrs. Bertha Johnek, 1623 Belmont avenue, in a dressing room of the theater last Friday night.

BURGLARS GET $17,500 LOOT IN THREE HOMES

The police last night were investigating three burglaries of residences in which thieves gathered approximately $17,500 in gems, silverware, and fur coats.

At the home of Thomas E. Maley, 6719 Oglesby avenue, president of Sterne & Maley company, laundry supply dealers, burglars jimmied the front door on Sunday evening while the family was absent and took $8,000 in loot.

The Rogers Park police were hunting a pass key burglar who entered the home of Robert Goldstein, 1644 Chase avenue, real estate mortgage broker, and took jewelry valued at $7,500.

The third robbery was reported to the Albany Park police by Lewis Gladen, 3441 Pierce avenue. Burglars forced open a basement door in his home and took jewelry valued at $2,000.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

Purdue's Boilermakers hammered out another link in the victory chain with which they hope to anchor another conference championship to the old gold and black at Patten gym last night. The rangy lads from Purdue romped to victory over Northwestern, 39 to 22. The margin might have been wider had the Hoosiers not grown careless in the last minutes after they had built up a lead of 37 to 16.

Northwestern outplayed the Hoosiers in the first ten minutes and built up a lead of 11 to 8, but after that Purdue began to click and the rest of the game was just too bad for the 5,000 Purple fans in the stands. The Boilermakers scored 18 points before Northwestern could add another point and that only a midfloor shot. The Wildcats weren't playing badly. Purdue was just too good.

Murphy's Height Big Factor.

Purdue controlled the ball almost all the time through Murphy's great height at center and their ball handling. Murphy not only grabbed the tipoff every time but on jump balls picked it out of the air and held it out of reach until he could pass.

But it was little Johnny Wooden, the Indian rubber man, who puzzled the Purple most and did most of the scoring. His leg bandaged from an automobile accident a few weeks ago, Wooden dazzled the Wildcats and the fans with speed and a tricky dribble that usually ended with his pushing the ball up into the basket.

Though all of the six Boilermakers who played broke into the scoring column, it was Murphy and Wooden who led the bunch. Wooden caged six baskets, mostly at the end of long dribbles—and passed to others for several more—while Murphy sank four baskets, two of them long shots, and four free throws. Riel, Bergherm and Walters each caged two baskets for the Purple.

Northwestern started as if they were going to run away from the Boilermakers. After the two captains, rivals since prep schools days, Murphy of Marion, Ind., and Walter of Kokomo, Ind., had caged a free throw each, Riel sank a hook shot and Bergherm dribbled under a basket for another to make the score 5 to 1. Purdue tied it on Wooden's dribble and pass to Gibbens and another long dribble that ended in one of Wooden's skyward dives to drop the ball in the basket.

Purdue Falls Away.

Walter's foul line shot and Murphy's long one left the score tied at eight, Bergherm got a free throw and Riel tipped in a basket after Walter's shot. Trailing 8 to 11, Purdue began to travel and held the Wildcats scoreless to the half, while Harmeson caged two baskets and Murphy, Wooden and Gibbens one more each. Murphy's was funny as he slapped the ball off the backboard three times before it went in, while not a Wildcat could jump high enough to touch it.

Purdue continued their fast pace at the start of the second half, Murphy, Harmeson and Wooden sinking short shots in quick succession before McCarnes sank a long try and added a foul toss. Then Purdue moved on again with Wooden three times putting on his prize act of dribbling down the floor for a push up shot that he didn't miss. Murphy got another long one and Boots and Murphy added free throws.

With the score 37 to 16, Northwestern began to pull up a little, Lockhart sinking a foul and Bergherm, Whalen and Mundy scoring from around the foul circle before the final gun.

SHAUGHNESSY QUITS AS PILOT OF BLACKHAWKS

Games Tonight

Pittsburgh at Chicago.
Ottawa at Boston.
Detroit at N. Y. Rangers.
Toronto at Montreal.

TOM SHAUGHNESSY

Thomas J. Shaughnessy, manager of the Chicago Blackhawks, exploded a bombshell in local hockey ranks last night with the announcement of his resignation.

Shaughnessy, the only American born manager in major league hockey, announced that his relations with the Blackhawks would cease after the Blackhawk-Boston Bruin game at the Stadium Thursday night.

The Blackhawks have been going great in fine shape, their victory over the New York Rangers Sunday night giving them second place in the American division. Much of the credit for the Blackhawks' showing has been given to Shaughnessy, and his explanation that he was quitting in order to devote more time to his law practice was taken with a grain of salt.

Friction Over Management?

Before becoming manager of the Blackhawks last year, Shaughnessy had managed the Chicago Athletic association amateur team three years for amusement, and while a professional team naturally took more time, he knew how much it would cut into his law practice before signing a contract.

Furthermore, hockey is Shaughnessy's hobby and he got a tremendous kick out of taking a tail end team of last year and making a contender of it. What brought about the final break is conjectural, but from reliable sources comes the information that there has been friction between the manager and the owners for some time.

Shaughnessy was the type of manager who demanded absolute control of his club and resented interference. His methods were unusual. He inaugurated a training season by taking his squad to Notre Dame for a conditioning period before putting them on skates. There have been hints since the beginning of the season he resented interference in handling players, especially to his strict discipline of players.

Relations between Shaughnessy and the owners have been particularly strained since the recent trades made by the Hawks, especially on the exchange of Ralph Taylor, defense man, for Teddy Graham. As near as could be learned, both that trade and the deal by which the Hawks took Stewart Adams from Minneapolis were made by Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, president of the Hawks, without consulting Shaughnessy, and the latter resented it.

Questions Adams' Worth.

While Shaughnessy never expressed a direct opinion of the deal, it was easily seen he was disgruntled by taking the matter of trading players out of his hands. He seemed to believe Adams, who is a veteran of the minor leagues, didn't have the ability to play major league hockey and rated Taylor a better defense man than Graham, who once was a member of the Hawks but was sent to the minor leagues. The opinion of Taylor seems to have been upheld by the management of the New York Rangers, who refused to let Taylor be traded out of the league and sold the waiver price of $5,000 for him. Whether the riotous game with the New York Rangers Sunday night had anything to do with the break is doubtful.

Shaughnessy is the last of a series of managers whom the Hawks' owners have employed in an effort to pull the team out of the ruck. Last year Herbert Gardiner was loaned to them by Les Canadiens but recalled in midseason as temporary manager.

Was a Notre Dame Star.

Shaughnessy is a Notre Dame hockey star of fifteen years ago but never has played in the major leagues. He played with the Rat Portage (Ont.) team and with his high school team in Winnipeg before going to Notre Dame, where he was captain in his sophomore year. He played goal and defense in 1912, 1913, and 1914 with the Ramblers and later was with the town team of Marquette, Mich.

Four years ago he took over the management of the C. A. A. team and in the first two years won the championship of the Chicago senior amateur hockey league. In the three years the Cherry Circle team has won 28, tied 5, and lost 6 games. Shaughnessy also is secretary of the midwestern division of the United States Amateur Hockey association.

There have been no indications of who may be chosen the new manager but it is probable Dick Irvin, former center and now coach of the Hawks, will be made temporary manager.

Becker Discovers Hunters' Paradise in Louisiana Flats

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Talullah, La., Jan. 13.—We're camped in the land of the gabbling geese tonight. Down here in northern Louisiana where "ole man river" makes a wide horseshoe bend, the Canada honkers, fat with many a meal of corn, young clover, and oats, are assembled on the broad sandbars and in the fields by the thousands.

In the marshes and sloughs countless flocks of waterfowl are enjoying Louisiana's food and climate. Long v shaped bunches wing their way across the horizon during the morning and the evening. But the noisy awnk-awnk-awnk of the wary honkers dominates the flyways, above the cotton fields and the meadows. Even after sunset these big birds fill the air with their sonorous calls because they are now coming into the fields to feed by moonlight.

Without doubt this is the most diversified game country that we have seen along the Mississippi river. From this white plantation house owned by our host, Hall Allen of Talullah, we can see flocks of talking geese drop down in the oat fields. (We are going into one of the fields directly to see if we can connect with one or two of the whopping big honkers by means of a 12 gauge and a few No. 3 shot.) To see more geese and other waterfowl one rides over the big levee and down through the flats to the Mississippi river, where the water birds loaf.

A few minutes on horseback behind a couple of pointers and you are among the quail coveys. There are bear, turkey, and deer in the woods nearby. For a night hunt behind the hounds, possum and coon can produce all kinds of sport.

Theodore Roosevelt once came to this section to hunt. Today we passed the little railroad station where he stepped from the train to go to his forest camp. (The station now is named Roosevelt.)

After surveying the game conditions here it is not surprising to us that Roosevelt the hunter came into this territory for sport with gun and dog. There seems to be about everything in furred or feathered game in the woods, fields, or along the river. First on our program is the goose game. It won't be long now. Our blind is ready.

SHUTE CLINGS TO LEAD IN $10,000 GOLF TOURNEY

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 13.—(AP)—While the gallery followed in the footsteps of the golfing elite today, Denny Shute, young and little known professional from Columbus, O., stroked his way over Riviera's picturesque course to retain an important if not impressive lead at the end of the third round of the 72 hole $10,000 Los Angeles open championship.

After two years in the professional ranks, Shute, with 222, showed the way to the greatest figures in the game. Possessing neither flash nor dash, the slender Ohioan went around in 75. His previous rounds were 73—74. Today he was out in 37 and in in 38, each nine being two over par.

Favorites Follow Close.

Three strokes behind Shute followed two of the tournament's favorites, Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., and Bobby Cruickshank of New York. Cruickshank came in with 74 and Smith took 76 to reach the 225 stroke station.

Within striking distance for top money were Tommy Armour, Detroit; Al Espinosa, Chicago, and Chet Beer of Bakersfield, Cal., all in the 227 class.

The rest of the field was scattered from 228 strokes well into the 240's. The end of the third round saw five notables of the game practically out of the running so far as first money went. Leo Diegel of Agua Caliente, Mexico, P. G. A. champion, marked time with a total of 228, while MacDonald Smith of Long Island, N. Y., winner of the title for the last two years, had a 230 to show for his efforts.

Only One Equals Par.

First place money was out of reach of Harry Cooper of Buffalo, N. Y., first Los Angeles open titleholder; Johnny Farrell of St. Augustine, Fla., former national open champion, and Bill Mehlhorn of New York, another veteran. Cooper chalked up a three round total of 232, Farrell had 233 and Mehlhorn a 241. Poor first or second rounds due to exceptionally bad weather Friday and Sunday spelled their doom.

Despite fair weather today and a fairly dry course to shoot over, only

CONFERENCE basketball has opened with the same promise of a wild scramble for the title which has prevailed for several years. With the season only ten days old, three of the four teams thought strongest have met defeat.

Because of the fewer players in action compared to football, there is more opportunity for equality of competition than on the gridiron—and every conference follower knows how uncertain have been football results for several years past. More than in football, also, is the advantage of playing at home.

So with the start already made, there is no reason to suppose the Big Ten title of 1930 will be any less uncertain or less bitterly contested than in 1929, when Michigan and Wisconsin ended the playing schedule as co-champions.

Roughness of hockey apparently is one of its attractions to the spectators. Such roughness and the fist fights occurring are a menace to the sport in the long run, even if an incentive at the box office. Any sport in which unfair tactics are allowed sooner or later gets out of bounds. Sponsors of hockey should take warning.

The Wake has received several complaints that we are reading a great deal of pugilism in comparison to the caliber of pugilism we are seeing. If reference is made to Art Shires, the criticism is unjustified, because What-a-Man is human interest more than pugilism. For the rest, it soon will give up some of its space to spring baseball training.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 13.—Your correspondent has no wish to complicate the great American question of what is an amateur, if any, but the reamateurization of Miss Mary K. Browne by the United States Golf association raises some new points in the problem.

Miss Browne is one of the best feminine athletes in the country and one season about half a dozen years ago she not only played through to the semi-final round of the national women's tennis tournament but also played to the final in the women's national golf championship.

But presently Mr. C. C. Pyle, the man of vision whose visions subsequently became a nightmare of sheriffs with attachments, persuaded her to accept a guarantee of $15,000 and become a tennis professional to serve as the victim, or lady palooka, if it is not amiss to refer to a lady as a palooka, for Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen of France.

Turns Magazine Author.

Miss Browne thought the matter over seriously before making up her mind but finally she came to the conclusion that the money was more desirable than her amateur standing and therefore accepted Mr. Pyle's offer. She then toured the United States with Mr. Pyle's troupe and got her money. She also profited somewhat on the side by writing some magazine articles about her observations of Mlle. Lenglen's game and, on the whole, became about as thoroughly professional in respect to lawn tennis as it is possible for one to be.

But the next summer when Miss Browne inquired as to her status in the game of golf, she was surprised and somewhat hurt to learn that in turning pro at tennis she had also forfeited her amateur standing in golf and would not be allowed to play in the national tournaments any more.

The United States Golf association found itself in an embarrassing situation. It could not be argued that she had professionalized herself in golf and the worst that the golf association could say of her in its adverse ruling was something to the effect that she had deamateurized herself.

What About Mr. Dempsey?

The wording of the rule under which it was decided to deamateurize Miss Browne was most unfortunate. It spoke of conduct detrimental to the sport of golf, and when this rule was quoted in connection with the official decree of deamateurization, there were many indignant protests by the friends of Miss Browne, who is a person of considerable charm.

There was something about the ruling which seemed to suggest that the lady defendant was accused of unladylike or unsporting deportment and, of course, the golf association had no intention to imply any such thing. This merely happened to be the only rule under which a lady who had turned pro in another sport could be declared no amateur in golf, and the golf association was able to quiet the

'They're All Good,' Dempsey Says of Friday's Cast

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Jack Dempsey avers that all the interest in his Friday night boxing show at the Coliseum should not be focused on the windup, the engagement between James J. Braddock and Leo Lomski. Jack thinks that the presence of two sets of good bantams in ten round encounters is worthy of more than passing notice. Archie Bell will meet Harry Fierro in the first 120 pound encounter and Emil Paluso and Ray McIntyre are scheduled to hook up in the other bantam setto. Oscar Baker and Tony Talerico, heavies, and Solly Schumann and Mickey Gill will complete the card.

Both Lomski and Braddock worked out in the loop yesterday. The latter, who is training at the Arcade gymnasium, sparred six rounds with King Levinsky and Oscar Baker. Lomski is training at Barry's.

Braddock plans to challenge Tuffy Griffith if he whips Lomski. The New Jersey lad weighs 181 pounds and is no longer looking forward to capturing the 175 pound championship. He has his eye on the heavyweight crown.

Champion Jackie Fields, who made a personal appearance at the Chicago Stadium Friday night, will go to work at the Stadium's next fight show, on Jan. 24. The occasion will be a return engagement with Vince Dundee, who is clamoring to get the welterweight title back in the Dundee family.

Vince will not have the opportunity to take the title in the coming event, for it is to be one of those overweight affairs. But he has made it known that he is pointing toward the title, and a good vicious fight against Jackie, of course, will strengthen his right to demand a championship match later.

When Fields and Vince met at the Coliseum last fall the former got the decision. The contender, however, points with pride to his progress since that time and his claims are supported by some lively fights, including the administration to My Sullivan of one of the soundest thrashings My ever received.

As boxing fans know, Fields won his title from Johnny Dundee, Vince's brother, at Detroit. Since then Johnny hasn't made any loud noises about winning back the belt, but his brother has been especially emphatic in forwarding his claims. When it was announced that Fields would defend his championship against Young Jack Thompson a mighty squawk went up from the Vince Dundee camp. It subsided only slightly when the Fields-Thompson arrangement was called off, first in Chicago and then in New York.

Promoter Jim Mullen has announced a quantity program for his Rainbo fronton inaugural Thursday night. No fewer than 20 pugilists are scheduled to appear on his initial north side card. The bill will include George Trafton, conqueror of the Great Shires, who will be opposed in a scheduled four round prelim by Rudy Hoffman, lawyer and life guard. Mullen says he has asked the Illinois boxing commission to grant a referee's license to Shires and that if the request is granted Shires will appear as the third man in the Trafton performance.

DENTON DEFEATS KIECKHEFER FOR 4TH IN CUE MEET

New York, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Tiff Denton, Kansas City veteran, defeated Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago, 50 to 40, tonight in a playoff of a tie for fourth place in the national three cushions billiards championship tournament.

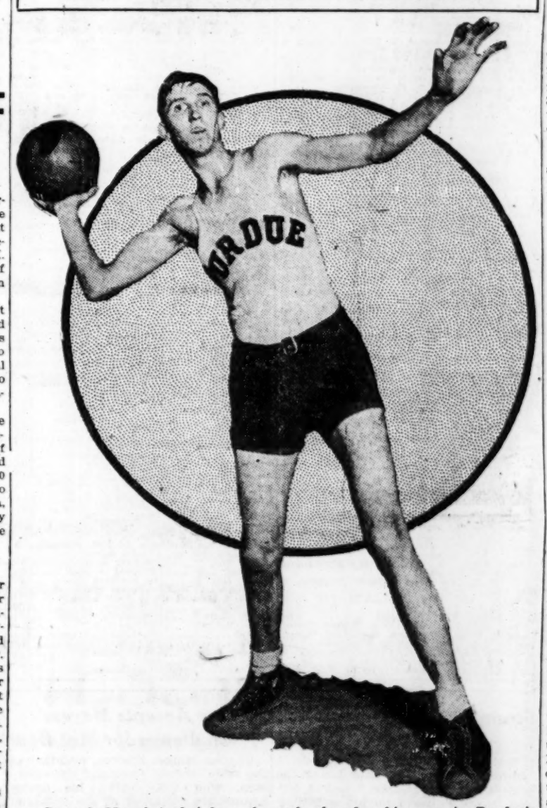
The Kansas City star gave a brilliant exhibition to turn back Kieckhefer. With the score favoring him at 21 to 20, Denton ran 7, and then a few innings later made high run of 10 to take an apparent safe lead. Kieckhefer, however, kept pecking away with one or two billiards an inning until he had cut Denton's lead to 41 to 38. Denton then rallied for 3 billiards, followed this with 5, and then ran out the match in the fifty-first inning.

OUTSTRETCHES WILDCATS



Stretch Murphy's height and reach played a big part in Purdue's 39 to 22 victory over Northwestern at Evanston last night. The tall co-captain of the Boilermakers not only gave his team control of the ball on practically every tipoff but also contributed four field goals and four free throws.

Gene Tunney's Condition Good After Operation

New York, Jan. 13.—[Special.]—Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion of the world, successfully underwent a kidney operation at the Presbyterian hospital today. A stone about the size of a bean was removed from the organ and a bulletin issued after the operation pronounced his condition excellent.

The operation was performed by Dr. George Winthrop Fish, physician to the ex-champion, and followed a conference held earlier in the day in which Dr. Fish, Dr. J. Bentley Squier, and Dr. Carnes Weeks participated.

Although hospital officials had denied the night before that the retired pugilist was expected at the institution, Tunney was installed in the morning in a three room suite in the Harkness pavilion. His wife, the former Polly Lauder, occupied a room beside Tunney, while private nurses occupied the third room.

Mrs. Tunney and the former champion's sister Rose waited in the suite while the operation was performed. Tunney accepted it as he did his ring battles, with calmness and a smile. As he was placed on the operating table he asked Dr. Samuel Buchanan, the anesthetist, "Just how do you want me to breathe?"

The doctor gave him the necessary instructions. Just before the cone was placed over his mouth Tunney laughed and said:

According to Dr. Robert J. Shea, another friend of the former champion, the stone, which had rough edges, was removed from the canal between the kidney and bladder without much difficulty. The operation consumed about half an hour.

The hospital issued the following statement at 9 p. m. tonight: "Mr. Tunney has been sleeping for the last three-quarters of an hour and his condition is satisfactory."

Michigan Bows to Alert Illini Quintet, 24-18

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—Michigan's hopes for a second straight basketball title were sent to the depths tonight by a crack defensive quintet from the University of Illinois. The score was 24 to 18.

These Illini cagers, on the other hand, kept their record clean for the Big Nine season with two straight wins and established themselves as strong title contenders.

Michigan was held to four baskets for her evening's efforts, and two of these came on efforts well outside the foul line by "Eagle-eye" Bob Chapman during the first half which ended with the score at 11 all.

Michigan seldom could penetrate the Illinois defensive wall for close shots. After the first ten minutes of play, during which Michigan at one time had a 6-1 lead, neither team had more than a two point lead until the last seven minutes.

Free throws by Lovell and Weiss at the start of the second half put Michigan in the lead. Harper caged a long one to tie it. Truskowski's basket a few minutes later saw Michigan in the lead for the last time.

The Kamp brothers each got a basket and Kawal a free throw and a basket while Weiss caged a free throw. The score was then 20-16.

Two free throws by Capt. Chapman brought the Maize and Blue within two points, but it was their last effort. Illinois adopted an effective stalling game during the final five minutes, during which Ed Kamp and Capt. Mills each broke clear to dribble down the floor for baskets unbothered.

one entrant was able to equal par. Honors went to MacDonald Smith, who went out in 38 but stroked his way to a brilliant 33, three under par, on the incoming stretch. It was the second time that par had been equaled or bettered during the present tournament. In the first round Johnny Rogers of Denver conquered driving rain and strong winds to come home with a 70.

Except for MacDonald Smith's low score and sub-par nine the round was without thrills for the gallery of several hundred.

Tomorrow's final 18, however, is expected to bring out a golfing race with Shute seeking to maintain his slim lead against the challenges of Horton Smith and Cruickshank. Armour, Al Espinosa, and Chet Beer also have a slight chance to come ahead for top money of $3,500.

The only amateurs in the field, Fay Coleman of Culver City, Cal., and George Von Elm of Detroit, were far down the line. Coleman had a total of 236 and Von Elm, former national champion, was tied for last place with 244.

VICTOR IN DUNES SKI MEET WILL JUMP AT CARY

Casper Oiman, who won the class A event at the Ogden Dunes ski meet, will compete in the annual Norge meet at Fox River Grove Sunday. Peter Falstad, runner-up in the Dunes contest, also has entered.

Oiman and Falstad are among the leading amateur jumpers who have refused to turn professional, in view of the Olympic winter games at Lake Placid in 1932. Oiman is said by Norge officials to have a good chance of breaking the slide record of 171 feet.

Alf Engen, who beat the Norwegian Olympic winners in a meet in Norway last year, has wired his entry in the Norge meet.

Senn and Roosevelt Divide Indoor Prep Track Meet

Senn and Roosevelt of the north section of the City league divided a dual indoor track meet at Senn yesterday, the home seniors winning, 66 1-3 to 22 2-3 and the Roosevelt juniors, 33 to 31. Swede Seaberg, making his first appearance as a senior, was the high point man of the meet with 13 points. He took firsts in the shot put and the 40 yard low hurdles and places second in the pole vault. Harris of Senn led the junior point scorers with firsts in the high jump and the fifty yard dash and a third in the shot put for a total of 12 points.

Coots Judged Winner as 3 Finish by Nose

New Orleans, La., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—One of the most thrilling finishes in the history of the Fair Grounds occurred in the Evergreen purse today when four of the six horses running came to the wire in a line and only noses divided the first three.

Coots, former Harry Payne Whitney racer which now bears the colors of George Collins, was adjudged winner with Uluniu a nose behind him and a nose ahead of Leucite. A scant half a length away finished Old Dutch, and then came Smoldering and Roy Gibson.

At the turn of the year Coots became a 4 year old, but during his 2 and 3 year old years he had an eye ailment which sent him wide at the turns. When Trainer H. S. Hart took the son of Broomstick and Pigeon Wing over for George Collins he overcame the drawback.

In the Evergreen Coots came straight and true down the stretch under a great drive by Jockey Thomas which brought about the defeat of the favorite and second choice. Leucite and Uluniu had these places in the public favor, but Coots was lightly regarded and paid $19.40 for a $2 mutuel ticket. He carried 108 pounds and was timed in 1:13 1-5 for the six furlongs.

Dublinsky Beats Kiser in 7 Rounds

There was a difference of opinion among officials. Judges Jack Nisberg and W. A. Beattye gave the decision to Dublinsky while Referee Tommy Thomas called it a draw.

Bobby La Salle of Los Angeles won all the way from Clyde Hull of Raymond, S. D., in the seven round semi-windup. There was a lot of hitting with the open gloves and La Salle staged his usual clown tactics of jumping in like a Pal Moore.

Paul Pantaleo, local heavyweight, won by a technical knockout from Rocky Adams of Vail, Ia., in the third round. Adams took two counts in the second round, and after he had been knocked down three times in the third session Referee Thomas stopped the fight.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Dennis Galvin, director of Byrne field, yesterday nominated 50 skaters for THE TRIBUNE'S fourteenth annual Silver Skates Derbies at Garfield park, Jan. 25 and 26.

Among the stars of the team is Francis Prendergast, who finished second in the boys' juvenile last year. Francis failed to win a pair of silver skates by a few yards, but with a year's experience he should be a contender in the junior race open to boys under 16. Director Galvin stated in a letter accompanying the entries that Prendergast is stronger and has the stamina to skate the distance at a hot clip.

Galvin has entered 15 boys in the juvenile, nine in the boys' junior, 15 in the boys' intermediate, eight in the boys' senior and three in the senior derby for girls. In addition to Prendergast, Galvin believes he has several entrants who will qualify for the finals and win points for his playground.

Columbia S. C. Enters 11.

The Columbia Skating club will be represented by 11 experts entered by coach George Soerger. The entry is headed by Harry Lowenberg, who set such a terrific pace for eight laps in last year's senior boys' Derby. Lowenberg was unable to hold his pace, and the field caught him in the last half mile. This year, however, Harry has been training faithfully, and his coach predicts he will set a whirlwind pace to the finish.

Howard Gilsdorf is another Columbia S. C. entrant who is expected to qualify in the boys' senior Derby. Herbert Rahn is the club's best performer in the boys' junior and Art Murphy and Charles Witt in the boys' intermediate.

Bob Crock of the University of Wisconsin, who won the senior city championship of Milwaukee Sunday, probably will be a starter in the senior event. Miss Crystal Bruce of Milwaukee, who won the girls' senior championship, also is expected to compete. Both are fast, and local skaters will have to be at their best to beat the stars from the Badger state. Their entries are expected before the end of the week.

Entry List Grows.

Entries continue to be received in large numbers. Team nominations are expected from all playgrounds and parks as well as grammar and high schools. Out of town entries received indicate local skaters will experience keen competition and that some of the prizes will be won by steel blade experts from other cities and towns.

Entries will close Sunday at midnight. However, nominations mailed Sunday and received Monday will be accepted.

Oberlander Signs to Coach at Connecticut Wesleyan

Columbus, O., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Jim Oberlander, all American half back at Dartmouth in 1925 and assistant football coach at Ohio State university for the last three seasons, has been signed as head coach at Connecticut Wesleyan university, it became known here today.

Oberlander was known nationally for his long and accurate forward passes which defeated Chicago, Harvard, and other eastern colleges during Dartmouth's undefeated season of 1925. He came here upon graduation and helped Dr. John W. Wilce with the ends and backs. Last year under Coach Sam Williams, Oberlander had charge of the reserve squad.

"Gold Dust Twins" Lead Senators' Cage Offense

East Chicago, Ind., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—Talk about a league of nations, why just take a peek at the names of the players on the Washington High School basketball team which is in second place in the western division of the Indiana High School conference. Try to pronounce those names and two to one you'll heave a sigh of relief when you come to Graham and Simpson.

Coach Frank E. Cash, a graduate of Wabash college in 1921, where he was a tackle on the football squad for four years, tackled spelling them Friday night before the game with Hammond, and here is the result:

FIRST TEAM.

CENTERS—Gus Mikaluski, Lithuanian; Robert Graham, Irish.
GUARDS—Charles Untilus, Lithuanian; Peter Cergizan, Rumanian; James Angelich, Montenegrin; Leo Kaslevich, Polish.

FORWARDS—Stanley Gohus, Victor Esoff.
CENTERS—Joe Spudic, Peter Rolland.
GUARDS—Mike Deracey, Stanley Kamiski, Richard Dronsty, Homer Simpson, Owen Headwall.

Pull Game Out of Fire.

And don't think for a minute this isn't a good net team. Twenty-five hundred fans yelled themselves hoarse Friday night when after the score had been tied numerous times and some of the East Chicago rooters were putting chockers around their necks, the Gold Dust twins Patterson and Walton, rang up several field goals and the final gun left the homemade electrical score board showing the Senators the winners by a count of 28 to 26. Roy W. Felk, principal of the school, who sat in the balcony with E. H. McKenzie, hardware dealer, and a member of the school board, became so excited over the outcome that he almost lost his footing and came near tipping overboard on top of Howard B. Hutchinson, director of physical education, and Assistant Coach John McShane, who were protecting the players as they came off the floor and passesd through a cheering crowd.

Too Many Good Teams.

If Washington or Vincennes or Everett Case's Frankfort lads think northern Indiana doesn't see some hot basketball contests they had better put in an order for another "think." Coach Cash says that one reason his boys have never gone farther in the state tourney is because northern Indiana squads, especially those in the western division, have a state tourney of their own in the sectional meets.

"Why we're so thickly populated up here and we have so many good teams that the boys are completely worn out before they reach Indianapolis," he said. And to prove his statement he told of Joe Zeller, now forward on the Indiana university team, who played under the name of Joe Zelleski when on the East Chicago Washington team, losing 15 pounds in the sectional two years ago. "We don't have to have any 18 day diet for reducing here," he added.

Coach Cash is finding his job at Washington much more to his liking than selling coffins and other supplies to the morticians which he did for some time after coaching three years at Warsaw.

Senators, 35; Valparaiso, 12.
Senators, 24; Delphi, 23.
Senators, 29; Whiting, 26.
Senators, 26; Froebel, Gary, 15.
Horace Mann, Gary, 9; Senators, 7.

But now that she has been reinstated in golf on the petition of Miss Glenna Collett and fifty other ranking lady golfers, Miss Browne's case suggests strange possibilities. For instance, Jack Dempsey, the retired pugilist, might wish to enlarge his intellect and, after a course of preparatory studies, might enroll at Princeton university as an undergraduate. Consistent with the U. S. G. A.'s decree of re-amateurization in the case of Miss Mary K. Browne, Mr. Dempsey could command recognition as an amateur in intercollegiate football because he could easily prove that he never made any more money playing intercollegiate football than Miss Browne made at golf.

Amateurism Baffles Analysis.

Mr. Gus Sonnenberg, the wrestling champion, late of Dartmouth college and Detroit university, by the same reasoning, would be eligible to enroll in the A. A. U. as an amateur boxer because he has never done any boxing for hire, and would be at liberty to enter the ring in the Golden Gloves tournament, for instance, and maltreat all the other heavyweights in the show.

Many formidable intellects have tried to analyze amateurism in American athletics and there have been almost as many analyses as studies of the problem. The tendency has been, however, to regard a person who is a professional in any one sport as a professional athlete and I am quite sure that if Miss Browne were to enroll at one of the large state universities she would be held to be ineligible for the archery team, the daisy chain, the golf, swimming, rifle, and basketball teams on the ground that when she signed Mr. Pyle's pay roll she signed away her amateurism.

Under this interpretation of amateurism, which is probably the strictest in the entire organization of sports in this country, there is no such thing as a localized touch of professionalism in a competitor. The golf association in changing its mind about Miss Browne's case holds that professionalism is something like an attack of hang nail, not affecting the whole person of the accused. But in the colleges professionalism is regarded as something that immediately spreads through the blood stream and contaminates the victim entirely.

Miss Browne is so decorative in the sports which she essays that one hesitates to suggest that she has not the appearance of an amateur any more. Yet she has been one of the most persistent of the playing journalists or journalizing players, and has derived an attractive income at times from her writings about the sports which she plays. It is a question in my mind whether articles by prominent competitors would sell as readily or command as high a price if they were sent out without the signature of the author.

All the more successful syndicate salesmen tell me that it is much easier to sell great athletic names and personalities than literary excellence or thoughtful comment. The popularity of the works of Mr. Babe Ruth, the most detached journalist of all the absentee authors, illustrates the doubt that I mean to express on this point.

CENTRAL A.A.U. TO BEGIN AMATEUR HOCKEY PROGRAM

Direct action to promote amateur hockey is to be taken by the Amateur Athletic union of the United States. This was announced yesterday by Avery Brundage, president of the union. Hockey, heretofore left to an affiliated national organization, is to be managed by the A. A. U. itself, the same as track and field and swimming and a few other sports.

As the first move locally, E. C. Delaporte of the Chicago A. A. recently was appointed chairman of a new hockey committee for the Central A. A. U. He is to confer with Brundage in a few days to outline a program for the central district, which may in turn point the way for national action.

CHICAGO TRADERS ARE BORED WITH LISTLESS STOCKS

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A humdrum session on the Chicago exchange yesterday was relieved only by spurts of activity in a few isolated stocks which gave the market an appearance of steadiness, but certainly no convincing evidence of a rising movement. Traders went about their business in a bored manner and the 136,000 odd transactions which were completed were made up largely of professional trades.

Morgan Lithograph, comparatively inactive in recent weeks, furnished one of the few features of the day by running up 3½ points to a high of 15½ and finishing at 15. The activity in the issue, of which more than 7,000 shares were traded in, followed an announcement of favorable earnings by the company in the first five months of its current fiscal year.

Cities Service was under heavy pressure during the early part of the session and fell from 30 to 27¼, but recovered most of the loss before the close. The stock was particularly active, with a turnover of about 12,000 shares. Until yesterday the issue had been creeping up in small jumps for several days.

Foote Bros. Report Record Sales.

W. C. Davis, president of Foote Bros., reported that gross sales of the company during December were the best in the history of the firm. President C. S. Davis of Borg-Warner stated that clutch orders of the Borg & Beck company, a subsidiary, had increased 120 per cent in the last 30 days. Present unfilled orders will probably necessitate an increase in the production, he said.

The investment issues received little attention and for the most part were slightly lower. Central Illinois Securities was an exception with a gain of one point.

Utilities showed little change. Middle West closed at 26⅞, at which figure it has remained for several days. Central Public Service A was off ¼. The company announced yesterday in New York that it is planning an expenditure of more than $12,000,000 this year for improvements and maintenance. Net earnings of the company for the year ended Nov. 30 were $19,363,729 after expenses and taxes.

Radios Hold Steady.

In the radios, Grigsby improved less than a point to 19⅝. Steinite was unchanged at 2 after rising a fraction but failing to hold the gain. Creditors selected six of their committee to serve on the board of the Steinite Manufacturing company yesterday. The directors chosen are M. B Wiley, E. I. du Pont de Nemours company; Charles F. Anderson, National Surety company; Harry Simpson, Anaconda Brass company; Sanford Brown, Halowax corporation; Clarence Maier, Radio Condenser company, and J. P. Wiles, Fort Wayne chamber of commerce.

COTTON CROP OFF TO GOOD START, LEGGE ASSERTS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—(AP)—With approximately $800,000 of the $30,000,000 authorized capital stock subscribed within a few hours after incorporation at Wilmington, Del., the American Cotton Coöperative association got away today to what Chairman Legge of the federal farm board declared to be the "finest start" made by any of the national commodity marketing associations.

Selection of a headquarters city and election of officers still troubled the national organization committee, which automatically became the cotton corporation's first board of directors. Frank Buford, attorney for the committee, said it had laid the question of selecting officials aside until tomorrow.

Chairman Legge expressed gratification for the harmony with which state and regional cotton coöperatives were coming into the new association.

"The cotton men," he said, "have put this organization over with less delay and difficulty than any group with which we have worked. They made the finest start of the three national agencies."

The other two are the Farmers' National Grain corporation and the National Wool Marketing association. A fourth, the National Live Stock corporation, will meet soon to prepare a final draft of its plans.

Stock subscribed today was on the basis of cash or 10 per cent down, and the remainder in five annual installments, coöperatives subscribing for each share of stock at $100 for each 100 bales of cotton handled.

CALIFORNIA OIL.

HISTORY AND ORGANIZATION: The Safeway Stores organization operates the largest chain of grocery stores located west of the Mississippi River. It also operates grocery chains in Atlantic Coast states, in Canada and in Hawaii. Safeway Stores, Incorporated (Maryland), was organized early in 1926, as a holding company, and now operates through subsidiaries a system of 2,660 stores, of which 1,366 include meat markets; also 15 bakeries, 44 warehouses and 2 creameries. Safeway's chain in Canada consists of 150 stores, 12 warehouses and one bakery which, together with inventories, represent an expenditure during 1929 of over $5,000,000. This is the first step in a development program in the Dominion of Canada that is expected to give the Safeway Company a large chain in Canada within the next three years.

OPERATING STATISTICS: Stores, sales and net profits of Safeway Stores, Incorporated, on a consolidated basis (including operations of new units acquired previous to 1929 for the entire period), after Federal Income Tax at 12%, certified by Messrs. Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., for the years 1924 to 1928, inclusive, but including book figures in respect to certain minor units prior to their acquisition, and for the year 1929 stated by the Company, are as follows:

Profits for 1929 include no appreciable return from the investment during the year of more than $10,000,000 in new stores and properties, which investment is expected to increase the earnings of the Company substantially in 1930.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: The proceeds of the sale of $2,000,000 par value 6% Preferred Stock have been used to reimburse the Company in part for capital expenditures in 1929.

FUTURE: Future profits of Safeway will reflect the additional benefits to be derived from its greatly increased buying capacity, from the centralized and more efficient management of the various units acquired during the past two years, from expansion in Canada, and from the investment during 1929 of more than $10,000,000 in new stores and other properties.

NEW REVIVAL FOR BUSINESS IS ABOUT DUE

SurveySaysUpswing Is Only Logical.

BY O. A. MATHER.

A new revival in business is close at hand. This doesn't mean that there will be a boom, as it may take several weeks or even months for the upward movement to get really under way and then it promises to be gradual. These are conclusions set forth in the current CHICAGO TRIBUNE survey.

"Considering the amount of recession that has taken place in some of the basic industries, whose fluctuations have largely controlled the course of business since the war, and the demand and supply situation in the products of those industries, we are convinced that we are close to the bottom of the business decline which set in six months ago," the review says.

"If history is to repeat itself, the period of expansion which we see as imminent will start soon, though gradually. The improvement, starting in quarters where curtailment has been sharpest, will spread, growing purchasing power and better sentiment helping the movement by their reactions on one another.

Long Way from Boom Stage.

"The condition is a long way from the boom stage. The level of productive activity for 1930 will most certainly be less than in 1929 and some discouragement will be occasioned early in the year as comparisons are made showing less favorable results. However, by the time autumn is reached, comparisons with 1929 should be more satisfactory. The average for the year should be pretty close to the 1929 mark."

The annual reports of investment trusts and trading companies, which now are beginning to appear, are unusually interesting as showing how they weathered the stock market collapse in November. For example, the United States and Overseas corporation reports total assets were $23,-865,925 on Nov. 30, giving a liquidating value of $26.02 a share for the common stock and $10.43 a share for the class A stock. Both values are in excess of the average amount paid in on the shares, according to President E. Carleton Granberry. The average paid-in capital between Jan. 30 and Nov. 30 was $8,480,585 and net earnings of $431,425 were equivalent to 6.10 per cent.

The General Public Service corporation had investments with a market value of $35,379,603 on Dec. 31, almost all of which was in common stocks. The asset value of the corporation's common stock was $27.97 a share, which was 46.2 per cent more than the book value of the equity in the assets which it represents.

"At its highest point on Sept. 23 the market value of the corporation's assets was 94 per cent above their cost or book value," Chairman C. W. Kellogg says. "At its lowest point on Nov. 13 the market value was 11 per cent below their cost or book value. As of Dec. 31 the market value was 19 per cent above cost or book value. Net earnings of $3,385,890 were the largest for any year in the corporation's history."

Has $32,600,188 Resources.

The General American Investors company reported net resources of $32,600,188 on Dec. 31, giving a liquidating value of $11.62 a share on the common stock, compared with $15.52 a share in June. The bulk of assets consists of holdings of common stocks. Net profit for last year was $6,873,-461 after charges. The Incorporated Investors company reported that investments costing $44,171,828 had a market value of $40,559,385 on Dec. 31.

Two officials of Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago mail order and chain store concern, retired yesterday after more than thirty years' service. They are John Higgins, vice president, secretary, and auditor, and Walker C. Lewis, treasurer. Five promotions were announced by President R. E. Wood, who also said other changes in personnel will be made later in the year. T. J. Carney and D. M. Nelson become vice president; E. J. Pollack, vice president and controller; E. H. Powell, secretary treasurer; and C. E. Humphrey, assistant to the president in charge of factory operations.

Sees Long Pull Prospects for Construction Industry

BY SCRUTATOR.

An optimistic long view of the construction industry, and a somewhat less rosy one for the immediate future, were expressed yesterday by Col. W. A. Starrett, a leading builder, in an address to 200 investment bankers and salesmen at the Union League club. The meeting was sponsored by Halsey, Stuart & Co. and G. L. Ohrstrom & Co.

Commercial building, including office as well as residential structures, probably will fall below the 1929 level in 1930, the speaker said. A recession will be noteworthy in certain types of apartment buildings erected for speculative purposes, he added. This deficiency should be made up by additions to public works programs and the total be about that of last year.

His optimism was based on a five year outlook. Office, factory, and commercial buildings will be erected at an "unprecedented rate" over the period, in Col. Starrett's opinion, "because building has never caught up, for more than a brief time, with the needs of the population.

It is interesting to note that this authority considers Chicago as more likely to continue large building operations than eastern cities, some of which he said were considerably overbuilt.

Auto Parking Problem.

"At least a billion dollars should be spent this year in the principal cities of the country for skyscraper garages alone," he asserted. "The parking problem will be solved some time by erecting space enough to take every car away from the curb."

Residential building last year constituted a smaller proportion of all construction than is usual. For years, according to Col. Starrett, it was about 65 per cent of the total and now stands at 58 per cent.

This means that we are not improving our home facilities as rapidly as normally would be done. It is a significant fact and one that has perhaps not received the attention due it. The country is not overbuilt as to residences. In Chicago recent surveys have shown that the margin of unoccupied dwellings, particularly of the apartment type, is not unduly large.

That residence buildings have not been put up in greater number is undoubtedly due in considerable measure to high costs. Considering building costs and the general price levels of all commodities and services, building is higher by 20 per cent or more than it was in pre-war times. The wage scales are responsible for this in large degree, as prices of building materials seem in line with other goods.

Home Builders Hold Back.

Commercial building has gone ahead because the promoters believed they could get back a proper return. As it worked out, the people who normally are home builders have held back and renters have taken smaller apartments than they would have lived in if costs were lower.

The bulletin of the Building Construction Employers' association states that even before Dec. 1, 50,000 building trades mechanics were idle in Chicago and that 200,000 other workers usually needed to supply them also were without work. Even if this last figure is an exaggeration the situation is serious. The need for increased public construction may be due to the fact that private building is relatively more expensive than a good many other things.

Greenebaum Report Tells of Chicago Realty Problem

Formation of a new concern to purchase the slow assets of the Greenebaum Sons Investment company and also a protective committee to act for holders of first mortgage bonds which are in default was announced yesterday by President M. E. Greenebaum in his annual report to stockholders. He attributes the troubles of the Chicago real estate mortgage business to over building and stock market speculation.

The Great American Securities company, whose capital of $3,000,000 was furnished by M. E. and James E. Greenebaum, and which also secured a loan of $2,000,000, has taken over the slow assets of the Greenebaum company at a discount. But it will return to the company any excess above the capital furnished following liquidatin of the assets purchased.

To Cut Serial Payments.

The Chicago Title and Trust company and the Tradesmen's National Bank and Trust company, New York, will act for the bondholders' protective committee and will receive deposits of defaulted issues. It is planned to reduce serial payments on bond issues in the hope that eventually they will be paid off.

The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1929, shows a net deficit of $1,665,755 from operations last year, including loss on the sale of slow assets, thus reducing surplus to $834,244. The company carries securities owned at $5,918,380 and receivables at $982,358 but a total of $5,384,273 of these assets are pledged to secure bank loans of $3,984,685. The securities, other than $286,955 of listed stocks, are valued at cost because their realizable value and probable period of realization are not determinable. [Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 13.—The stock market dozed through another listless day today. Trading subsided to mere ripples of buying and selling and profits were scanty for bulls and bears alike.

Volume was the smallest since away back in July, 1928—less than 1,500,000 shares. As a matter of fact, many traders have become so discouraged over the continued dullness of the market that many of them have shut up shop and gone home or a-fishing or somewhere to await improved conditions.

There was little significance to price movements in any direction during most of the day. With a few scatter-

COFFEE PRICES NOW LOWEST IN 20 YEARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 13.—Uncertain conditions in Brazil and the dumping of large amounts of coffee on the market, which has had demoralizing effects on the futures quotation for coffee berries, has resulted in a general slashing of prices for coffee throughout the United States. Coffee prices generally are now at the lowest prices in the last twenty years according to leading dealers.

Grocery stores, chain stores, the mail order houses and other large distributors have made successive reductions during the last month as the prices declined and several additional cuts were announced today by large retail dealers. The National Tea company has put its second reduction into effect it announced today, the slash amounting to 3 to 4 cents per pound.

The Kroger Grocery and Baking company has reduced prices on its three principal brands of coffees on an average of 10 cents a pound within six weeks to the lowest levels of 20 years according to its announcement.

SHEEP — Fed western lambs yesterday	$12.00@14.15
One year ago	15.75@16.25

The trend of the hog market was reversed again yesterday, after losing 10@15c more on opening rounds. Most of the loss was recovered in mid-session and closing sales were fully steady with the general trade Saturday.

The extreme top was off 10c at $9.75, while the general average showed only 5c decline at $9.40, but prices are 20@35c lower than last Friday and 40@50c under last Thursday, the high point for the last three months.

Chicago hog receipts yesterday at 77,000 were largest since January, 1929, and compared with 68,188 the previous Monday and with 70,841 a year ago.

Offset Local Increase.

Decreases at other points, however, more than offset the local increase, and sent another deluge of big shipping orders here when prices moved downward at the opening. The eleven market total at 171,000 was 10 per cent smaller than the previous Monday and 20 per cent smaller than a year ago.

Choice 926@1,018 lb yearlings topped the market at $16.00, while $15.00 bought prime 1,395@1,445 lb steers. Two loads averaging 1,609 lbs reached $14.40, while some plain 1,100 lb averages were bought as low as $11.00. Cows and heifers sold weak to 25c lower. Calves tumbled 50c to $1. Stockers and feeders were scarce and quiet.

Lambs Break Sharply.

The largest run of medium and weighty lambs of the season pressed the market down 50@75c yesterday, some sales of 100@105 lb averages showing even more than the general reduction. Sorting was the hardest in recent weeks and prices finished at the low point following the release of an advance estimate of 15,000 for today.

Most good to choice 75@90 lb lambs brought $13.50@14.00, with 600 sorted to shippers and city butchers at $14.15, the day's peak. Most 95@105 lb averages were bought at $12.50@13.25. Aged sheep shared in the 50@75c decline, good handy ewes bringing $7.50. Feeding lambs were firm at last week's advance, with best handy weights at $13.00, the highest sale in recent weeks.

Range of live stock prices shows a tendency to widen, owing to the larger number of medium and heavy animals unloaded on the market lately. The "spread" on the market for hogs and lambs is at the widest point of the season.

Actions of the federal farm board have caused unrest throughout the country, the annual meeting of the Chicago Board of Trade was told yesterday by the incoming president, John A. Bunnell.

"So far as the Chicago Board of Trade is concerned," Mr. Bunnell said, "our attitude, as in the past, should be one of entire sympathy with all sound and constructive governmental measures intended to aid agriculture. However, we have the right to expect that in the pursuance of such policies due care will be taken not to needlessly impair or disorganize the existing machinery of distribution." He predicted that "a period of material progress" lies ahead for the exchange, and announced that it would soon occupy its new monumental home at the head of La Salle street.

Mr. Bunnell is beginning his fourth term as Board of Trade president, having served first in 1909, and again in 1926 and 1927.

The retiring president, Samuel P. Arnot, said the handling of this season's crop situation, made so difficult by early marketing and political activity, was "convincing proof of the excellent service the exchange performs in crop distribution."

Arouses Interest.

The prediction of F. W. Sargent, president of the C. & N. W., that the company's 1929 earnings will show about $9 a share on the common aroused some interest in view of the current market price, which is only a little more than nine times that figure. The $9 figure compares with $6.62 in 1928. The official estimate of a decrease of about $500,000 in gross revenues in December and an increase of about $200,000 in deficit after charges was more or less in line with expectations. Car loadings for the first ten days in January showed an increase of about 300 over the same period of last year.

National Biscuit.

In a recent statement by the head of the National Biscuit company it was denied that National had any intention of acquiring control of Purity Bakeries. Rumors have been heard from time to time that such action would fit in with National's plans to expand its interest in the bread baking field. Recent proposed increase of the common stock and reports that the additional shares would be used in connection with future acquisition had revived rumors that National would seek a controlling interest in Purity. Regarding operations last year, Frederick Beers, president, indicated that National Biscuit had completed its most satisfactory year with net earnings equal to $8.21 a share on 2,400,000 common shares, a gain of 90 cents a share over last year.

Oils Disappointing.

Oils continue to disappoint traders who have been following that group for some time and who have been bullish on their prospects for the new year. Although selling in this group has been absorbed on a scale down there has been no inclination to force buying. Most oil companies will report substantial increases in earnings over 1928. The chief problem, however, that of overproduction, has not yet been settled, judging by recent statements.

Makes Quick Recovery.

One of the low priced stocks which is attracting considerable attention by the rapid recovery from its low is United Electric Coal. It is difficult to explain this stock's advance in less than three weeks from a low of 6 to its present level of around 17 except by the scarcity of offerings and accumulation of all available cheap stock by insiders. United Electric Coal in 1929 sold above $81 a share. Officials of the company are said to be optimistic over the prospects for a resumption of dividends later this year.

In the corresponding period of 1928, sales amounted to $29,277,238, and net income was $4,741,927, equal to $4.27 per share on the common.

Directors have put the common stock on a $5 annual basis, with the declaration of a $1.25 initial quarterly dividend, payable February 15, 1930, to stock of record January 25, 1930. An extra dividend of $1 per share is payable at the same time on the convertible preference stock.

"It seems to us highly significant that in 1929 we gained 14,188 new customers"

Nicholas Roberts, President

"In the past year talk and attention have centered as never before upon speculative securities. Yet in this year S. W. Straus & Co. has gained 14,188 new customers.

"This seems to us highly significant. It reminds us once again that, despite the hue and cry, the great majority of conservative people are still just as cautious and just as insistent on safety of principal as ever.

"Thrifty, provident men and women of moderate as well as of large means are the investors whom it has been our privilege to serve ever since our business was founded in 1882. We are today serving over 175,000 of such investors.

"Many of our clients bring all their funds to us for investment; a number of them have dealt exclusively with us for a quarter of a century.

"This record indicates pretty clearly, we believe, that we are making a stronger appeal every year to that important class of investors who will not be persuaded to risk their principal."

In Choosing a Bond Think First of Safety
When insurance companies guarantee a bond protecting the holder against loss of principal or interest you may definitely refer to that bond as a safe bond.
The bonds we sell are guaranteed by two old reserve surety companies making them doubly safe, and we strongly recommend them as a splendid investment.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Cotton goods markets opened the week quietly with easy prices ruling on some print cloths, particularly narrow goods, and in sheetings. Eastern sateens were easy. Some good makes of lawns sold at a premium, encouraging manufacturers of the better grades. Burlaps continued quiet with prices at very low levels. New York spot raw silks advanced five cents on rising Japan markets and sold well. Silk piece goods sales improved with prices maintained at fair levels. Wool goods markets were quiet. Floor covering sales improved. Axminsters were reported moving at a better pace, American Orientals were in some demand and true orientals improved although stocks were considerable.

NATURAL GAS—Utility of the Twenty Million

A Utility Romance: UNITED GAS COMPANY

Almost twenty million people in more than four million American homes last year depended upon Natural Gas to increase their comforts by warming their homes, cooking their meals, heating their water, or operating their gas refrigerators. Unknown to most of them, it also served as the fuel which aided in the making of millions of kilowatts of electricity. Natural Gas has forged to the front as a necessary public utility of the utmost importance; yet more than eighty percent of the country's total production in 1928 was consumed for industrial and manufacturing purposes.

United Gas Company, through its subsidiaries and associated companies, delivers billions of cubic feet of Natural Gas annually to hundreds of thousands of consumers in the Southwest, including many great industrial enterprises. It serves a territory whose population is increasing rapidly, and is developing along lines that will permit it adequately to meet the growing dem

WHEAT TRADERS BEARISH; PRICES WORK LOWER

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

It is seldom that wheat traders become as unanimously bearish as they were yesterday, and bulls generally were discouraged. While the trade was not large there was sufficient local and commission house selling to carry May off 2¼c from Saturday's finish to $1.27⅞, a new low since Dec. 20.

There was considerable buying on resting orders at $1.29, and again at $1.28, which absorbed the surplus in the pit, and toward the last there was a sharp rally on short covering, a decidedly oversold condition developing, but the finish was at net losses of 1¼@1¼c. July gained ¼c on the May during the day.

Winnipeg showed more weakness than Chicago and wheat futures there closed 1⅜@2¼c lower, while Liverpool ignored the strength in North American markets on Saturday and closed unchanged at ⅝d lower. France sold wheat to the United Kingdom, which had some effect in Liverpool. Buenos Aires and Rosario finished the same as on Saturday.

Wheat Market Deadlocked.

Were it not for fear of what the farm board might do, a decided decline in wheat values would not be surprising, judging from the expressions of traders yesterday.

While many of them are bullish at heart the slow export demand and heavy stocks of cash grain tends to curtail buying operations, and unless there are new developments in the situation values are expected to hold within narrow limits, as the bears are not inclined to sell freely when prices get down to around the farm board loan figures. At Minneapolis country run No. 1 northern sold at $1.25, the board's basic price for that market. At Omaha No. 1 hard sold at $1.16, or within 1c of the loan price.

With the exception of sales of around 600,000 bu, mainly Manitobas, there was little interest taken in the cash wheat market by foreigners. The domestic visible supply decreased 3,311,000 bu for the week, or somewhat less than trade expectations, and brought the total down to 172,207,00 bu, against 134,348,000 bu last year.

A few scattered complaints regarding the new winter wheat crop are coming from Indiana, while from Kansas reports are generally optimistic despite the dryness in the western part of that state.

Corn Shows Strength.

Corn showed independent strength and prices averaged higher, despite the break in wheat. A local operator was credited with having been a good buyer, and this offset selling by the pit element. Closing trades were ⅛@¼c higher. Trade in the aggregate was light. Country offerings to arrive were limited, and weather unfavorable for the movement. Complaints regarding the quality of the corn remaining in the fields are increasing from Illinois and Indiana. Buenos Aires finished unchanged to ½c higher. An increase of 2,251,000 bu was shown in the visible supply, with the total 12,143,000 bu, against 20,182,000 bu last year.

Oats prices held within a range of ¼c with little interest shown on either side, prices averaging lower with wheat, and the finish was at net losses of ¼@½c, the latter on March.

Bulk of the trade in rye was in spreading between March and July, and between rye and corn. The finish was ⅝@1c lower.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

A large percentage of local wheat traders lean to the bear side of the market and have forced out scattered holders. The point was made after the close by a few pit traders that wheat disappears on breaks. There was heavy selling around $1.28 for May, attributed to a large local operator, but offerings dried up and covering by early sellers was responsible for a recovery of part of the early decline of 2⅝c.

There is uneasiness among wheat traders who have been friendly to the buying side of late, owing to indifference on the part of foreigners to take hold with sufficient freedom to start a bull market. They have waited patiently for more than a month for foreigners to buy liberally, but express disappointment at their continued indifference regarding the securing of future supplies, in the face of world's shipments about 50 per cent less than last year and the small quantity afloat for European importing countries.

PROVISION TRADE SMALL

A light business was on in provisions yesterday, with little news in the trade, export buyers having been satisfied for the time being, and despite the unexpectedly large receipts of hogs in Chicago and lower prices early, the market rallied at the last and the close on lard futures was 2½c higher to unchanged. Bellies were unchanged to 2½c higher, May leading. Liverpool lard was unchanged to 6d higher. Cumberlands in that market were 1s higher and American cut hams 2s higher.

Exports of lard for the week were 10,822,000 lbs against 12,866,000 lbs last year. Of bacon they were 5,386,000 lbs against 3,864,000 lbs last year. Exports of lard on Saturday, not included in the weekly returns were 1,328,000 lbs, and of bellies 601,500 lbs.

The fact that the big run of hogs in Chicago were well taken care of, created a better feeling in the trade at the last. Prices follow:

LIQUIDATION ON IN EGGS

Heavy general selling and liquidation by longs sent egg futures for current month delivery down $345 a car on the Chicago Mercantile exchange, but distant contracts held their own. Disappearance of snow and heavier receipts, bringing a break of 1½c in spot prices, contributed to the future losses. January refrigerators and January fresh broke 2½c and February fresh ¾c, but November was unchanged. Sales were 438 cars and receipts 10,943 cases. Butter futures closed ¼c lower. Solved

The trouble a certain manufacturer was having with broken harrow teeth is ended . . . thanks to an Interstate Metallurgist.

Here is the situation this expert faced. The teeth were being made of carbon spring steel. To make them larger was out of the question because of design. The situation was critical. The breaking of the teeth had to be stopped.

The Interstate Metallurgist specified a certain alloy steel with the proper heat treatment . . . and the teeth now have the necessary strength.

CUSTOM BUILT

By SIDNEY HERSCHEL SMALL

SYNOPSIS.

John Andrew Kellogg, heir to millions, asks Barbara Thornton to marry him. She accepts, but not very graciously. When she hears that he has just lost his job, she scolds him and calls him a playboy. He calls on his attorney, David Craig, who tells him he will never inherit the money his father left if he doesn't prove himself capable of managing his life in a sensible way. He tells him that since he has lost one job after another, he will have to double five thousand dollars in thirty days or live on an allowance from a trust fund for the rest of his life. John Andrew telephones this to Barbara and she offers to give him five thousand to turn over to Craig. He refuses the engagement. He decides to go to San Francisco and starts for California. On the train he meets Anne Ames, who is on her way to Hollywood with a letter of introduction to a movie producer. They become interested in each other. Before saying good-by in Utah, John Andrew tells Anne that he will see her in Los Angeles in a few days.

Arrived in San Francisco, John Andrew meets an old school friend, Peter Merriam, on the street. Pete is selling Mercury cars and tries to sell one to John Andrew. They go for a trial spin and with John Andrew at the wheel, have a slight smash-up. In order to keep Pete from losing his job, John Andrew buys the custom built roadster for $1,800. He also gives all but a hundred dollars of his expense money to an old man with an invention without asking what the machine is. He drives to Los Angeles in the Mercury and sees Anne at the Consolidated Studio, where she is being tried out. He makes an engagement to take her to dinner. Before starting out he looks at the old man's plans and learns they are for a noiseless camera. He sells the patent rights to Consolidated for twenty-five thousand, the money to be turned over to him on the receipt of the signature of Blake, the inventor.

In the meantime the hotel people become suspicious of John Andrew and ask him to pay his bill. He decides to pawn some belongings. He receives a telegram from the inventor's attorney asking for five hundred additional or lose the contract. He decides to sell the Mercury.

INSTALLMENT XXXII.

THE GOLDEN VOICE.

John Andrew called Anne's number at once. Some woman answered. Was Kellogg asked for Miss Ames . . .

"Anne," he said, after a pause, "what's the matter? Decide to get sentimental this morning? Or . . ."

"I'm not working this morning," Anne's voice came to him, unsteadily, and with a catch in it which frightened Kellogg. "There's been some trouble. I don't know what it is. About my voice . . ."

"Well," John Andrew suggested, "while they're fixing their machines to get a voice as lovely as yours the way it really sounds, suppose you and I elope and get married? Take time by the forelock, as it were. Good idea?"

"So's marriage."

Carey's information, Kellogg knew now, was only too correct; Anne's really wonderful voice, in some not to be understood manner, did not properly register on the film itself, although it had been marvelous on the wax discs. Unless it were rectified, her career as the "girl with the golden voice" was over.

"What am I going to do?" her voice pleaded with him now, clear, proud, afraid. "They've just told me to wait until they call me . . . suppose they never do?"

"They will," John Andrew said suddenly, "that is, if they want the

This time John Andrew said "No."

"No!"

"Why not?"

"Don't you see?"

This time John Andrew said, "No!"

"Then . . . come around and take me for a ride," Anne said wearily. "It's dear of you, John Andrew, but we couldn't do anything like that . . ."

John Andrew said vehemently, "The devil we can't! After I've talked to him, they'll know that this business requires thought——"

"Don't antagonize them," Anne pleaded with him. "Don't say anything . . . promise! And just suppose they didn't buy the camera . . . if you made them angry . . . then what would we do?"

John Andrew's chest swelled. "Don't worry about that," he advised, in turn. "I realize how much they want the Blake-Kellogg, to get the edge on all other producers, and——"

"Perhaps"—Anne's voice was low—"perhaps it isn't because my voice hasn't do what they want, but because . . . they say Chester has a terrible pull——"

John Andrew, even with Anne a mile away, smiled a little sadly. "It may be that, dear," he said gently, and so helped Anne to put back the fragments of her pride. "It may indeed. But between Chester and the Blake-Kellogg——"

"We can't put a gun at their heads," Anne told him, more brightly for Kellogg's assurance. "I may be just worrying over some technical difficulty which will not amount to anything . . . come and drive me up in the hills, John Andrew, and talk to me . . ."

"I'm pretty busy this morning, Anne——"

Silence, then Anne's voice, "Can you come later?"

"Well . . . I may be some time at this business . . ."

Silence again; John Andrew did not know what Anne might be thinking; himself was wondering if he should inform the girl that the Mercury was being repaired, which he did not want to do, or come out frankly—why not—and say that he had sold the machine to meet his partner's demands:

"I was just blue, John Andrew. I didn't mean to take you away from"—doubtfully, just the same—"your work. But they can take a message for me here, when . . . if . . . one comes from Consolidated. Will you be around this afternoon?"

And John Andrew, with that, lied, lest he add to the burden of Anne's sorrows. "Remember that little knock we heard last night in the Mercury?" he said. "I ran her into the garage——"

"What knock? I didn't hear any——"

"Into the garage this morning, and there's a loose tappet. But I'll have them let me use a car, and——"

"It won't be the Mercury; it's silly, but I love the roadster. Perhaps I'm not going to marry you for it . . . what time will you come?"

But she loved the Mercury, did she? In that moment John Andrew decided that the jade green roadster would be repurchased just as soon as possible. Kellogg should have been elated; Anne, unless the unexpected happened, would no longer be connected with Consolidated, and free to go where she willed; he would take the sting of failure—failure not in any sense her fault—away completely. First, there would be the happy (he hoped) shock of finding out that she could do whatever in the world (except making sound pictures) that she wanted . . . little shops off Fifth avenue, a Mercury coupe for winter; John Andrew, legs on the edge of the desk, let his thoughts wander . . .

It was going to be, apparently, all for the best. If Anne had insisted upon continuing her work as an actress, things might have become very complicated. What, for example, wouldn't the newspapers have done with it, since Consolidated gave them the opportunity to use Anne's name, and they discovered the rest of the tale? Anne Ames, Consolidated's girl with the golden voice, married to John Andrew Kellogg, who—some city editor would certainly discover, even before the wire services shot the story on to New York—who was one of Manhattan's formidable fortunes, even if he had always kept out of the papers . . . the whole story would be dug up; millionaire achieves control of great wealth, and motion picture star marries at once" . . .

Rotten!

Just the same, Kellogg was sorry for Anne. She desired to do something, she could not. If she felt that Chester were responsible for her failure, would not hurt as badly as if it were actually her voice. John Andrew would never tell her any different. Much as he hoped Anne would, when they were married, leave the pictures, Kellogg would have preferred having a problem work out in some way which would not hurt her. He doubted he might have blackjacked Consolidated into keeping her, even using the Blake camera as a carrot; if Consolidated turned it down (at such a price) someone else would buy it, believing that there was some flaw in the apparatus.

In an office in New York a dour little Scot attorney had completed his long harangue, erring (if he did it at all) on the side of caution; his client, shrugging, said, "Then you think we ought to label the essences with some fancy names, instead of calling them bourbon and rye and scotch?"

"The laws are very unstable," old Craig repeated. "What we have now, mind, is a very different thing tomorrow, and I am an attorney and not a soothsayer. I do not say the business is illegitimate, ye'll understand, but I note from your last income tax report that the concern's showing a considerable profit, but——"

"We were almost on the rocks, as you know," said Caldwell. "So were lot of other manufacturing chemists, but prohibition's done us a lot of Why, I don't believe there's a dozen bottles sold that some of us n't furnished the essence with which to flavor it. You should have put money into our company, Mr. Craig; we'd have shown you a handsome

GASOLINE ALLEY—HOW PROBLEMS DO COLLECT

CHEER UP PHYLLIS! YOU DON'T LOOK AS IF YOU'D JUST BEEN ASKED TO TAKE A TRIP TO FLORIDA.
YES! ALL A MAN HAS TO DO IS TO THROW HIS OTHER SUIT AND OTHER SHIRT INTO A BAG, TELL HIS ASSISTANT AT THE OFFICE TO LOOK AFTER THINGS TILL HE GETS BACK AND HE'S READY.
OH, I'VE GOT TO DO MORE THAN THAT.
WELL YOU DON'T HAVE TO SEE THAT YOUR LIGHT DRESSES ARE IN ORDER, THAT THE CHILDREN'S CLOTHES ARE MENDED AND CLEAN, ARRANGE ABOUT RACHEL AND THE HOUSE, FIGURE ON WHAT BAGGAGE TO TAKE, CONSIDER SKEEZIX'S SCHOOL AND STUDIES AND A LOT OF OTHER THINGS.
FOR INSTANCE, WHAT ARE WE TO DO WITH LORA? SHE IS DEEP IN LOVE WITH SOMEONE WE DON'T KNOW. SHE OUGHT NOT TO BE LEFT TO HER OWN RESOURCES.
I THOUGHT SHE COULD STAY HERE AND RACHEL COULD TAKE CARE OF HER— BUT ANYTHING YOU SAY.

Good morning!

The story of the imprisonment, trial and execution of the Maid of Orleans is presented with amazing sincerity and forcefulness. There is no prologue, no epilogue, no attempt at any time on the part of the director to inject rhapsody or synthetic drama.

It is as if he said to you briefly, "This is what happened," flung aside a curtain and stepped aside. You are instantly and completely transported from the present into a tumultuous past. You are in the prison at Rouen and a slim figure in man's attire comes slowly toward you, chains dragging at her ankles as she walks . . .!

So marvelously does Maria Falconetti interpret the title rôle that, for you, she IS Joan. And never was great emotional acting done more quietly. The soul of the character she portrays is laid bare in the face of the actress. Her hands, too, are eloquent. Strange to say, of hands, that they break your heart, but there are times when hers do.

Mlle. Falconnetti's Joan displays no flashes of that "native mischief" of which Mark Twain speaks in his beautiful "Recollections," and so her portrayal becomes an utterly harrowing one. Item: That she might the more faithfully conform to the requirements of her rôle this player permitted her head to be shaved.

Magnificent work is done by, all members of the supporting cast. Especially fine is the characterization of Bishop Cauchon, Joan's chief accuser and the man who conducted her trial with such malevolence and perfidy. One recollects with satisfaction that Cauchon was posthumously excommunicated by the pope, and his body exhumed and thrown in the common sewer. You feel that he belonged there while he was alive.

Joan's trial, her signing of the abjuration, her subsequent repentance and denial of the statements to which under fear of the stake she had affixed her signature, her execution and the mob scenes attendant on it, are memorable episodes—and there are many others. The picture is historically accurate. Costumes and settings are convincingly of the period and some remarkable photographic effects have been obtained, especially in the closeups. The action proceeds with commendable continuity from arresting start to powerful conclusion. The accompanying musical score is delightful.

Joan was beatified in 1903 and in 1920 was made a saint.

People don't die for ideals any more, do they? Well, "the world needs to be reminded as well as informed" and so, with reverence, I hand you "the Passion of Joan of Arc."

The "western" appears to be coming back into its own. Nice! Sort of a relief, and a change, to see a bad horse after our open season of bad babies and bandits.

Most grownups and all children will like "Parade of the West." Its story is laid on the plains in the days when "a ford was still a river crossing and the Floradora girls were young," and features a real wild west show from cook shed to exciting performance. During the latter you see some riding that makes you tingle.

Ken Maynard is the star of this film and does good work, but Jackie Hanlon as Billy, the hero's protégé, carries away the honors, to my way of thinking. He's about 12, I should imagine, and a real kid, despite the fact that he can handle a horse and rope as well as most grownup cowboys. Do take the children to see him. (In the sound version of the film.)

"Parade of the West" is atmospheric, has picturesque scenery, interesting types and considerable homely humor. A thread of romance sweetens the somewhat obvious story. Acting, direction, photography and synchronization please.

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send your name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune. For today's question Miss Frances Cerny, 2644 North Mozart street, was awarded $5.

The Question.

The Answers.

Miss W. O'Brien, 6057 South Honore street, clerk — To tell the truth, I never formed the habit of reading in bed. But they say it is very easy on the eyes to read that way. I know for a fact that I get a great deal of pleasure out of reading at any time while lying down.

Jim Twyman, 139 South Grove avenue, Oak Park, salesman—I should say so. Funny thing about wives, though; they don't think much of it. My wife has been letting me use my own judgment lately, and in this one item I'm having the time of my life.

Miss Bobbie Reist, 1908 Wellington avenue, saleswoman—As a general thing I do not care to read in bed. But I have one exception. I read only two publications, The Tribune and Liberty. I read both in the evening. The Tribune I read as I feel like it, but I always crawl into bed, prop myself up with pillows to read Liberty.

H. C. Werle, 2112 Prairie avenue, wood carver—I never read in bed. I always fell asleep when I attempted anything like that. When I retire I do so for sleep, and I don't want any books or lights. If I want to read I want to be sitting up and wide awake.

Mrs. Harriet Faulkner, 655 North Lawndale avenue, nurse—No. It is not very good for the eyes to read in bed. Women can do so with a greater degree of safety than men. Most men who read in bed smoke there also. They often doze and drop what they are smoking, so setting the bed on fire.

Italian Press Silent on Pope's School Letter

Pontiff Opposes System of Co-educator.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 12. — [Delayed by Censor.]—Pope Pius' thundering 18,000 word encyclical, issued Saturday, which is regarded here as being of world wide significance and designed to invigorate Catholicism through forceful missionary activities, has so far been completely ignored by the Italian press. The encyclical was marked by a bitter attack on co-education and modern methods of teaching.

The letter filled two and a half pages of the official Vatican organ, the Osservatore Romana, but the other Roman and Fascist papers merely announced in part that the pontiff had made a new pronouncement on the education of youth.

This subject is contested by Fascism and is one point on which the Lateran concordat has brought no accord, but which, on the contrary seems to have exaggerated the already existing disagreements.

This encyclical is, in a sense, an expansion of the ideas which the pope expressed last spring, shortly after the Lateran pact's signature, in an address before the students of the Jesuit college of Mondragone. At that time the pope said that the education of youth was the prerogative of the church, the family, and the state in order mentioned.

He deplored the tendencies towards which the youth of Italy was being taught, and by which children were considered not as individuals, but as units forming parts of the integrated state, which alone was important. These ideas are developed further in the encyclical in a language which goes directly to the point of struggle between the church and state for the control of the youth of Italy.

Since the encyclical is directed to all the bishops of the Catholic world, it may be presumed to be guidance for churchmen in other countries in their attitude toward education.

It refers to the practices in non-Catholic countries, where all contribute towards maintenance of schools in which Catholic instruction is not given. This, the letter points out, obviously has application in the dioceses of the United States, England, and other countries where the educational system is nonreligious.

THEATER

"NINA ROSA":

Operetta, in two acts, by Otto Harbach, Irving Cæsar, and Sigmund Romberg; staged by Milton Shubert and J. C. Huffman; made known in Chicago (by the Messrs. Shubert) January 13, 1930, in the Great Northern Theater, with this cast:

Nina Rosa Stradella.....Berna Deane
Jack Haines.....Guy Robertson
Elinor, his sister.....Marion Marchante
Pablo.....Leonard Ceeley
Jimmie Blakely.....Jack Sheehan
Slivers.....Don Barclay
Corina.....Nina Gordani
Don Fernando.....Luis Alberni
Yana.....Belle Sylvia
John Craig.....George Anderson
Bob Wilson.....John Kearney
A dancer.....Stephen Cortez
Another.....Helba Huara
Another.....Peggy
Another.....Victor Casmore

NONE of the other operettas that have been housed in the Great Northern in the last five years "went through" with such a first-night smash as "Nina Rosa," made known there last night. This is saying a great deal for the dynamic energy turned loose by the excited, delighted houseful; for none of the other pieces was what could properly be called contemptible, and at least one, "The Student-Prince," was all but a masterpiece in the form of fabricated operetta. I add that I have no recollection of a first-night with operetta in the Great Northern or any other theater marked by a performance so high in enthusiasm, on-the-toes eagerness, and the quality we used to call "pep" as was last night's. An accident or two with the settings and "props" left the performers undisturbed and unabashed; and, when a dusky Peruvian girl danced herself into a blonde, the incident was turned to happy and profitable laughter.

Of course, there remains unanswered the question which it is my duty to believe is on the lips of every reader of The Tribune: is it a good show? It is. It has a good tale by Mr. Harbach, the best lyrics Mr. Cæsar has turned out since he helped to write "No! No, Nanette!" and a rousing, tingling, virile, and melodic score by Mr. Romberg, who, as I have remarked ere now, knows a good tune when he hears it, and knows just what to do with it in the process of turning it to his own uses. He was not among those present, although his attendance was intimated by an earnest herald; and I doubt that he could well have done more for and by his score than was done by the diligent gentleman in charge of the orchestra, Max Meth.

The tale of "Nina Rosa" is, you may be astonished to learn, about a girl named Nina Rosa, whose father was all kinds of a fine Spaniard, but compelled, as he passed on, to leave her in the care of an old Indian. For, although the time is the present, the place is not New York, but Peru—"near Cuzco, Peru, South America," to quote the playbill. A mine is named for her: one of the mines wherefrom, it is learned, the Incas were wont to get the gold which won for them the attentions of the Señor Pizarro, about whom you read in the school-books. Well, Jack, who is in on the mine and bent on finding the vein worked by the Incas, loves Nina Rosa; and Pablo, a bad half-breed from the Argentine, also loves her. Things are so wangled that Jack is made to believe that she loves Pablo, who travels with his gang. Also, he owns part of the mine. And all is well by the time what the playbill labels the finale ultimo it reached.

The play, the rimes, and the tunes are put through with infectious zest by the performers listed above and a stageful of others. Mr. Robertson sang better than I had before heard him as the unafraid American; and Mr. Ceeley, heard here in "Katja," is somebody else and far more interesting as the wicked Pablo. You will like Miss Deane in the title-rôle: that is, you will like her if she sings as well as she sang last night; and you will like the others, including Cortez and Peggy, who have a new variant of the Apache dance; Mr. Barclay, who used to be in the Ziegfeld Follies; and Mr. Sheehan, who was handicapped last night by a cold. . . .

Yes: "Nina Rosa" is easy to like.

The management has done the right thing by the authors in the matter of putting a comic-opera Peru on the stage: the mise-en-scène calls for the adjective gorgeous. It uses up the boards of the Great Northern to the last quarter-inch; and is so rich and handsome as spectacle that it justifies every dollar of the expenditure . . .

Yes: "Nina Rosa" is easy to like.

Dentists Hear of Clinic Plan to Lower Costs

Rosenwald Proposal Is Told at Meeting.

Establishment of a number of experimental dental clinics to test ways of reducing dental costs and to enable a larger section of the population to secure periodic care of the teeth was urged yesterday by Dr. Michael Davis, director of medical services for the Julius Rosenwald fund. The Rosenwald fund, he said, is ready to cooperate financially in the establishment of four such clinics.

The proposal and offer were made before a general session of the annual meeting of the Chicago Dental society which yesterday opened a three day session at the Stevens hotel. Officials estimated that 10,000 dentists from the United States and 20 foreign countries were attending the various lectures and clinics.

Dr. Davis suggested that one clinic be established in Chicago, another in New York and two others in smaller cities. He asked the cooperation of the Chicago Dental society and the American Dental association in planning and financing the project.

"The demand for dental service is far less than the need for it," Dr. Davis said. "Some persons who live within a stone's throw of a dentist do not think they need go to him unless they have a toothache which is not relieved by something bought from a drug store or bootlegger. Many others get far less dental service than they need because they think the cost is more than they can afford. Properly conducted clinics will compete with dental parlors and quacks and bring sections of the public to receive dental service who now go with little or none."

Dr. Hugo Fisher, president of the Chicago Dental society, and Dr. Benjamin S. Partridge, chairman of the society's public service committee, expressed gratitude over the offer and stated that the matter would be taken under consideration by Dr. Partridge's committee.

"Watch your vitamins," is the new slogan of the dentists. Speakers who addressed various sessions declared that decay may be stopped and teeth strengthened through eating foods containing the proper vitamins and minerals.

Dr. Charles L. Drain of Iowa City cited experiments in which a wide variety of teeth ailments were cured by placing patients on a diet of orange or tomato juice, fruits and vegetables. Dr. Edward J. Ortian of the American dental hospital in Paris disclosed that the teeth of Latin peoples are generally stronger because they eat foods exposed to the sun. For Nordics who get less sunshine in their food, milk, eggs and fruits are being prescribed, he said.

Authorities discussed advisability of extracting devitalized teeth, those in which the nerves have died. Dr. R. Kronfeld of Chicago declared that many teeth are needlessly extracted, teeth which might be preserved for years by filling the roots. Dr. C. F. B. Stowell generally recommended the extraction of all devitalized teeth, pointing out that there are some 70 systemic diseases arising from ailing teeth.

"However, there are certain biological necessities which must be kept in mind," he said. "For instance, a young woman must be as beautiful as possible in order to secure a husband. In such a case it may be better not to extract her teeth, at least until she has married."

Last night's general session was addressed by Dr. S. B. Wolbach, professor of pathology of the Harvard medical school, and Dr. Kegel, Chicago health commissioner.

Freud Tells Fears of Mass Culture as Peril to Americans

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, Jan. 13.—Standardization of the individual in American culture is tending toward disaster. That's the view of Prof. Sigmund Freud in his new work that well may be translated as "The Discomfort of Civilization."

"Psychological mass misery threatens most imminently," Freud writes, "where relations are based mainly on identification of participants among each other while natural leaders do not attain the significance which should be theirs. The present cultural condition in America gives a good opportunity to study this apprehended cultural damage. But I renounce an attempt to embark on a criticism of American culture. I do not wish to give the impression that I myself am willing to make use of American methods."

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Chicago is the musical center of the United States, according to Edgar Nelson, president of the Bush Conservatory of Music. Mr. Nelson addressed the Methodist Episcopal ministers' meeting at Chicago temple yesterday morning. He not only pointed out Chicago's musical leadership, but added that Chicago also is the principal musical instrument manufacturing point of the country.

Mr. Nelson cited the musical recognition which has been brought to Chicago as a result of the new Civic opera and the Chicago Symphony orchestra and other well known musical clubs and organizations. He declared that music, such as produced in these organizations, has great cultural influences not only in Chicago but throughout the nation.

Dr. Peter C. Lutkin, dean of the school of music at Northwestern university, in an interview spoke of the influences of music in religious worship. He deplored the tendency of the day which makes church music a choir specialty and permits congregations to hire experts to do their singing for them. Dr. Lutkin is preparing to launch a movement to establish hymn singing festivals in churches.

"The manner of hymn singing of a congregation," Dr. Lutkin said, "is apt to be a barometer of the sincerity and earnestness of that congregation. The success of many religious movements has been greatly enhanced by the use of music. The Moravian, Wesleyan and Lutheran movements are notable examples. Music makes singular contribution to the communal expression in giving a means whereby all can simultaneously express the same emotion."

More than 150 district committee chairmen of the greater Chicago visitation evangelism campaign met yesterday at the La Salle hotel in the final meeting before the preliminary canvass which begins on Jan. 16. Committee discussions were held during the luncheon on the plans for the campaign.

An executive committee of the Protestant churches of Evanston yesterday announced plans for a church survey of the suburb to determine the church affiliations of the Evanston population and to learn whether the churches are operating efficiently.

More than 30,000,000 copies of the Bible were sold last year, according to Bishop Samuel P. Spreng of the Evangelical church in his address yesterday before the 90th meeting of the Chicago Bible society at the Morrison hotel. L. T. M. Slocum was elected president of the Chicago Bible society for 1930.

"What Will People Say?" Dominates Girl's Every Move

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Pity the poor imbeciles whose lives are ruled by: "What will people say?" There are more of them than the average person thinks. There are people who live in houses they cannot afford because of what those mythical censors—the people—will say; people paying installments on automobiles because of what people will say; others putting up all kinds of stupid fronts to cater to the great undefined audience which maybe gives not a single care whether one lives on the lake shore or down by the railroad tracks.

But the prize ninny is the person who will not break an engagement out of which love has long since fled because of what people will say. One of her we met today. Winifred is her name. Five years ago she became engaged to the person now grown distasteful.

Their families and their friends constitute a sort of interwoven circle, which is one of the reasons Winifred hesitates to call off the wedding date. They will say the most terrible things about her if she does. But the former loved one's caresses are crosses to bear now. She simply does not like the man any more, try as she will. There is no reason she can put her finger on—she just does not care any longer. And she knows if she goes through with the marriage she will end by hating the fellow.

Could anything be more absurd than to deliberately stuff one's head into a noose like that? What will people say (if the argument is so strong) when Winifred goes seeking a judge to untie the knot later? Certainly, marriage is no miracle worker of feelings if you haven't them for a man.

And it is understandable that a change of heart may develop in the course of a five year wait for marriage. People may change in five years, especially if the initial decision about becoming engaged was made in the early twenties.

Anyway, it is the height of folly to go on with a marriage after you find the man (or woman, for that matter) is unsuitable and no longer the delight of one's life. There is no disgrace about a broken engagement. What was the engagement period originally subscribed to for but to make the discovery that you can or that you cannot live without the one to whom you are engaged?

Bottled Sunshine makes them plump and rosy

So often in the fast growing years children seem to lack vitality and endurance. Every day takes its toll in vital energy.

It helps your child to grow and gain in weight as he should. When he gets it regularly, the under par, under weight child "picks up" quickly and puts on flesh; takes on the ruddy color of health.

This is because cod-liver oil supplies two vitamins essential for growing children—Vitamin D, the "sunshine vitamin" of which children are largely deprived, shut away as they are so many hours a day, from healthful sunshine.

It is also very rich in Vitamin A which promotes growth and nutrition, and increases resistance to certain infections.

Many physicians prefer one kind of cod-liver oil—Squibb's. They know they can depend on Squibb's because it is vitamin-tested and vitamin-protected.

Ask your physician about Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil as a builder of vitality for your child. Squibb has a new mint-flavored oil which older children will like. You can get it, as well as the plain, at all good drug stores.

Several from Chicago Here Florida Bound

BY THALIA

The Florida season is getting under way with decided gusto this week. Almost all the hotels that house vacationing northerners are open for the season. Apparently, the Floridan violet is not considered sufficient beguilement for the sophisticates. There is a mass exodus of American air meet yesterday and tomorrow at the Miami airport and on Friday the Miami Beach club's race meeting begins. Following later in the season are lurings for enthusiasts for that sport, as well as strings of ponies, also to Miami. And the colony of yachts is large and impressive.

Fred A. Poor, president of the Miami Beach, entertained aboard his yacht, Granada IV, Saturday, when there was a party for the committee of 100 at the Bath and Tennis club. The Poors' daughter, Betty, has returned to her studies at Knox school, at Cooperstown, N. Y., after a vacation featured with parties aboard the Granada.

Life in the cabanas is not all sounds, a saga of primitive life, but part of the daily routine of the resorters. The cabanas at the Miami Beach Bath club, which opened for the season, are models of well sort of bathhouses, and are the envy and give to enjoyment of the beach. Among those in a luxurious manner are Mrs. Chauncey McCormicks, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Van Hagen, the Fred H. Rawsons, the I. C. Elses and the Poors are the Chicagoans among the cabana holders.

The Volney Posters and their children, Audrey, George, and Volney, are ensconced at one of the Miami hotels for the season, and are keeping the tenor of their existence on short trips. They recently went to Nassau for a day or two.

The Winchester, formerly owned by Vincent Astor and now the property of the Frederick M. Algers of Detroit, is one of the handsome vessels in the Miami Beach harbor. It recently was hustled to New York a few days ago for medical treatment, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Pike, and the Pikes were hurriedly called there. The Pikes were planning to go to Europe and will continue on there when Mr. Alger recovers.

Miss Edith Brett Southard of New York City and Westport Point arrives today to be the guest of Mrs. Vibe K. Spicer of Kenilworth for a fortnight.

Mrs. Holbrook Clarke sails today for the S. S. Augustus for Italy, and will return by June 1, when Mrs. Clarke Addington is to vacate her apartment at 999 Lake Shore drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Ames W. Rossiter, Stony road, Highland Park, are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter, Janine, on Jan. 7. Mrs. Rossiter was Miss Fernande Berger of Paris, France.

The first of a series of three lectures to be given under the auspices of the Lake Shore League of Women Voters will be this afternoon at the apartment of Mrs. Charles H. Swick of 209 Lake Shore drive. The second talk is to be given on Jan. 21 at Mrs. A. A. Carpenter's apartment and the third on Jan. 28 at Mrs. Emil H. Sudler's. "Should Women Serve on Juries in Illinois" is the subject of this afternoon's lecture.

The Chicago Civic Opera company has issued invitations for a dress rehearsal to be given for the Friends of Music on Monday afternoon, Jan. 27, at 2 o'clock at the Palmer house. All members are to attend.

Mrs. Cyrus McCormick Jr. will take Judith Anderson of "Strange Interlude" to next Saturday matinee performance of "The Princess and the Goblins" at the Harris theater.

The ice hockey games are the most fashionable for evening diversion this season. Col. Frederick Laughlin, owner of the Blackhawks, and Mrs. McLaughlin are, naturally, regular attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Field had a party of 20 to go with them at the game between the New York Rangers and the Chicago Blackhawks on Sunday evening at the Chicago Stadium, and other prominent society folk attending were Mr. and Mrs. Watson Armours, Mr. and Mrs. Laird Adler, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Peavey, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Stevenson, Count and Countess Bolognesi, Mr. and Mrs. James Simpsons, Miss Harriet Laughlin, and Colin Fyffe.

J. Lathrop Moss Jr., more widely styled "Mose," got a hand caught in the steel propellor of the plane he was piloting back from Mexico City recently, and is now lodged in the Home hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison Jr. of Lake Forest are to leave soon from today for a Mediterranean cruise. Accompanying them to New York will be Mrs. Morrow Krum and Miss George Dickson of Lake Forest. They are to "do" New York for a week and may go to Atlantic City for a short holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. James N. Rose of Winnetka are taking their honeymoon today for a sojourn at Nassau in the Bahamas.

Several from Chicago Heed Florida Lure

BY THALIA ——.

The Florida season is getting under way with decided gusto this year. Almost all the hotels that house vacationing northerners are open now. Apparently, the Floridian violet rays, advertised to be so beneficial, are not considered sufficient beguilement for the sophisticates. There is the all-American air meet yesterday, today, and tomorrow at the Miami airport, and on Friday the Miami Jockey club's race meeting begins. Polo games later in the season are luring the enthusiasts for that sport, and their strings of ponies, also to Miami, and the colony of yachts is large and impressive.

Fred A. Poor, president of the Bath club of Miami Beach, entertained aboard his yacht, Granada IV., on Saturday, when there was a reception for the committee of 100 at the Cocoanut Grove club. The Poors' daughter, Betty, has returned to her studies at Miss Spence's school, at Cooperstown, N. Y., after a vacation featured with gay parties aboard the Granada.

Life in the cabanas is not, as it sounds, a saga of primitive natives, but part of the daily routine of the winterers. The cabanas at the new Miami Beach Bath club, recently opened for the season, are most glorified sort of bathhouses, and are indueed to enjoyment of the beach activities in a luxurious manner. The Chauncey McCormicks, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Van Hagen, the Frederick T. Rawsons, the I. C. Elstons, and the Poors are the Chicagoans listed among the cabana holders.

The Volney Fosters and their children, Audrey, George, and Volney Jr., are ensconced at one of the Miami hotels for the season, and are varying the tenor of their existence with short trips. They recently flew to Havana for a day or two.

The Winchester, formerly owned by Vincent Astor and now the property of the Frederick M. Algers of Detroit, is one of the handsome vessels in the Miami Beach harbor. Its owner is hustled to New York a few days ago for medical treatment, and his sister, Mrs. Charles B. Pike, and Mr. Pike were hurriedly called there. The Pikes were planning to go to Florida and will continue on there when Mr. Pike recovers.

Miss Edith Brett Southard of New York City and Westport Point, Mass., arrives today to be the guest of Mrs. Frank K. Spicer of Kenilworth for a fortnight.

Mrs. Holbrook Clarke sails today on the S. S. Augustus for Italy. She will return by June 1, when Mrs. Keene Symington is to vacate her apartment at 999 Lake Shore drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Ames W. Ross of Briarroad, Highland Park, are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter, Janine, on Jan. 3. Mrs. Ross was Miss Fernande Berdonneau of Paris, France.

The first of a series of three lectures to be given under the auspices of the Lake Shore League of Women Voters will be this afternoon at the apartment of Mrs. Charles H. Chadbourne of 209 Lake Shore drive. The second talk is to be given on Jan. 21 by Mrs. A. A. Carpenter's apartment, and the third on Jan. 28 at Mrs. Carroll H. Sudler's. "Should Women Serve on Juries in Illinois" is the subject of this afternoon's lecture.

The Chicago Civic Opera company has issued invitations for a musical tea to be given for the Friends of Opera on Monday afternoon, Jan. 27, at 3:30 o'clock at the Palmer house. Only ladies are to attend.

Mrs. Cyrus McCormick Jr. is to present Judith Anderson of "Strange Interlude" to next Saturday morning's performance of "The Princess and the Pea" at the Harris theater.

The ice hockey games are being put fashionable for evening diversion this season. Col. Frederic McLaughlin, owner of the Blackhawks, and Mrs. McLaughlin are, naturally, regular attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Field had a party of 20 guests with them at the game between the New York Rangers and the Blackhawks on Sunday evening at the Chicago Stadium, and other prominent society folk attending were the A. Watson Armours, Mr. and Mrs. David Adler, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hibbard, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Stevenson, Count and Countess Bolognesi, the James Simpsons, Miss Harriet McLaughlin, and Colin Fyffe.

J. Lathrop Moss Jr., more usually called "Mose," got a hand caught in an steel propellor of the plane he was piloting back from Mexico City recently, and is now lodged in Alice Moss hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison of Lake Forest are to leave a week from today for a Mediterranean cruise, accompanying them to New York City will be Mrs. Morrow Krum and Mrs. George Dickson of Lake Forest, who go to "do" New York for a while and may go to Atlantic City for a short holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. James N. Rawleigh of Winnetka are taking their departure today for a sojourn at Nassau in the Bahamas.

New Club Formed for Young Students of History

A new auxiliary of the Chicago Historical society has been formed to teach good citizenship. That was announced yesterday at a tea for the Illinois Society of the Colonial Dames of America at the historical society building.

The new organization has elected temporary officers of the Pioneer Citizens club. It is composed of delegates from each school. These delegates are to meet monthly at the historical society. The delegates are students from 113 schools, chosen by principals on the basis of ability, responsibility, scholarship.

British Out of Doors Sports Reflected in Exhibition of Prints

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

There is a particularly fine exhibit of old English sporting prints to be seen in the Carson, Pirie, Scott galleries. One or two paintings, in especial the "Game Cock," by Ben Marshall, loaned by Melville Stone III., give weight and body to the show. For the most part the prints are the thing.

If you would follow the dangers and excitements of a real steeplechase look at the series of six prints painted and engraved by Henry Alken, 1827. You get the start and the finish and in between the blind jump, the hurdle, and the water jump. Exciting sport with death around the corner. In the series of the "Jolly Old Squire" the hunter is done in. We see the dinner, the chase, the fall, and the burial, all very neat and very complete and beautifully colored.

Among the most interesting are the coaching prints. These are by James Pollard, engraved by F. Rosenberg. The mail coach to any reader of Dickens will always be a vehicle of mystery and romance and adventure. Here we find it in various plights. In one picture the four spirited horses and the coach are up to their middle in a swollen river, a veritable flood; in another they are deep in a snowdrift; in a third they are facing a furious thunderstorm with the lightning a brilliant zigzag on the black sky.

Lovers of horses may remember the famous trotting mare Phenomena. A painting of her shows her at the advanced age of 25, still as youthful and full of speed as ever. Another series of prints carry us through the life of a racing horse, from the days of babyhood, a foal at his mother's side, to the glorious days of his prime, then slowly into his decay, first a hunter, next a post horse, and lastly falling between the shafts in a peddler's cart.

The most valuable print in the exhibit is "Ale House Politicians," by George Morland. It is valued at $3,600. It is a beautiful blend of browns and blue, warmly and richly painted. The most interesting portrait is that of the Duke of Newcastle by Wheatley, engraved by Bartolozzi, with the landscape by S. Alken. Bartolozzi and Alken in combination are hard to better. The first concerned himself with faces and figures; the second with horses and landscape. The present picture is a remarkable instance of their unusual genius.

The exhibition will run through the month.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—President Hoover had among his dinner guests last night Senator and Mrs. Frederick H. Gillett of Massachusetts, Senator and Mrs. Otis F. Glenn of Illinois, Representative and Mrs. Louis A. Cramton of Michigan, Representative Katharine Langley of Kentucky, Representative Ruth Pratt of New York and Mrs. John B. Sherman, former president of the General Federation of Women's clubs.

The Vice President was the dinner guest tonight of Mrs. Jacob L. Loose of Kansas City, formerly of Chicago, at the Mayflower. After the dinner, Mrs. Loose was among the guests in the box of the Vice President at the Bachelors' cotillion, given in the ballroom of the Mayflower. Mrs. E. E. Gann, sister of the Vice President, received the guests. Miss Junia Culbertson, daughter of the American ambassador to Chile, and Mrs. William S. Culbertson, led the cotillion with Maj. Gen. William E. Horton, U. S. A., retired.

BRIDE

MRS. A. C. DICK.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Jane Belknap Girdler, daughter of T. M. Girdler of Pittsburgh and Cleveland, to Alfred Carr Dick, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Alfred Dick of Oak Park. The former Miss Girdler is a graduate of Randolph Macon college in Virginia and of the social service department of the University of Chicago.

Amarillo Wants Her, but Mary Garden Can't Find Time

Amarillo, Tex., where Mary Garden sang "Thais" last year to the tune of considerable criticism from Editor Eugene Howe, is yearning to hear the Chicago Civic Opera star again—but is out of luck. The 1930 itinerary of the opera company omits Amarillo, and where the opera company goes, Garden will go.

Undismayed by the information that their town is not on the list this year, a number of Amarillo citizens put their heads and their pocketbooks together and dangled a check for $4,000 under the nose of Mary Garden, the one particular opera star they were determined to hear. One concert appearance on March 29 was all they asked. But the check will not be cashed.

"Of course I'd have gone if I could have arranged it," Miss Garden avefred last night. "The one and only reason I'm not singing there this year is because the tour doesn't go there. And I couldn't give them the concert date they named—that's all."

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Jan. 13.—[Special.]—Mrs. J. Clarence Davies gave today the first of several farewell luncheon parties prior to starting for California to spend the remainder of the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. William Whittingham Battle left for Useppa Island, Fla., where they will spend three months.

Mr. and Mrs. Kingdon Gould entertained at dinner at their home this evening before attending the opera. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Julius W. Noyes, Miss Marie Gillespie, Mr. Decio Machado, and Mr. A. E. Norden.

Society at the Opera

"La Tosca," with the popular Claudia Muzio in the stellar rôle, was sung last night to a large and brilliant audience at the Civic Opera house. Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson had as their box guests Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Field, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, and Charles Breasted. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell were hosts in their box to Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Morse.

The Edward F. Swift box was occupied by a group including Mr. and Mrs. George A. Ranney, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Senior, and Mrs. George D. McLaughlin. Mr. and Mrs. D. Mark Cummings were hosts to Mr. and Mrs. David R. Forgan Jr., Mrs. Oscar Johnson, Miss Edith Cummings, and William Jennings. Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. De Long, Miss Sarah Hinde, and Frank O. Salisbury were guests of the Thomas W. Hindes.

With Mr. and Mrs. Martin A. Ryerson were Mrs. Frances T. A. Junkin, Miss Catherine Frost, William D. Darrow, and John W. Hutchins. In the Cyrus H. McCormick box Col. and Mrs. Ralph H. Lelong Gives a New Ensemble Silhouette

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Lucien Lelong, in his midseason collection, shows a new silhouette for the elegant daytime ensemble. Something different, something new, and like all the clothes from this designer, extremely wearable.

Ever since longer daytime skirts became an accepted fashion the coat has been a real problem, and in his new ensembles Lelong does much to find the solution. The three-quarters length ensemble coat has already been advanced everywhere as the best coat for longer daytime dresses, but the new Lelong coats are made a bit longer than this in back, and are all cutaway in front, making a graceful and universally becoming line.

Some of these cutaway daytime coats dip to the hemline in back, but most of them are the length shown in the accompanying sketch. All of these are slightly flared around the bottom so they add to the charm of the entire silhouette line. The most original way to flare these coats is illustrated.

In this model, which is called "Sinbad," Lelong places a wide band of broadtail around the cutaway edge of the three-quarters black broadcloth coat, and below that is a box plaited ruffle of the same fur, becoming narrower toward the rising front line. At the top of the broadtail band is a narrow box plaited ruffle of broadcloth. The scarf collar is made of black broadtail, knotted at the back of the neck. The sleeves are furless, with ties of broadcloth placed above the wrists as shown in our sketch.

This ensemble also breaks the tradition of one material for any ensemble with a shorter than full length coat, proving that you can wear a dress of silk and a shorter coat of cloth without any loss of elegance or cachet. The dress of this ensemble

A new color note is supplied by the coral colored suede gloves and the coral suede crown of the hat, which has a band and loops of black broadtail. The pumps are black suede and the stockings a deep, neutral beige.

When Touching Up the Hair, Strive to Copy Its Real Shade

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Yesterday we touched on the subject of hair dyeing, a pastime, or more frequently an emergency, in which women are engaged or in contemplation about.

It is often asked whether a pure blonde shade is not more generally becoming to a face not without a few marks of time overshadowing it than other available shades. The rule that applies to the largest body of women is to have the hair dyed a shade as close to the original color as you can possibly come. This is advised by expert dyers and there is a wide variance of the blonde, brown, red, and dark hair samples on the hair dyers' charts from which to determine the nearest shade.

I suppose, however, that this rule, like others, may be broken, in exceptional cases. But it does seem to me that blondined hair calls for a youthful freshness of skin, or, with the light framing, you project the not-young shadows and lines into a more obtrusive light. I recall at the moment two acquaintances, one a natural born blonde of the Norwegian shade of hair and eyes whose locks have been touched up light for years, and they are most attractive. But she is a healthy person, warm toned both as to eyes and complexion, and is an unusually well groomed and tended person.

Another's original hair shade was an indeterminate brown, rather darkish. A pair of luminous dark eyes look out from under her present blonde magnificence and you have to admit her striking. But these two examples probably could turn pink or spinach green over night, hirsutically speaking, and they'd still have the fresh skin and young eyes to absolve them.

Two other women of corresponding age, put to the same hair color change but with the blight of time upon complexion, facial contour and eyes—and we wouldn't recommend them as candidates for silver cups, or even distinguished mention.

A bas relef of Mr. and Mrs. A. Montgomery Ward, set in the wall of the foyer of the Montgomery Ward Memorial building on McKinlock campus of Northwestern university, will be unveiled at 2 p. m. tomorrow by their only daughter, Miss Marjorie Ward. Its dedication by President Walter Dill Scott will follow. Brief talks will be made by Dean Irving S. Cutter of the medical school, Dean Arthur D. Black of the dental school, and William A. Dyche, business manager of the institution.

Mrs. Ward made gifts totaling $8,000,000 to Northwestern university for the erection and endowment of the Montgomery Ward building as a memorial to her husband, for the advancement of science and service to the poor. The building, completed in 1927, now houses the laboratories and clinics of the medical and dental schools of the university. Beneath the bas relief is the inscription:

"Elizabeth J. Ward, by whose generosity this building was erected. A. Montgomery Ward, to whose memory this building is dedicated."

Radio Brings Elmer Many Musical Gems

Opera Singer, Orchestra Win His Praise.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

I was so busy last evening enjoying unusually fine musical programs that I had no inclination for anything else that may have been on the air.

I can pass over the Gypsies' orchestral program from New York through W-G-N, from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock, except to remark that their present period programs are excellent.

The Family Party program from New York through W-G-N now lasts one-half an hour, from 8:30 to 9 o'clock. But brevity was made up for by quality of performance last night, due to the presence of Miss Grace Moore, Metropolitan Opera soprano, as soloist. Miss Moore revealed a generously gifted and highly pleasing voice, and was heard in several enjoyable songs and operatic arias.

Eugene Goossens, well known composer and conductor, conducted the Rochester civic orchestra [fifty pieces] in a program broadcast through KYW from 9 to 9:30. The program consisted of "Marriage of Figaro" overture [Mozart], "Forest Murmurs" from "Siegfried," [Wagner], two selections by Grainger, and Lalo's "Norwegian Rhapsody." Here's hoping the Rochester Civic orchestra remains on the air indefinitely.

The forerunner of what we may be hearing from many bands at the 1933 World's Fair was heard in the World's Fair orchestral program over W-G-N, from 9:30 to 10.

The Chicago Madrigal club, with D. A. Clippinger directing, gave a highly pleasing program of madrigals over WLS from 9:30 to 10 o'clock.

The ovtreure to "Lurline," by Wallace, was introduced to the radio audience during the Slumber hour concert from New York, through WIBO from 10 to 10:30. Possibly here's a work for Chicago studio orchestra conductors who are looking for something that is now and good.

JOHN Q. ADAMS, VETERAN OF 3 WARS, IS BURIED

Mr. Adams enlisted in Company I of the Fourth Illinois cavalry at the age of 14 years and served with the company through the civil war. He was wounded in the shoulder in one engagement and carried the bullet to his death. He took part in several engagements with Custer and enlisted in the army again at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war.

For many years he was engaged in the brick business in Iowa and served a term as sheriff of Webster county, Iowa. For the last 13 years he had been living in Chicago. He is survived by two brothers, Jabed and Robert; one sister, Miss Jane Adams of Cushing, Okla.; a niece, Miss Mary B. Brown of Chicago, and two nephews, Frederick and Henry J. Brown, winner of the Los Angeles-Cleveland aerial Derby. He was never married.

PRESS WIRELESS OFFICIAL CHARGES PATENT ABUSES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—Amendment of the patent laws to prevent their alleged abuse by the Radio corporation was urged today before the senate interstate commerce committee by Joseph B. Pierson of Chicago, president of Press Wireless, Inc.

Mr. Pierson charged that by means of "patent abuses" a practical monopoly in communications had been built up, which is exacting exorbitant prices for apparatus, especially tubes, suppressing the sale in the United States of valuable apparatus invented abroad, and by means of "confiscatory license agreements" seeking to hamper the activities of the American press in the wireless field.

The Radio corporation was described by Mr. Pierson as "the secret radio commission of America" and the license agreement proposed by it to Press Wireless, Inc., as one "specially designed to make the American press a colony of the electric power empire, which seems to be grasping after complete control of the water and of the air of the United States."

100 SNOWBOUND AND IN PERIL IN SO. CALIFORNIA

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 13.—[Special.]—A dozen rescue parties, starting from this city and adjacent points, were trying to penetrate snow barred fastnesses of the southern California highlands today in a race to save 100 or more marooned tourists and working parties from freeing or starving to death.

One hundred automobiles were locked in the drifts of Cajon Pass, twenty-five of the cars having to be wholly abandoned for weeks as a result of straying off the mountain highway into drifts deeper than the tops of the cars.

She was well known in this country as a lecturer on war relief, as a writer and as an active worker in philanthropic fields.

Mrs. Bertelli was the daughter of the late Samuel Morss, one time editor of the Indianapolis Sentinel, former owner of the Kansas City Star and American consul general in Paris. She was born in Chicago. Burial will be in Fort Wayne, Ind., tomorrow.

Announcement of the identity of the donors of the buildings, the last of which was completed a year ago, was made following exercises commemorating the founding of the schools 28 years ago by Miss Martha Berry, daughter of a northwest Georgia farmer.

Lee—Ernest W. Lee, 1127 Willard, Elgin, Ill., Jan. 8, 1930, beloved husband of Ruth Lee and fond father of the children. If it's only occasional, pay no attention to it. There's usually some reason, like a heavy pre-spring meal, too much between meals, not enough sleep or fresh air, or constipation. Remedy the cause for next time, but don't force the food on this occasion.

Some dishes you like better than others. So does your child. And if he eats less of the thing he dislikes, let it go at that without comment.

Sometimes you eat more slowly because you get interested in talking or for some other reason. So does your child. Don't expect him always to eat at the same pace. In fact, small children usually eat slowly and wait their mouths to be empty before they accept the next mouthful. They are not in a hurry to get enough because of the next thing that has to be done.

Unless you're very stolid, unpleasantness at the table spoils your appetite, and may even give you indigestion. If know a man who has violent indigestion if he quarrels with his wife around dinner time—even when it's his fault. And then he blames food! Excitement also interferes with the progress of your meal. And certainly dullness and monotonous, businesslikeness don't add zest to the function of eating, for you. All these things hold true with the children, too.

Tastiness in food and variety in seasoning tempt your appetite. So they do in a child. If you're in good spirits you eat better than when you're low. So does a child.

It is possible not to have a little eating problem," I know from experience. Try plain common sense—"do as you would be done by"—at least a preventive or right starter.

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Breakfast Fruit Raisins.

The raisin producers and their organizations send out scores and even hundreds of recipes containing raisins, but they always seem to omit telling us how to cook raisins in a simple manner that makes them the equivalent of cooked prunes, which can be used uncooked as well as raisins can.

Cooked raisins with cream are an excellent little breakfast or dessert fruit. I have tried out some rather curious receipts for cooking them in a plain way, but believe I have something yet to do before I can tell what will make them most attractive and palatable.

If the grape cure is good there is no reason why the raisin cure should not be almost or quite as good. A good many years ago some women writers on the subject of putting raisins into meals wrote this: "Raisin juice extracted in cooking is merely fermented grape juice and is very pleasing to weak stomachs." These writers emphasized the high caloric value of raisins although they did not say that was what they were doing. They also mentioned the known medicinal value of raisins and told how good a simple sandwich of bread and butter with raisins was for a luncheon, and then told some of the superstitions about raisins which are perhaps influential to this day.

They asked why the English people consume six pounds of raisins per capita per year, while the Americans do but one. This cannot be true to-day, but perhaps we could use more raisins than we do to good advantage. At breakfast time we may, instead of eating the raisins, drink the raisin juice, which is practically the equivalent of grape juice as far as general food value is concerned, and also has high caloric worth. To make this juice, wash the raisins in warm water, two or three warm waters, after picking them over first to remove any stems, then chop them and cook them gently in about twice their measure of water for half an hour in a double boiler covered so that practically none of the water will be lost. Cool and strain through a cloth.

Judge Youngsters by Yourself at Mealtimes

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Books and long articles have been written about completing the circuit between children and food, so I think we are privileged to have something on the subject again today.

It is a simple something, too—the comment I want to make—so simple that it may not appeal to you on any technical ground, if that is what interests you in child training. But it is sound psychology and sound common sense, and it gives you a good general lead in managing your children's meals, especially starting them right. It is this: In expecting results from your children, be as reasonable with them as you are with yourself or with other grown people. Also, be as casual.

If you think about it you realize, for instance, that sometimes you're hungry and sometimes you're not. So are the children. If it's only occasionally, pay no attention to it. There's usually some reason, like a heavy pre-evening meal, too much between meals, not enough sleep or fresh air, or constipation. Remedy the cause for next time, but don't force the food on this occasion.

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

This charming dress is particularly feminine and up to the minute in every detail. The line through the bodice is softened by gathers, where it joins the pointed front panel on the skirt, this panel creating a delightful length to the silhouette. The back of the bodice has pin tucks at the neckline. Faille silk crêpe, sheer woolens, flat crêpe, crêpe marocain, and printed and plain sheer velvet are appropriate materials.

The pattern, No. 3211, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material with ⅝ yard of 27 inch contrasting.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moments, Chicago Tribune. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

My most embarrassing moment occurred when I was working as a stenographer for a commission merchant. My employer was a dignified, elderly gentleman and rather hard of hearing, of which he was most sensitive.

One day a goose, which had escaped from a coop, flew past the glass door of our office, flapping its wings and screaming in the most ear splitting manner.

My employer said to me in his gentle way, "What did you say, Miss D.?"

I was simply convulsed with laughter and choked and spluttered in my effort to explain. Finally I calmed down enough to tell him. Both of us were embarrassed, but I am sure I was the more so. D. D.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

My little brother Richard recently became the possessor of a new pair of eyeglasses. I had warned him never to fight with them on, so he was rather puzzled what course to follow when Tommy, one of the neighbor's children, wanted to fight.

Richard came home and asked me what he should do about it, and I told him to take off his glasses next time. He went over to Tommy's house, called Tommy out, started a quarrel, and then took off his glasses and proceeded to fight.

When Tommy's mother heard the noise she went out to the back porch and saw Richard seated on Tommy's stomach. The fight was getting along rapidly until she called out and asked them what they were doing. Richard said, before he realized who had asked, "Why, I'm beating Tommy up!" R. B. F.

When he returned we asked him how he got along.

"O," he said, "I used so much expression you could hardly hear the words." L. M.

Again?

Men don't understand; and some women are so helpless. Each month they suffer untold pain, though those times could be entirely painless. Midol makes the natural, necessary process an incident; yes, even for those who have always experienced acute and prolonged suffering! Try Midol; anticipate your time and avoid all misery or even discomfort. Or take it when the pain is at its height, and feel at ease in five to seven minutes. Midol is not a narcotic; acts directly on organs affected. Fifty cents, metal case.*

* Midol's comfort is not confined to any certain days or age. It relieves at any time of life. Its ease is felt immediately in cases of nervous headache, backache, cramping, hot flashes and all febrile pain peculiar to women.
